G'DAY MATE AND WELCOME TO MY NIGHTMARE. ego, my life story, my struggle.
1997 was an amazing year for me, some days were the greatest of my life, some days were among my worst. It all began at a new years party where I found myself amidst a group of people I never knew existed, the 'Political Vegan Drunk Punk' some with straight edge tendencies. A short while after I cut my first Mowhawk (I can't believe it took me all these years), I used to be a weirdo, not quite suicidal enough to be a gothic, wearing wigs and opp shop clothing back when it was cheap to do so. I'd get into Dario Agento horror movies especially the soundtracks. At one stage I was going to get into the business of coffin making. Me and my friends use to drink cheap port (cos it looked like blood) or toxic passion pop at the local cemetaries after dark and obsess over Bauhaus videos. Back where I came from we were laughed at all the time but we were proud freaks and indulged in our fantasy world. Each time I see a bat and I saw one the other night I think of vampires and I wonder, "maybe". Anyway I cut my hair thus the beginning of my punkdom, its fucked you know, I've been calling myself a punk for years before I had the hairstyle and the jkt, before I had the "fashion" see, stupid me thought punk was an attitude not a dress code. PEople only recognised me with my hair up. Punk means on the bottom, the lowlife in the gutter the pit in society. Suits me fine I like being a hoodlam but I also have alot of self respect that keeps me straight straight and (reasonably) focused so I never will hit the ground cos I always will pick myself back up. I can't afford to get involved in drugs and booze because I'm not fortunate and who will bail me out? NO-ONE. I mean I've been officially homelass, had to squat not to save money but because I had no money and no where else to go. I've been hungry many times in my life, I've been broke before, been mindfucked so many times before but I've never packed it in though there has been times that I've been tempted. I've always come from a working class backround, the only time I've ever had any money was when I worked in the factories in the clothing industry. I wasted a year in a hairdressing apprenticeship where I decided I hated employers since mine treated me like shit. Quality controller, assistant cutter. I even worked with my father and brother who are tiles tilers, I used to do their grouting. Its why my knees are buggered. My parents met and married in Melbourne after migrating from Europe some 32 years ago. They apparently gambled all they owned at the Horse races so road to the ACT to start anew. I've lived the majority of my life in govie public housing. Experianced a life of fucking madness and emotional violence due to my fathers abusive alcoholism More money went on his beer and whiskey and ciggerettes then on us. He did work really bloody hard and still does but it was no excuse to ignore what he was like to his family and to everyone he knew actually, he abused everyone, have punch ups at the pub, shitstir people all the time. I remember in my childhood my parents living on the razors edge. We accepted we lived in poverty and sometimes there was a glimmer of happy moments, We are a large european family after all and are noisy in nature. My mother use to sing along to her record collection, thats how we kept our spirits up, music was our lifesaver (my mum didn'T sing too well but she was funny anyway. She also kept alot of animals, unfortunately some in cages like the cockatoos and budgies and parrots and we had chickens, cats dogs animals everywhere to keep her sanity. A giant vege garden, crappy sheds, plum and fig trees. Lack of employment in the early days and then people not paying him money would fuel many fights. My father used to argue politics, brew his own wine, drunk drive, chase us out of the house, mumble under his breathe how he was gonna set the house on fire and kill us all because we were shit. We'd go to school the next morning dressed in hand me downs not letting on about the police visit the night before and how the coppers would struggle to keep him down in his rage and put him in the lockup that night, most coppers were biggots anyway so they did it more in the sence of beating a wog then in helping our mum and us kids. We were always leaving in the middle of the night, staying at relatives or in emergency accomodations, hostels or hotels, welfare agents would for us provide. We'd come home the next day to find a bitter angry man sitting in silence, I don't think even he knew what he was doing he never remembers He had a nationalistic approach to raising us kids and always would say that mum wasn't doing a good job and that we have to work for a living, He don't want no dole bludgers for children. so we get jobs and work real hard, it still wasn't hard enough, we were still "nothing" how he use to put it. My mother died of cancer about 7 years ago now. She lived a really fucking hard life and fought a really painful death. I will never understand why she got such a raw deal in life life. Anyway this is where I fucken come from, It's why I look the way I do, talk how I do, swear as I do. Its why I see things the way I see them. And noone can ever try to change the way I am or "expect" me to change under their righteos influence. The shit of my year was exactly this, ignorant people unable to understand why trouble with your teaches at school or with bullies both in and out of the class room. Some of you are having trouble just with the dealings of your own life. Depression is the shits everyone goes through it but some don't come out the right end, We have to stop expecting so much from each other and we have stop being cruel to each other and we have to stop ignoring each other. One day you say hi, the next day you don't. Fuck all you wankers who say get over it or stop being sooky. Depression, Anxiety is very painful and difficult to overcome, I wish people would start acknowledging that. Depression leads to suicide which is not cool, it kills people. People having troubles with their work or no work of with their parteners. * Know the signs and listen to them, some people truly have problems with their self esteem and self worth and self motivation and its beyond their control, No they can't just snap out of it. By forcing or pressuring them to is exactly what mainstream society does. Drugs are so crazy and fucked if you don't know what you're getting yourself into. This is mostly for those who don't want to, Know that you don't have to. I was gonna have a big bitch here about the wrongs and evils but fuck it.. If you take drugs or abuse alcohol then thats your business and its not my place to judge so long as you don't go mugging old pensioners of their dole savings or stealing punkers music equiptment and so long you don't hang around my stoop pushing on to little kids. William s Burroughs was a successful junkie, Bukowski a talented alcoholic but they were creative and were recognised for addictions then later rewardedfor them. Most of you shooting up heroin think its all cool and degenerate [redacted] its ok for you rich kids whose parents pay for your habit by putting pocket money into your account but for you poor kids, poor suckers, some of you only 15, you are nothing but scum junkies, no ones gonna pay for your rehab, society doesn't give a toss about you, your parents don't care and your friends definately don't care.

I guess this is mostly why people take 'em in the fis first place. Its trash living where you may be killing yourself but your more than likely hurting a lot of people around you. I really don't think theres anything too bad in experimenting and shit I mean I forever hate violent alcoholics. and I think pot over time destroys yer brain cells. but then so does T.V and mainstream society. Idont thinkwe should ostricise people who take drugs except for you fuckwits are who are aggro and think society owes you. You are responsible for your own actions. At least we have to look out for each other because kids die from overdoses and its a waste of friggen life that could be so limitless.
Music, music fucken not what you know but who you kiss arse to be it corporate, mainstream, punk, hardcore, str8, grind, goth, whatever your label, All fucking boys club oh a few of us token girlies. This guy the other night was telling me how you have more chances being a female in the music industry(nah stupid, only if you suck the money mans dick, what wank "he telling me he's in a unisex (is this equal opportunity, affirmative action?) band and notices the difference and is open minded because this one girl and five other guys. Fuck you, guys are fucking dumb sometimes. Iwon't conform for no scene. I can't believe that even the diy scene is so clicky. All I want to do is play my fucking music the way i envision it without male ego interference. So I set myself on the busking route and make NO money cause I don't play covers. At leaste no one can tell me what to do , well yeah they still do. Just everyone always out to get what they want, bloodsuckers. I'm crap at networking and too stubborn and proud to follow. I sometimes think about selling out, getting a stupid job, joining an 'original' doesn't matter cos it all sounds the same, safe rockin' band so I can play support slots for big international acts and meet molly meldrum and ask if he really did punch johnny lydon in the face. I will not sell myself out ever(maybe ha ha) I'd die in the sewers before such grief.. I'm happy in some weird kinda way to live my life in my Rat cage, with my guitars, my 4 track, my crappy keyboard with its disco boogie drum beat. To record my songs that I know only few will ever hear. I buy that hopeless $1 lottery ticke every 3 months dreaming about the eight track I'll never afford. It is actually possible to be successful in the music biz but it depends on how you describe success. For me it's every time I resist to conform or sacrifice my music in any way. Music is my life, its my memory and my only escape from my shite dole reality. Also support original music buskers, I swaar its one of the more difficult music challenges in life, if you don't believe me, try it, by yourself and sober. Definately if someone ever criticises your music that you poor your soul into, fucking punch them cos they're only trying to bring you down.,especially if you are female as is the case you gotta work twice as hard(if you are fine then good luck to you) Just do what you friggen want, blah blah blah. For all us 4 trackies out there,Diy cassette home recording winners out there in la la land, organise and we too can go where no humin has gone before. One of my favorite musicians died last year and i can rock worship whoever i want(how un anarchist of me) Jeff Buckley wrote groovy songs and no he wasn't punk I met Patti Smith last year outside the palais at st kilda beach where i gave her one of my tapes and in return she gave me a guitar pick? For a 50 year old she fucking rocked man. I watched conflict who i only got into and beside all the controversy of their melbourne shows, I thought they were excellant. Imet J Mascis from Dinosaur jnr and he was a complete utter rude snob, in h[illegible] nature. Fuck man when people say good things about my music i take it as such a compliment it brightens my day. I hate rude rock egomaniacs. I watched Citizen Fish a couple of times and we bootlegged their shows, they were fucking brilliant. best i was like the way i was and why i would react so fiercly when challenged, when talked down to, when some middle class prats would tell me I was out of hand for beating up one of their own because he used a kind of mental abuse that if you've had it all your life you will never understand so I won't even try to bother you with it. I had hear people saying how physicall violence is worst than emotional. Its funny you know, us spending out whole lives fucked up in domestic violence (sorry no bruises except in our skulls where we remember) And we are treated like shit from this guy, provocateur who has been beaten up for many times because he pulls a dangerous chord in us who have 'em. Him and his stupid friends telling us to get over it. I swear you only see half the picture (cos its all you'll ever see). In 1997 I was punched in the head 3 times and in the nose, all by men, all because I was standing up to them. The first was at a train station when some yobbo put his hand up my arse so I kicked him dead straight and hard in the balls, this didn't effect him half as much as the abuse me and my friend gave him, something I said caused him to punch me a couple of times in the head and also my friend in the head. This was broad daylight, hundreds of people around, noone intervened. All the young kids stood by us and were threatened themselves. No adults did anything to helpmus which is why this shit still happens. Could it have been the way we looked? Finally the police came and arrested the men, one charged with assault, what good will that do, maybe if everyone got involved in the first place we could scare these guys senseless into never doing it again, then we wouldn't need the coppers. Next time I don't stop kicking, I know that now. The second time was by an anarchist male I shared a group house with. We had a party, It was very violent drunk party brawl. He was saying all this bullshit to me, treating me like a dog or his bitch, he kept provoking me, he wouldn't leave (he was stupid in thinking i was ordering him where as it was a warning) I couldn't help but punch and kick him, he still wouldn't move, my friends holding me back (there was 5 of us against him) but then he would say something that made them want to hit him (but they didn't). The person on his side only saw it as we beat the shit out of him, was he blind or he just didn't want to see later he changed his story a few times. It was all a shit stir, control thing for the 'anarchist' I admit I too was controlling but for his own safety. It wasn't until I said something that cut him most, about his masculinity. Thats when he threw a punch at me. That when one of my friends tackled him to the floor and started laying into him, then I had to help the others to get our friend from killing the bastard(his friend did not intervene, just watched and kept telling his anarchist friend to go inside , if only he 'could' remember). In the end noone won, afterwards alot of true colours appeared, the thing that mostly pissed me off is that he denied he ever hit me and his [redacted] friends stood by him and painted me a witch. I now really wish I didn't use so much violence but you hit a nerve, then accept the consequence. The 3rd time I was punched in the nose by a neo-nazi or white supremicist. He was talking some shit to other punkers about how everyone should leave the poor guys at national action alone. He was full on preaching nationalism pride as i could see it so i intervened only for him to give me shit back, Him saying I didn't know what I was talking about and questioning my own convictions so I couldn't help it I threw a bottle into his face. We yelled at each other then he got me in the nose. Whether it was the way he was talking down to me or my prejudice towards his 'values'??? I don't know, I asked one of the punka girls if she thought I was out of line, she said yes. I don't know. We apologised to each other (no I'm not a nazi sympathiser you fucking morons) for the violence, I bet he wouldnT have if I was asian. I'm just trying to pathe the way for you to the phycology behind my ideals that i promote in this zine so bare with me or go get pissed. PUNK was never about supremecy so get your nazi views and stick them back up your nostril where they came from in the first place. Other things that have shat me off is all the social scenes and all those fucking climbing ladders, you kiddies fuckin' cool straight edge leaders man and drunk punk and fashion punks and goths and socially aware oh so pc anarchists. Have you noticed that to be really a part of the 'IN' crowd, the social structure you must most importantly have to be in a band, punk rocks mate, lyrics really aren't too important 'cos if its not 'in ya face' macho crap then its probably sung or growled so you can't understand a single fucken word [redacted] So you stand there and bob ya head back and forth cos its how everyone else is doing it or you're slamming and swinging your body into a mushy , slimey, gooey sleazoid pit because everyone else is doing it. And if you're on the top then you are more Diy then anyone or you only will play all ages shows (what happened, ultimatum?). Are you living with the right people, living in the right squat. Then you also have to have the right look, the clothes, the mohawk, the shavenest head, the most natural hair, the grottiest dreads. You only go out with the coolest looking people,you have to have the reputation (the building of legends), you may have the criminal backround or a history in activism that excedes all the rest. Maybe you run a distro or a label or promote international bands or maybe you had a more disfunctional life. Nah Fuck the lot of it, shoot yourself, everyone loves you when you're dead, you'll be adored. The factisthat peer pressure is the biggest killer of a persons spirit, of a persons individuality. You know you're always having to go up to talk to someone and they say hi then leave you there on your own because they're too important and have to mingle. Many of you out there are going through serious personal crisis and I'm talking about troubles at home, with your parents, with your guardians. Or boogie music and clever articulate lyrics. Propagandhi aren'T really my music style but a few of their songs a bot on great+ they played a Concrete Blonde cover 'true' which is one of my favorite songs. I guess I should mention some aussie bands ummm. I wasn't drunk enough last year to appreciate the sounds of grind core I'm afraid, I love the aggro of the music but like all the hardcore bands i heard last year most sounded the same as each other or was a ripp off. there were some hardcore banda i liked but i can't remember their name. My best part of the year was watching Fugazi 7 three times, their shows blew me away and truly helped me through some really bad shit I was going through And they are really cool people and they were nicer to me then most people I knew. Me and my Fugazi groupie family and Oregon friend were in Fugazi heaven. it was fun and it sometimes is fun behaving like everday idiots For those of you expecting underground punk, music band reviews, look elsewhere, this is not your thing. This is not a corporate fanzine, there are no adds. I'm not writing this zine for punk goody points, this is not my ticket to ride the cool train.

.I played live in a band which is what i always wanted to do and probably never will again, i've been scarred from the experiance. I listened to our live tape the other day and descover we sounded really bloody good, better then whats around for sure. Wasted. We got a song on a cd comp. which is strange cos it didn't really frill me like i expected it would. I think because my whole year, any sighns of commercialism or pleasure seemed to be shunned by everyone I knew. Like we couldn't be happy, we had to live in guilt. It was an enviroment where you had to watch what you said cos you were being anal ised and you were analising and all the testing and all the sarcasm really fucked me up. Its not so much i suffered from burnout more like i was fucked by people i liked. [redacted] I kept a pretty tight guard around my personal self because everytime I was me, I was cut down.
A Special Message: You can stick your I.H.R. up your arse, you talk about communicating with each other but then walk away when things get tootough, we are not mind readers. You sit in your self righteousness and curse everyone that sees differently to you or that you've been there, done that. Noone is ever "use to" being fucked over and buggered, it just always seem to effect certain types of people. As for these people with I.H.R. and I am talking about the legit sufferers of societys wrongs, you take away their only defence in this crooked World and you shit on it. You become another reason why they have I.H.R. in the first place. You never learn, you just keep knocking down those who are already down. You know shit. But you heard it all before right, how tiresome for you, what an inconveniance, how fucking boring... With you I looked into a mirror and didn't like what I saw, so I smashed that Fucking mirror and opened me up a new door.....
Maybe i am strange or i like to think a "special" person. I just want to live for fuck sake. Throughout this zine I make alot of criticisms about people especially anarchists, you see I will always hold anarchy to my heart, its an urge for freedom and a lust for life. It's just some people really, really pissed me off. If you do have criticisms about what i've written I really don't care you see I'm not doing this for you, It's purely selfish, go write your own zine. My opinions taken me a long time to settle on, I've made up my mind, this is where i stand, ~~this~~ these are my honest self indulgent words. I am sorry if you read it the wrong way My critic of straight edge is funny and true so don't get shirty, learn to laugh at yourself. (We're too busy digging holes in our skin, The skin stretched tight to keep us all in.* dividing lines by Citizen Fish.).....Some straight edgers are really nice people, so to are some gothics. Some wealthy people are nice people too, just like you and me but they got money (secretly we all wish we had money, fuck I know a million of ways to utilise wealth, not for greedy purposes either. I'd build a big creative compound in the bush, buy miles of prime land and give it back to the Aboriginal people who are the only ones who really care for ther land. I'd set up a hostel/ anarchist society without the rules of anarchy but a new working structure in practice without the elitness. Or I'd buy an eight track a car and a fe other things for afree music studio catering for all kinds of music. Or I'd put the money to wards ALF projects and be financially capable and organised like greenpeace but without the politics. Anyway i've just been FLOATING around in dreamy land. Some drunk punkers are utter fuckwits but some of you are genuine, compassionate people who live like a family of friends its why your circle is so tight,. And some of you Anarhists are truly fighting for a better world and many of you i do not have a problem with. Your dedication will be your life and some of you are inspiring. Anarchy is not a scene that will fade in a few years. I think there is Anarchy, punk and activism that people muddle up, they are all separate so should be treated this way. (in the words of white libral shit john lennon, You think you're so clever and classless and free but you're still fucking peasants as far as I can see. A working class hero is something to be.) My last addition in this intro is especially directe to the anarchists all around the world cos its something that should never happen again.....
To those women who were raped and attempted raped and abducted by ben alterman. I am so so very sorry. Sorry for your eternal pain and suffering and sorry for the fact that many will not understand how truly horrible a crime rape actually is, Fuck us all for not doing more t ston this monster and fuck us all for letting him roam in our community, around women and children, so freely. I will forever be fucken mad att this community especially you men who doubted us-women, those who said attempted rape is not the same so its not "as" bad or those

It's good to sometimes read about Anarchy and stuff but be careful to not read out of context. Some Anarchist literature omits archaic ideals that are not relevant or updated to these modern times such as Proudhon, a sexist and I reckon a biggot racist. Times change man so get with it.

Anarchy didn't just happen in the 70's Punk explosion or the begginning of this century, its been in the heart and minds of people probably since we evolved. Its for our disdain of authority, being told what to do. It sometimes worries me that what we read about Anarchy comes mostly from academics who intellectualise about it but seldom work to achieve it. Working class or poor people rarely write about their bekiefs cos they don't normally articulate themselves to well as they are not privately educated or did not complete adequit schooling or never went to fucking school so are illiterate. It makes me think that the arseholes that i very much dislike today for their verbose or if you like "over use of big words to describe something really basic, are the ones mostly dictating today in their own ignorant ways instead of how in fact it really is for us gutter trash. I will let you know how truly upset and pissed I get when educated bastards like Joseph Toscano shit on us punkers or realistic anarchist. He sits there talking bout the "right" way to have a revolution. I have disscussed anarchy with so many different types of people especially punks, to know what it really means and how to acheive it. Alli i hear these fogies, these middle class yuppies rave about is socialism. Goodness gracious. We know and thats what matters. How about the idea that anarchy can only be an anarchist act? just plying with word words. Are you aware when I talk about anarchy I make things up as I go cos I am not well read, only know the basics. You know the basics you can bullshit on for hours.

NO fucking heirachy, whether you fought in the Spanish Civil War or learnt by listening to Crass. Fuck Chumbuwumbu for commercialising anarchy for they'll make it a scene or a fad where the meaning gets lost. Personally I think things like Anarcho Syndacalism is socialist ideology and I think their are too many Trots calling themselves Anarchists. I hate Socialism communism. All forms of fascism suck.

In order for a revolution there would be mass unesscassary deaths, probably us Anarchists will be the first shot, and if we survive we'd probably be under socialist rule anyway so it would have been a waste of time. Everyone would get the wrong idea. After all my cankyness crankyness in this zine(this has not been to get my vengence out on people I hate by bagging them out, i got better things to do and i usually say things to peoples face which I won't any more, I've descovered everyone lies to each other instead so maybe that I shall try. This zine is to gets things out of my big dumb head so I can vent then begin anew. [redacted] I've reached delirium, not enough coffee, must stop typing aloud.

I hate politicians for they care only for their own gains and I've met a Hell of alot of ya this past year, different titles, same agenda.

I'm an anarchists because I want to be free, like I'm a vegan 'cos one day I realised I was eating an animal and that logically and Humanely I shouldn't be eating it. I didn't become a vegan for any social scene or moral crusade its why I've not touched meat and dairy for nearly five years now with the intention and neither the desire to ever consume animal a ever again. I'll always be searching for freedom, I'll forever be searching for anarchy.

People think you can change things by becoming exactly what you are trying to change, you you just better watch out where you're going and remember from where you came.

GUNS: I hate guns, when I was a kid I thought I wanted one 'cos they were really cool and I thought Robert Deniro looked powerful and I thought I needed the protection as a female in this violent society. I now beleive nobody deserves the right to carry a gun especially the coppers of course. People/Humins are too immature and irresponsible and physco to be trusted give us a weapon and we will only kill with it. What good is that?

HAVE PRIDE IF YOU LIVE IN A BIN HAVE PRIDE IF YOU'RE REALLY BIG HAVE PRIDE IF YOU ARE A PIG. (Sesame Street)

anarchy

By ANDREW MASTERSON

The public perception of the average Australian anarchist tends to settle on one of two stereotypes; the acne-blighted student, or the dreadlocked forest feral.

No doubt examples could be found to fit either image, but Joseph Toscano is not one of them. This is curious, given that he is arguably the most prominent anarchist in Victoria today.

He is a broadcaster and writer, and the spokesman for the Anarchist Media Institute. He is 47. He is also a medical doctor with a mortgage and a mobile phone.

"There are two types of people in life, as far as anarchism is concerned," he said. "There are those anarchists who accept society's definition of anarchy, which is that if there are no rulers then there is chaos," he said.

"If those people want to go around wearing As in circles, anarchist badges and put up a bit of graffiti, then that's their problem. It's not our problem."

The community of anarchists in which Dr Toscano moves is different — more socialised and better dressed.

He estimated there are about 15 anarchist organisations operating in Melbourne, including a small community of elderly Spanish migrants who fought with the anarchist forces of the Spanish Civil War in the 1930s. Dr Toscano's group is Libertarian Workers for a Self-Managed Society.

The... he was deeply affected by the wave of social unrest which swept through Europe in that year. It set him thinking, and it set him talking.

Soon, he met up with a small anarchist group, and his youthful passion was honed into political and philosophical appreciation.

He moved to Melbourne in the early '80s, partly because career prospects for young, vocal anarchist doctors in Jo Bjelke-Petersen's Queensland were not exactly fecund with possibilities.

Every Wednesday he does his radio show, and every week he writes his newsletter, all the time maintaining a full-time medical practice. A man with greying hair and beard, and no taste for sloganeering T shirts, cans of spray paint or Sex Pistols songs, you'd never guess his politics if you passed him on the street.

But that's Victoria in 1998: a place where even the anarchists dress conservatively.

FUCK CORPORATE ANARCHISTS, UP THE BUM.

Joseph Toscano is an heirachical elitist who thinks he is far more important than what he actually is.

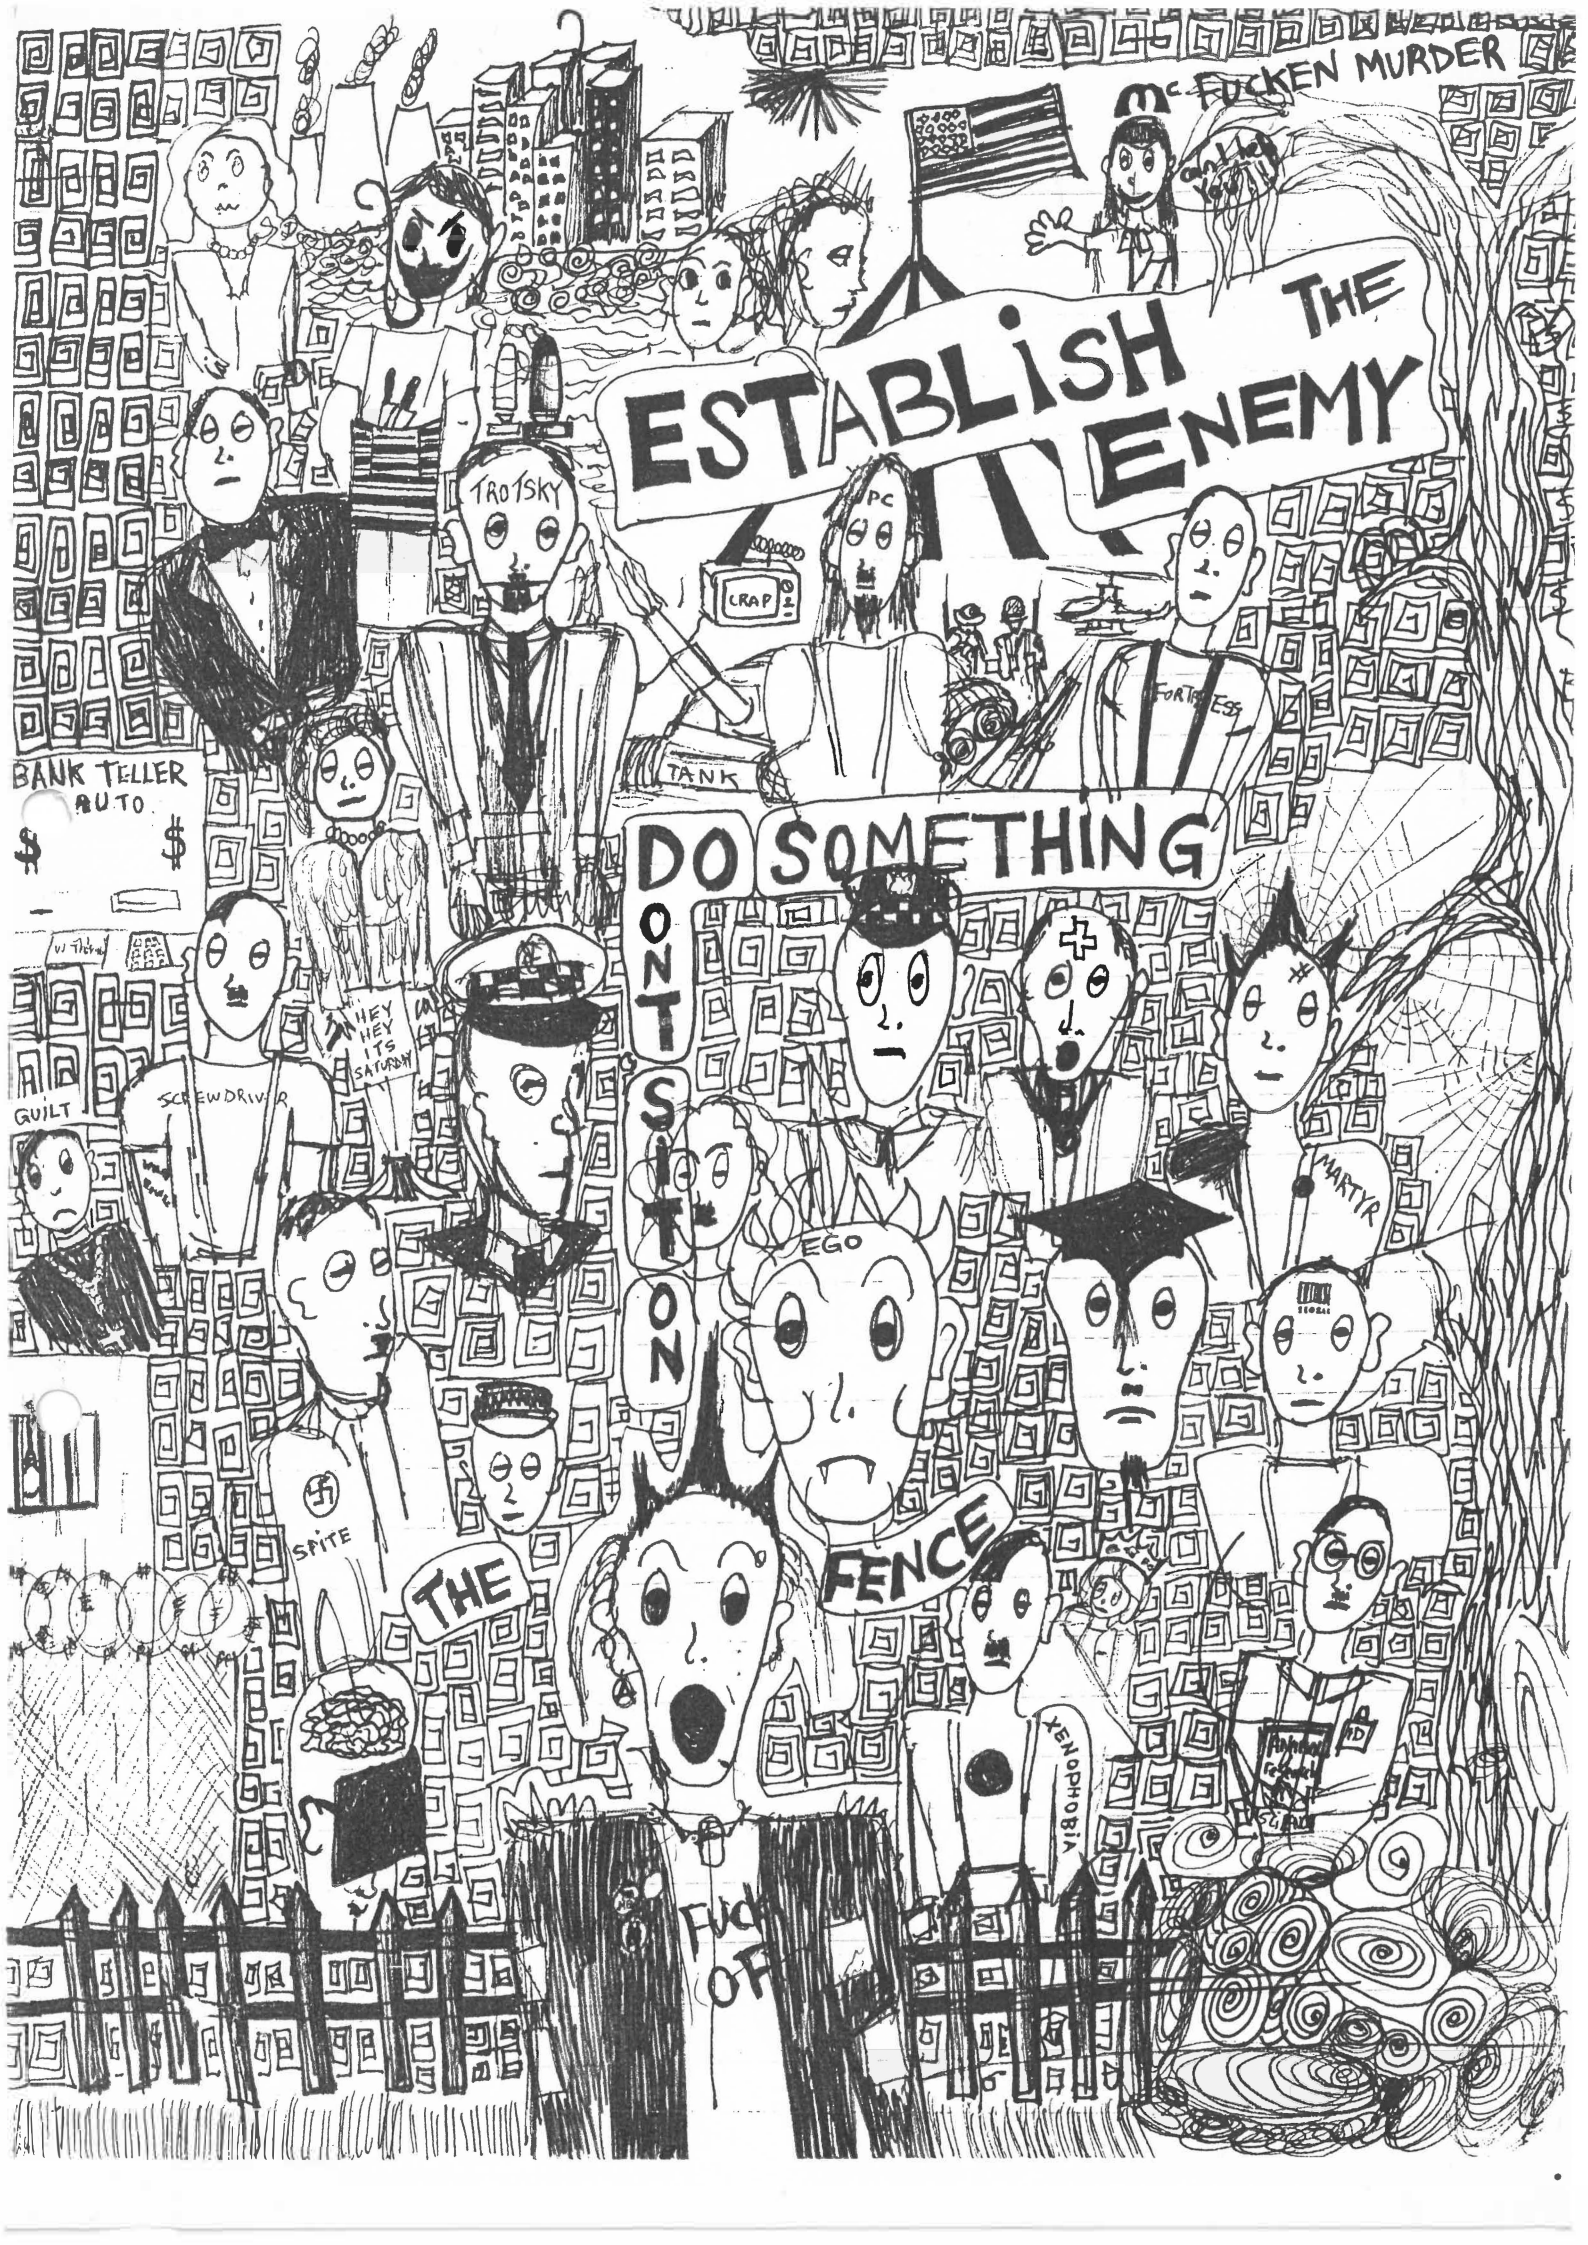

What exactly is your problem?

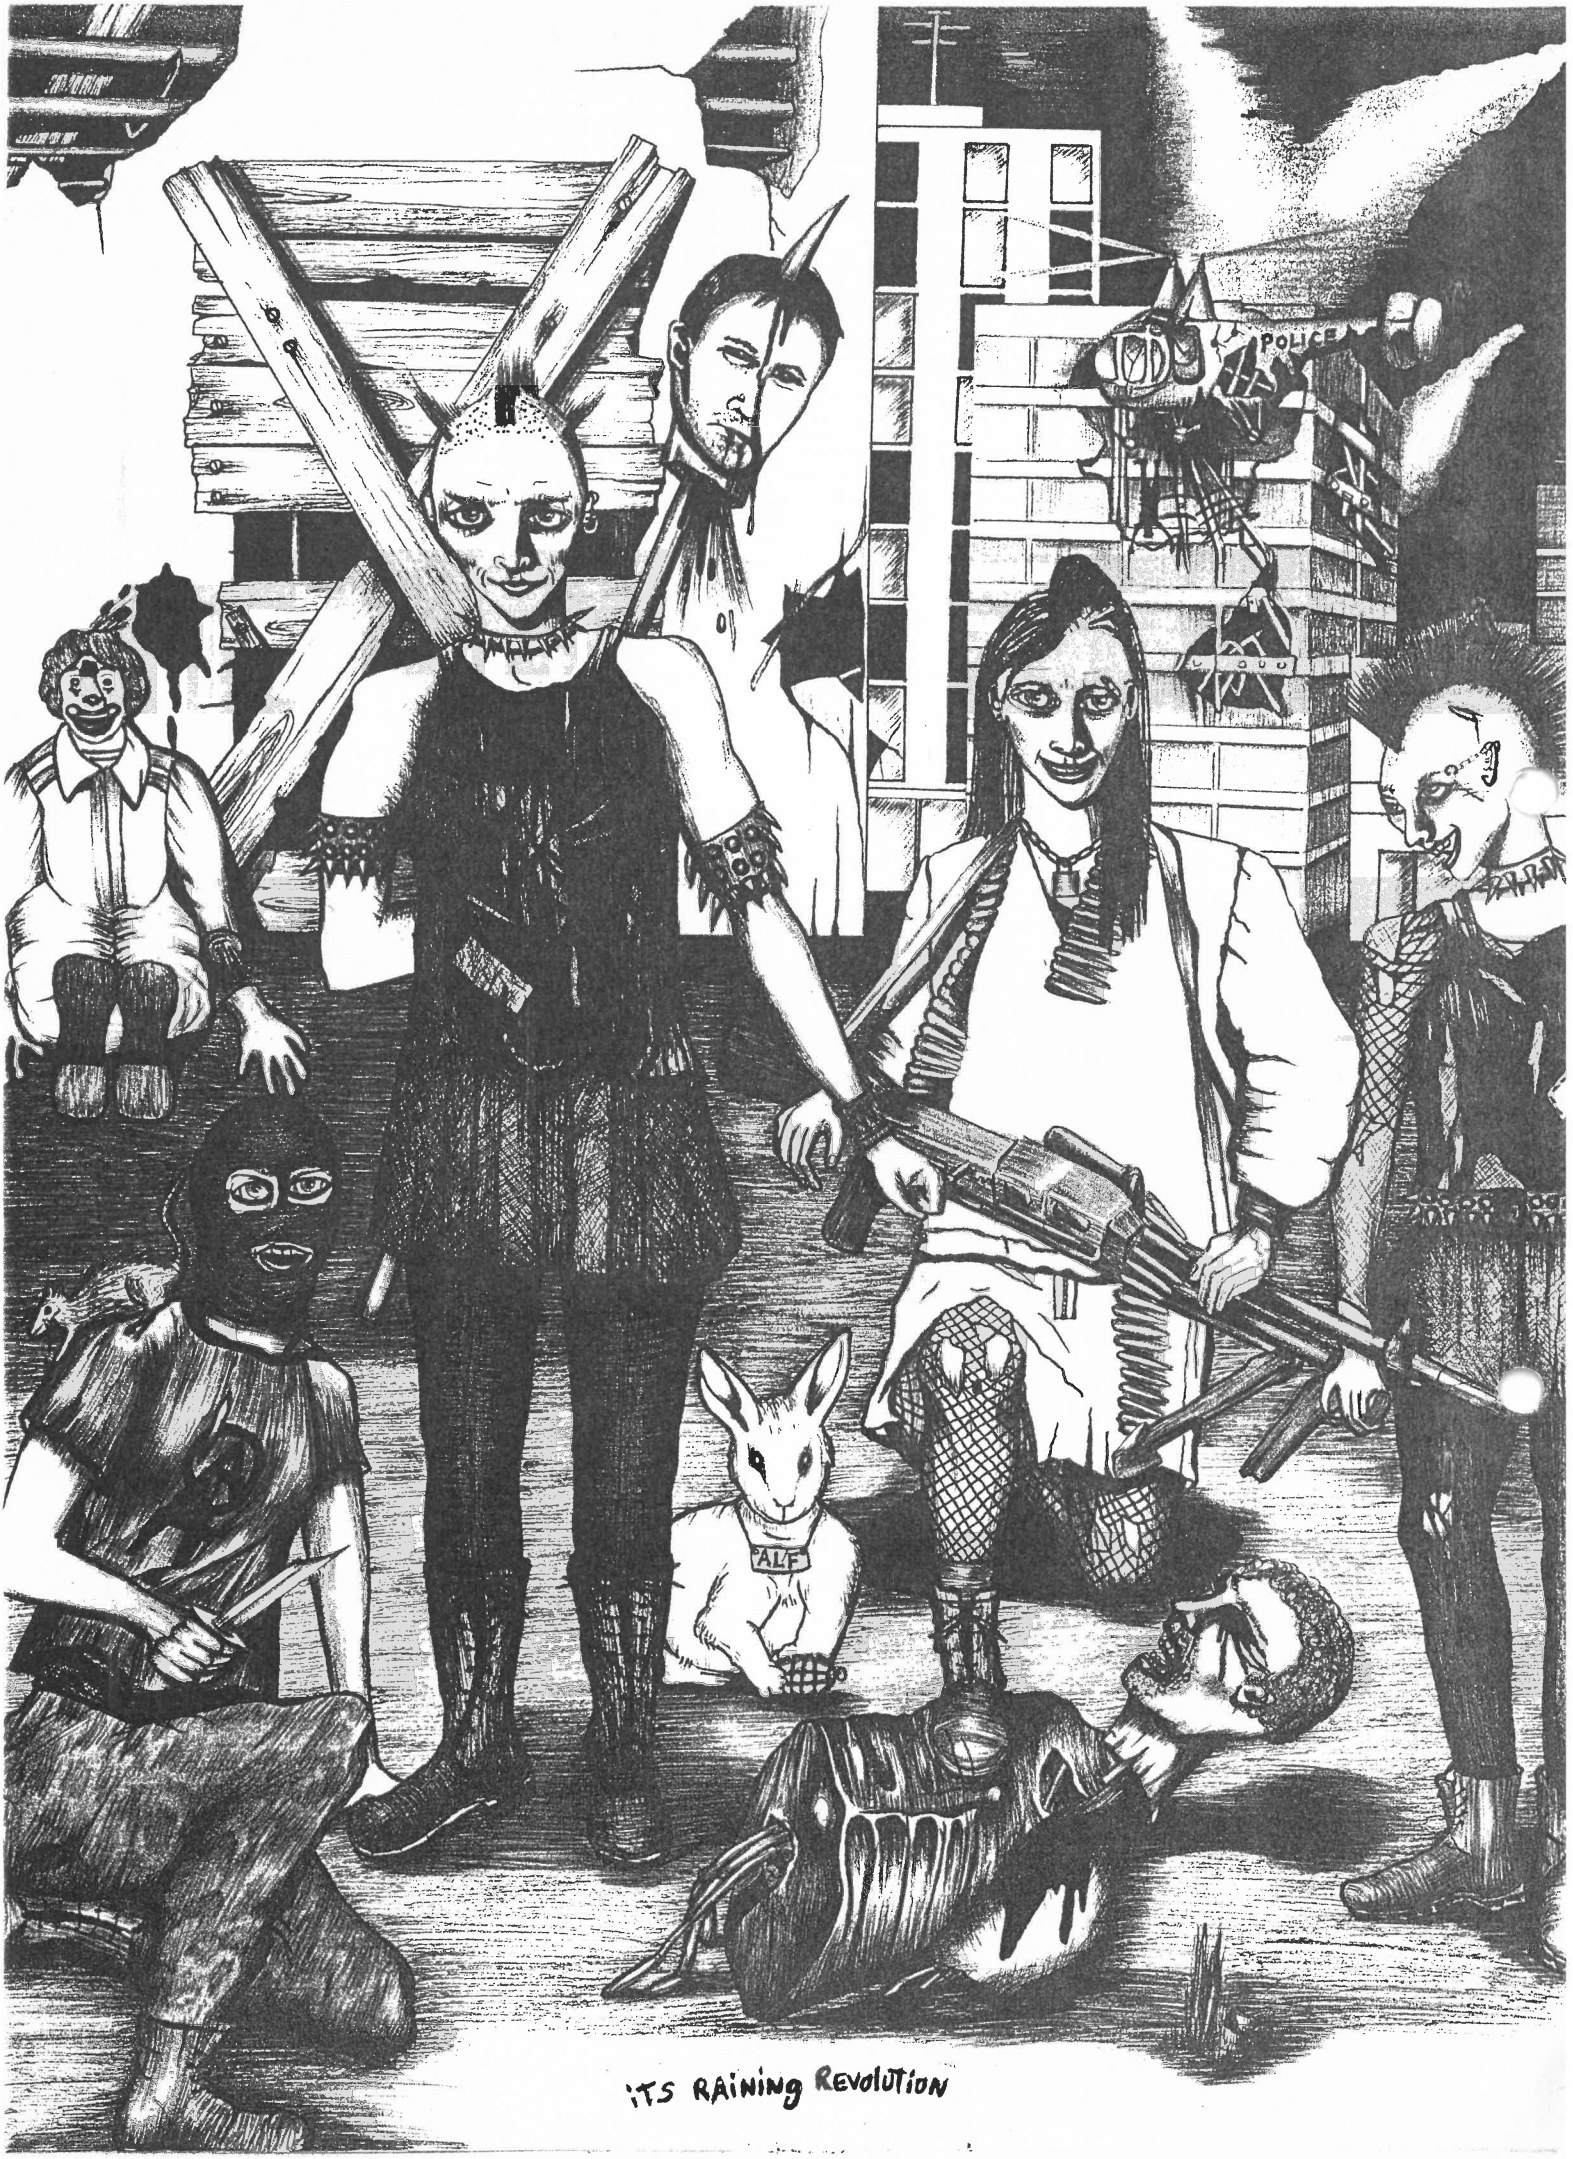

telling us not to take to # rumours or those who didn't tell us of his whereabouts in Sydney 'cos you didn't trust us, that we may go to the coppers. Well just maybe if we all did we could have saved these poor women. "oh yes, but they'll get over it, wont they"# We were so concerned about keeping our community sacred that we only informed political groups, "fuck warning the general public eh". This sicko called himself an anarchist (what a fucking joke) He was aided by the anarchist Black Cross (don't let him tarnish their one mistake they do good things for class struggle, political, anarchist prisoners) more like he decieved and abused their their assistance, and with the support of other anarchists all round Australia ## when he was released from jail he was taken in by the community. He made probably all us women feel uncomfortable but we were powerless to get our "instincts" taken seriously, come on with his cool "class war" reputation he was treated better by you anarchists then fucking I was, he knew "the talk and da revolution history", always impresses ha. He was helped in Sydney and protected from the police by other anarchist. Only a couple, I repeat , couple of us rang the police as soon as we heard he attempted to rape a women and we were dissed. It went so show how we don't think rape is too important, we certainly don't want to go out of the way. For us women we beg to differ and will like to let you men know exactly, Rape is like a crime worst than death, it is FUCKED, so is any abuse to women be it sexual(if a girl says NO, she means it, she is not a prude she just doesn't find you attractive and doesn't want your diseases.) Women are NOT mere cunts for you men to fuck. There is no room for sexism in Anarchy and a sexist Anarchist is a contradiction and should "not" be tolerated. There is NO excuse to ever hit a woman only in self defence. WHY didn't anyone listen, WHY how does noone still want to talk about it. WHY is this silence. We were so new in the community, we didn't know anyone at all. It was actually through him that I got involved and accepted into the majic circle.He could have raped any one of us women . The first place he was at for like a day, where a woman andc child lived, second place was frequented by many women, thirdly in a punk group house with two other women. Then he lived in our group house where there was three of us women and he actually wanted more young women to move in, I mean he would play around with his double bladed knife in front of me. His bedroom was adjacent to mine, we don't know what his intentions were with us if he had the chance and if he did get hold of a gun like he was after. I definately am cautious bout many people now for myself and other women. We women and some men have to stop ## doing things we don't want to and just because its punk behaviour and everyone else ignores it, you don't have to. Some punks use this to their advantage, learn to yell fuck off and don't be scared to kick or punch them back The police too are partly to blame for they never followed up on our phone calls- incompetance, on their behalf. You guys can sit there saying how tough and anarchist you are by never needing the cops. I hate the cops, I hate the state but we have none of our own justice system and especially for some of us women and men who are not physically strong, sometimes we will need their assistance, How dare you deprive us of that. Can you be there for us in an emergency? I think the woman who was nearly raped in Melbourne would have full on proccessed the charge if she had our support instead we accused her for calling the cops. You know he had a book in his possession "Why men rape". And some of you were more interested in his letters like he was some cool terrorist even though he admitted what he had done in one of the few he had posted to me. He sent his bank card, pin number, dole info info, mobile together with instructions to access his account and keep it going don't forget his hell easy signature, all so when he jumped parole to Sydney he could rape and adduct and torture who knows how many women, and he'd have gotton off because he could prove he was still in melbourn cos his accounts were still being used. I truly do believe he was planning this for a long time, maybe when he was still in prison and even though you all said he wouldn't come back, what the fuck made you so sure. We had changed all our locks and added new ones and became more security concious and we were treated as paranoid. He had wrote in his letter that someone will pick up one of his letters. You know whats scary is if one of us girls without any "social standing" or "credability" were raped by him or even if it happened now would you believe us? SCARES THE SHIT OUT OF ME. FUCK OFF to all you creepy men who treat us only as sexual objects not as people. Anarchists totally, we should be ashamed but more importantly we we should learn from this experiance and not let it happen again but I know too well that it will.....

Anyway enjoy the zine or get angry at, whatever. 1998 has already started and I've promised myself that after I get this fucking zine out of my life, I will ease up on activism maybe totally for awhile, THere is always someone out there why should i be, its not as if i do much anyway but it is a stress and a burden. I know people have no idea how much work some of us put into fighting the system, I'm not superman and I can't change the world. How can I fight for others when It's hard enough fighting for myself. I have NO money, every spare cent has gone into this. I'm just gonna focus on my music and try activly being of use there. Maybe I'll do another zine in a couple of years and it will be positive liberal hippy shit...NAH.

ITS RAINING REVOLUTION

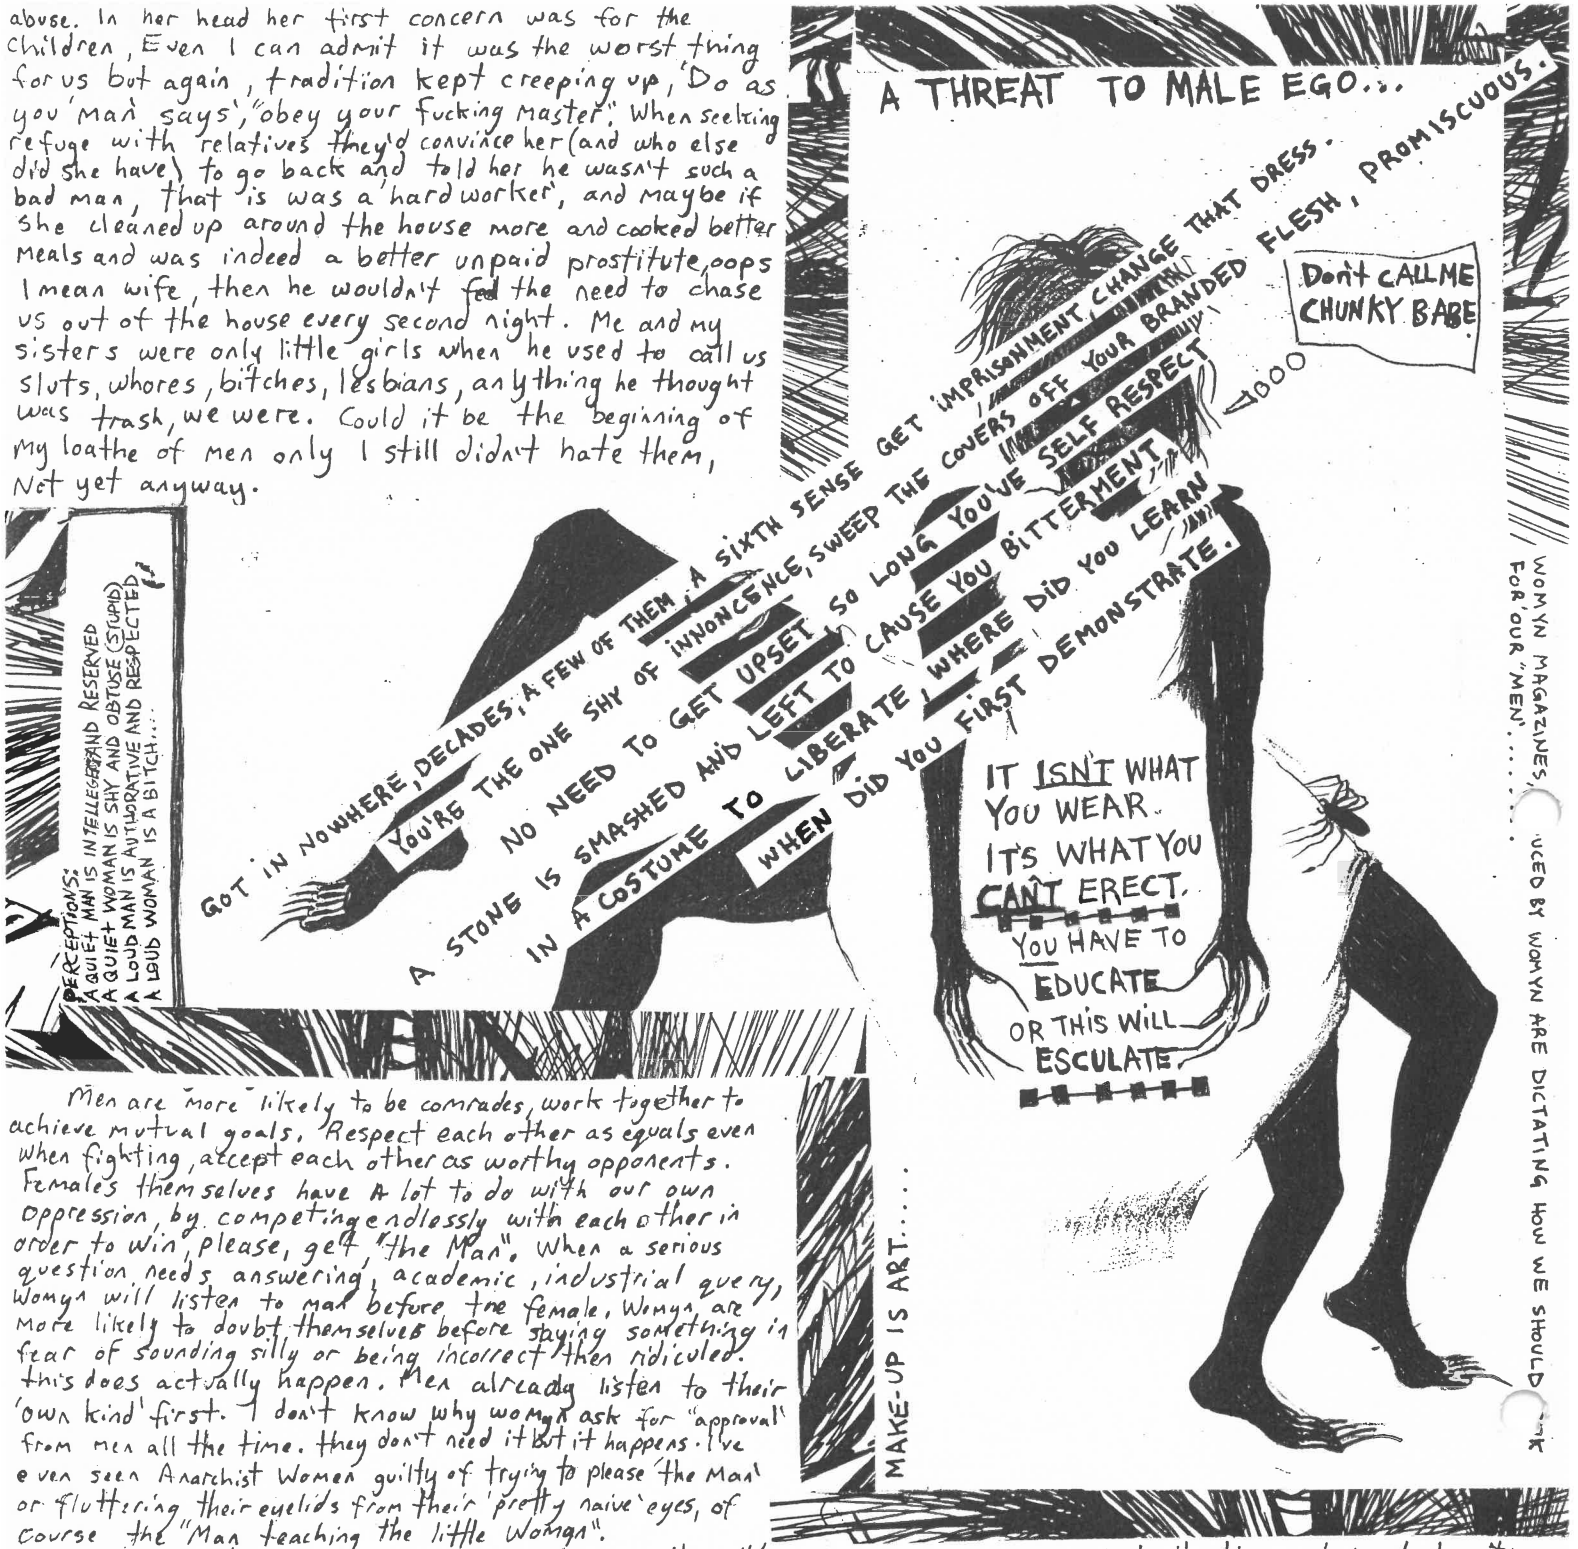

As much as it is a million Times easier being a female in The 90's Then any other Time in History, New pressures are placed on Womyn. The "Womyns Revolution" of The, what was it 60's, or 70's who can really Tell, may have steered Womyn To independance and basic rights formerly inconceivable but now we have To not only be successful, creative and intellegent, We still have To be 'Fuckable'. As seen on glossy magazines and T.V we are "still" slaves to Male needs.' I don't know', it's weird because every womyn is different with different ideas, These are my sole opinions, observations and criticisms. If you have a problem with it write your own fucking article Anyway I've been subjecting myself To a bit of Tele ately and have been noticing female role plays To be changing. Womyn are appearing bolder and more powerful Then ever as oppossed To The good little housewife idekick roles. (Though This is a mass character Trait still too prevalent in reality as I see it.). To a great degree gender roles have reversed which I don't neccessarily agree too much in Womyn having to act like men To be powerful, that itself defeats the purpose of Feminism. It's like taking Womyn who wear pants and have short hair, no makeup more seriously but put her in a short skirt and a bit of eyeliner then she's percieved less brain worthy, more an object to such extent she is now sexual and obviously not interested in anything but perfume and shoes. It is true a lot of womyn only do think about clothes and hair and shit, I personally have no time for those discussions as they are irrellevant and products of consumerism, the fact I have no money even to buy new undies makes many other dilemas truly a waste of time anyway Many womyn forget it doesn't matter how they dress or look men will still treat them as sexual objects, brainless Fucking machines. the promiscuous womyn is no lesser then the tomboy who hangs out with the guys, No lesser as in people/Womyn that is, just manipulated victims of an incredibly sexist/regressive society. Maybe if Womyn and girls weren't subjected to so much anti-female propoganda everyday of our lives. Everything from glossy magazine anorexics, Hollywood Bimbos, Soapie tarts, Barbie Dolls (I had barbies but I also played with matchbox cars). Everywhere Women are presented like soft porn startletts. Men on the streets, Stupid men saying personality is most important while holding hands with their skinny blondes. Everything affects us. Everything has an adverse influence over us in some way be it direct or subliminal. there is always someone to tell us we are wrong, we are evil, we are ugly or dangerous. Womyn are always at the bottom of everything that fails yet we are responsible for making everything work. Womyn are even set out to destroy each other and hate each other. WHERE IS THE PROGRESS? . . . . . .

I've been aware of sexism and all that shit since I was a kid ever since I could remember. I was not 'popular' at school, I was not 'pretty', I don't think I was thought of as a female, more a tomboy or Weirdo even though I still played girlie games and had crushes on pop stars and that. My first real lesson of sexism and the plight of female struggle was via my alcoholic father who endlessly to her death, abused and mistreated my mother and her children. Domestic Violence is a male perpetrated 'Disease' (very few womyn are the instigators). A crime still hidden away from the public eye even though it happens to the general public be it Working Class, Middle Class, Black, white or yellow. My fathers overwhelming dominance over my mother crushed me watching the tiresome suffering, myself also inflicted by my fathers phycological violence. As all cases its frustrating greeted with a "Why didn't she just leave him", "there's places she can get help", and all the other/same comments I'd made myself. She did try to leave many times, staying in refuges where although she was among other womyn, victims of the same crimes, She felt (uncomfortably) numb and isolated as an ethnic womyn with different traditions, from a different culture to Anglo Aussie housewives. She felt her place was going back for more abuse. In her head her first concern was for the children, Even I can admit it was the worst thing for us but again, tradition kept creeping up, 'Do as you 'man' says', "obey your fucking master." When seeking refuge with relatives they'd convince her (and who else did she have) to go back and told her he wasn't such a bad man, that is was a 'hard worker', and maybe if she cleaned up around the house more and cooked better meals and was indeed a better unpaid prostitute, oops I mean wife, then he wouldn't feel the need to chase us out of the house every second night. Me and my sisters were only little girls when he used to call us sluts, whores, bitches, lesbians, anything he thought was trash, we were. Could it be the beginning of my loathe of men only I still didn't hate them, Not yet anyway.

Men are more likely to be comrades, work together to achieve mutual goals. Respect each other as equals even when fighting, accept each other as worthy opponents. Females themselves have A lot to do with our own oppression, by competing endlessly with each other in order to win, please, get "the Man". When a serious question needs answering, academic, industrial query, Womyn will listen to man before the female. Womyn are more likely to doubt themselves before saying something in fear of sounding silly or being incorrect then ridiculed. this does actually happen. Men already listen to their 'own kind' first. I don't know why womyn ask for "approval" from men all the time. they don't need it but it happens. I've even seen Anarchist Women guilty of trying to please 'the Man' or fluttering their eyelids from their 'pretty naive' eyes, of course the "Man teaching the little Womyn".

I used to want to be a man because I thought then I'd be strong and powerful and cool. Males are always portrayed so much better than womyn in movies. they do more, they move, have more action scenes. the men are always the serious musicians, they play the phallic guitar. Even Womyn in Rock and Punk are still more likely to be attractive and address seductive, fuck if they have any actual talent, where as men can be as ordinary, vulgar and boring as they bloody like. Womyn in movies never get to do the exciting stuff and by their looks alone, are so unacheivable. the guys get to have all the fun. It's taken me a long, long hardship of a time to realise and be grateful to be a womyn. Fuck I mean what was I thinking? Men only get to be Superheros on TV and film. It's not real. In reality they are pathetic. I physically confront men and am no longer intimidated by their 'male Ego' (except when I walk around late at night about through dark alleys, when I become 'aware' not fearful) I'm not a 'Man Hater', I used to be a 'womyn hater', but it's now I see and realise how Fucking Weak, Frail and insecure the 'MAN' really is.

I've been in many violent situations and I've stood up to the male perpetorator and recieved no support from other men who are mostly too afraid to intervene because there is more likely to be a "punch up", you know They'd have to do the macho thing and protect the Womyn, But they might get hurt. This runs in their heads while I am punched in the head, Most men forget that most other men have no problem being violent against womyn but they stop at hitting out at men out of mutual fighting capability fear or something.

What is expected from a man is assertive for a womyn, I understand there are differences in the sexes but if it's genetic or enviroment that is hard to discifer. Womyn are generally more intellegent of course. We are less likely to put on bravado, less likely to go to War to kill more likely to heal. In physical fights or punch ups, I know in the situations after the damage I accept the consequences of my actions, but am more likely (but not always) to explain myself and look to console and reminder and lift myself from the pits of my actions where as men can beat the shit out of someone, be respected, revered, seen as God hero and placed on a pedastood. Mens' feelings however are rarely on display though I can bet that they are probably feeling just as low as I am for having used violence as a solution.

I mean who 'really' likes to see someone beat up and bleeding on the ground. If you say you do you are also likely to be immature, consequently everyone has their limitations I guess and 'everyone' has a breaking point.

Why do girls turn away and scream at the sight of gore and blood in Horror movies while the guys sit around chewing popcorn, laughing. Must be because women are portrayed in such a demeaning, violent way. Its not because of the blood at all as we bleed every fucking month and have babies, would be ironic then. Social influenced behaviour, Men are stronger than Womyn! I think not. Physically my mum was amazingly strong, maybe not as strong as my father but certainly stronger than a lot of men I know. But she used physicall strenghth to lift things not to flex her muscles and show off.

I want to know why if I don't give emotional support or if I'm not motherly to men and their cause or understanding to other females I am then called insensative and if I physically defend myself or fight then I have an aggression problem. Maybe I just don't take shit to well anymore and if someone is in my War Path they shouldn't have been there in the first place. While men are allowed to brag about their victories Women are ignored of their own. Maybe it is because its mens duty to fight and defend their honour Ummm Right! Ok. I know they treat my stories of conflict mildly in comparrison I mean really what kind of a threat could a womyn possibly be? Maybe Men enjoy to be the Aggressor and the perpetrators of violence. Again Men are less likely threatened by Womyn, speaking from experiance, In my many attempts warding of arsholes or confronting them at demos or when I'm watching bands or even when I'm waiting for my train (Yes be alert at all times) Men are not scared of me, they don't take my warnings seriously. they either laugh at me or abuse me, they don't back off. And when I do kick, punch or bottle them they're surprised and seriously stunned until they punch me back of course. I've been as aggro as men before but scorned at by fellow anarchists while they later laugh off similiar behaviour by males as its part of their character, I think all people have to learn to get use to seeing the aggressive even 'ugly' side of Womyn becaus its the new revolution as far as I'm concerned, First Womyn decided to shed the chains of restraint by men now I reckon it's time to beat them senseless. Only joking or am I. In the end Men have no problem hurting Womyn. I can accept fair battles but I've heard men justify their means for wanting to punch up a womyn as he is not sexist so will treat her like a man. Other men I've see n calling womyn on F.V, stupid tarts and Fucking Cunts, Sure but why always knock down the Womyn.

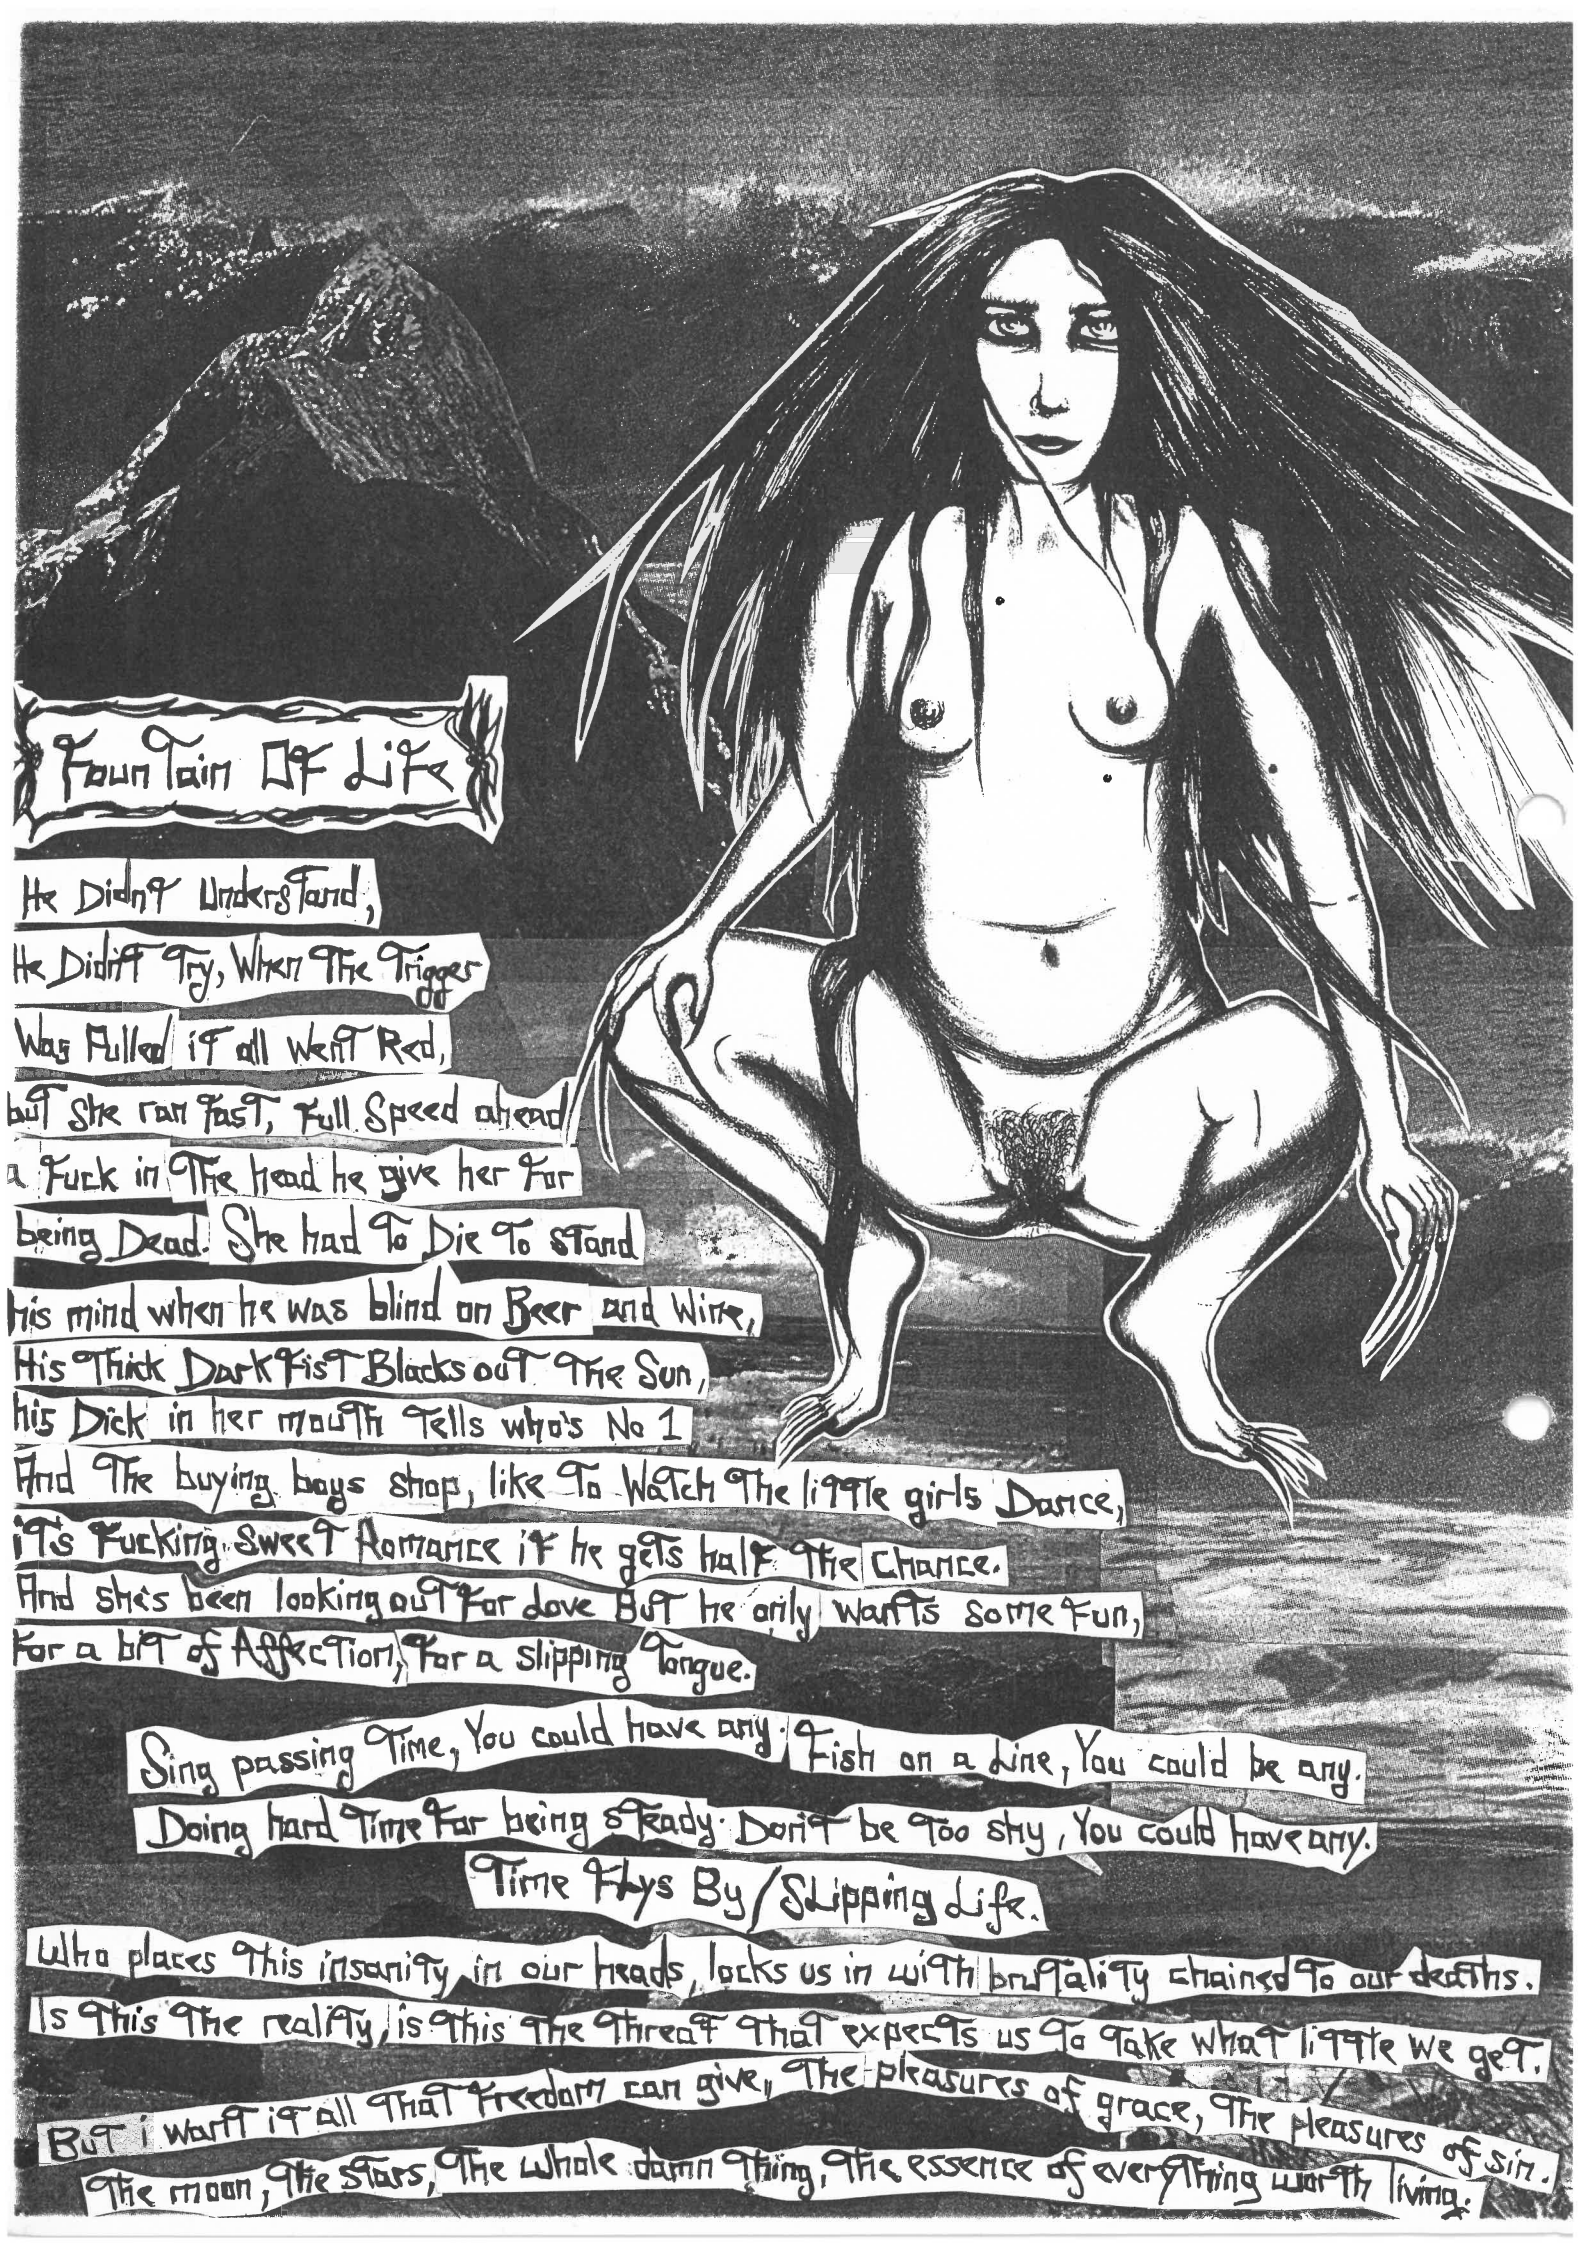

You Fucking Anarchist Males are sometimes no different t sexist yobbos, When it comes to female issues most of you turn off for instance if you're male and still reading this far then it is a pleasant surprise as there are many of you who think you are already experts of feminism that you don't need to read any female written material unless of course it has a semi naked ZHENA Warrior princess on the cover or a lot of vulgar words.

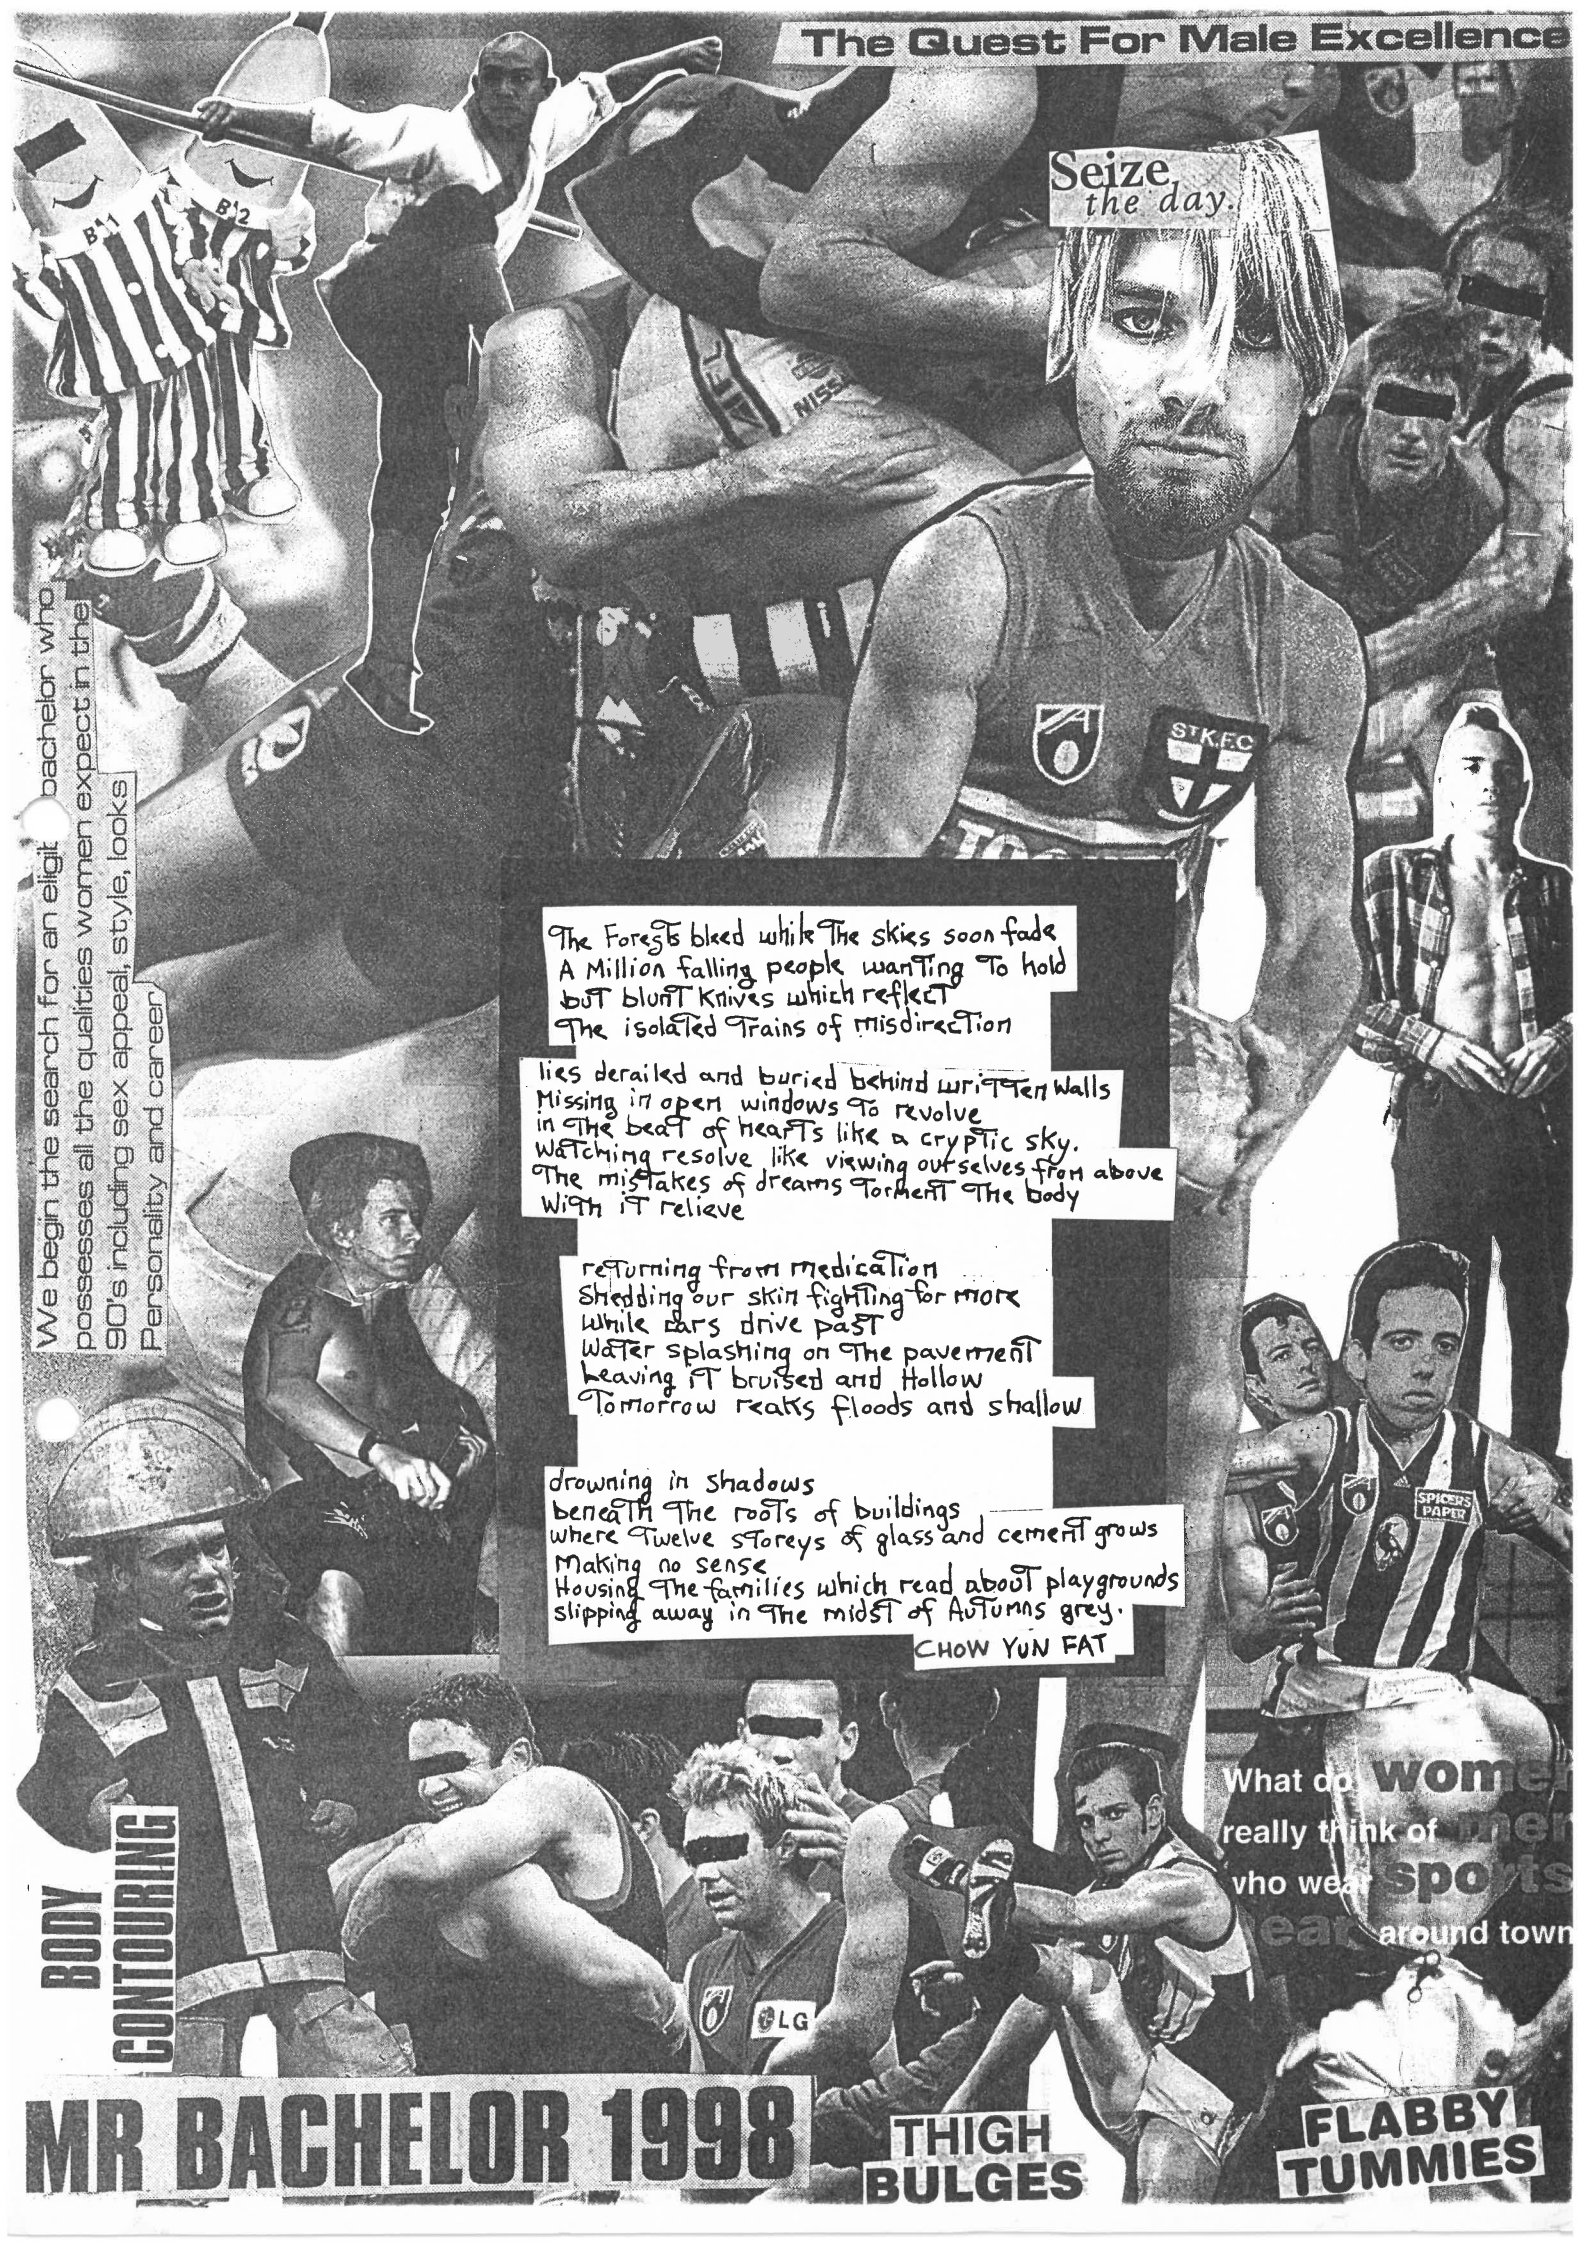

All I want is to be treated as an equal-fairly. I'm on a quest for freedom, I don't need to spend my tim wasted having to deal or accept sexist attitude and comme to be pulled down by both womyn and MEN!

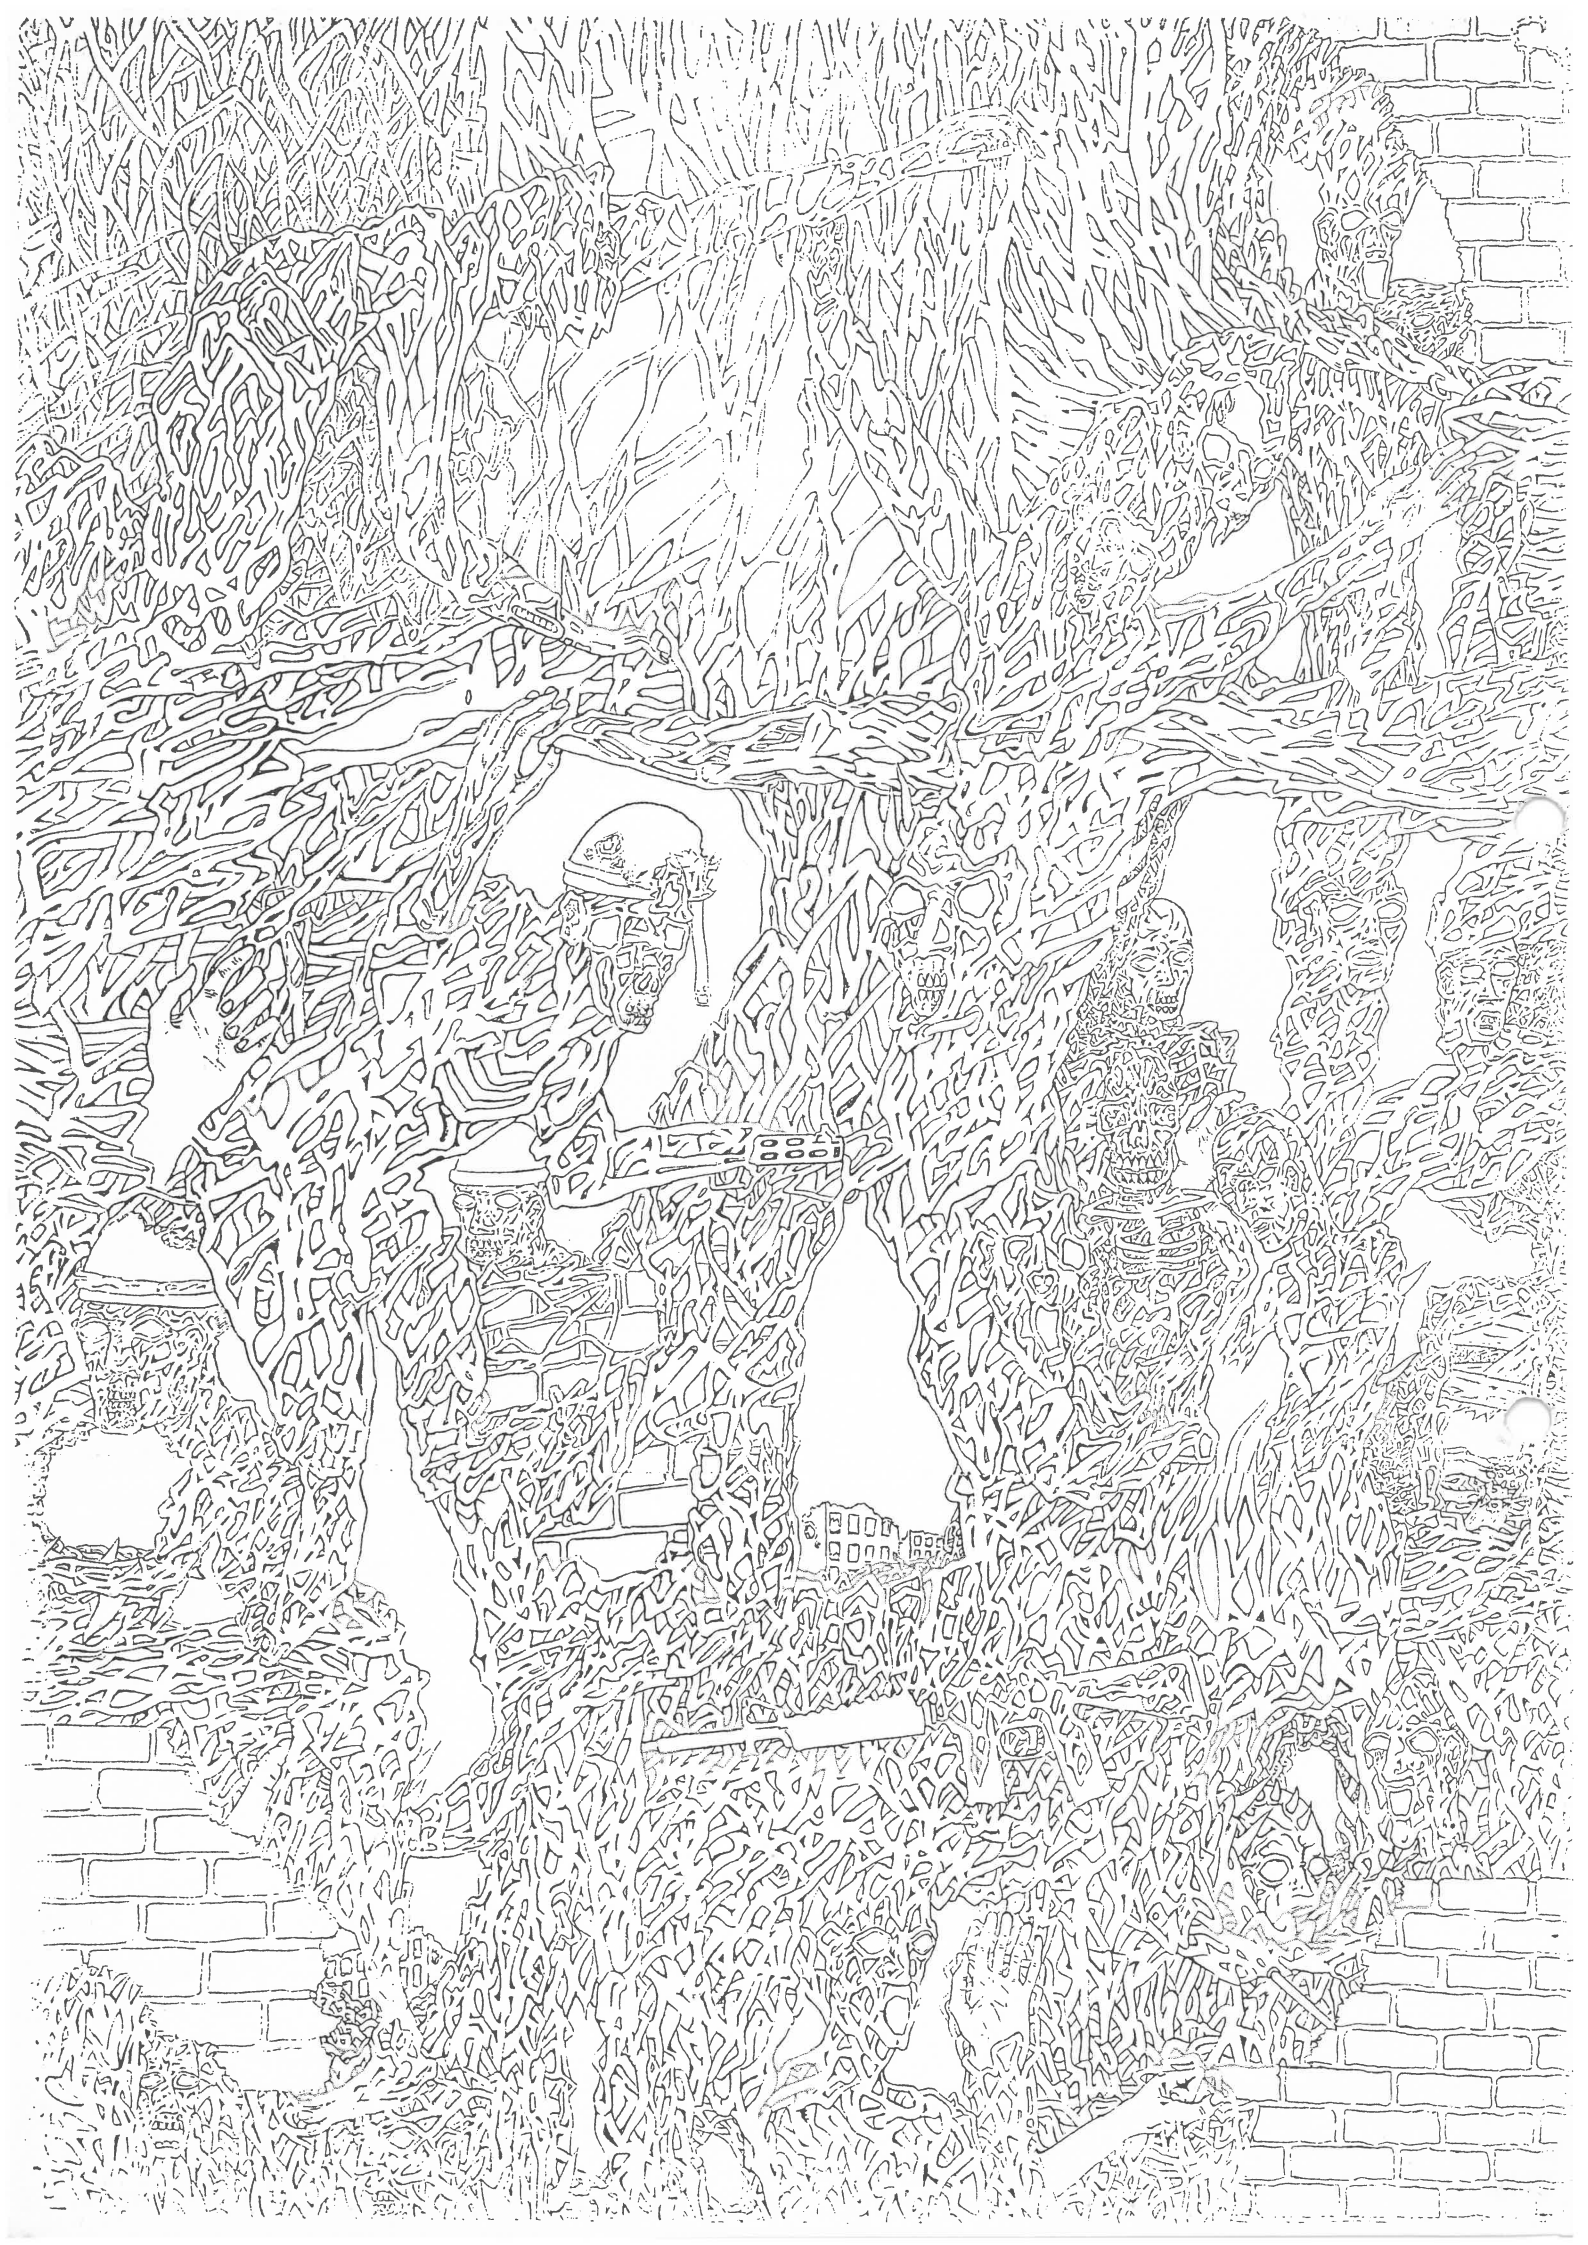

Cheers to All Womyn who liberate, we Rule Tha World (HA HA)

Thalidomide: little Georgina tests the generation gap $$$

By JUDITH WHELAN
in London

When Glenn and Deborah Harrison were expecting their third child, they were confident the baby would be as healthy as its two brothers.

Mrs Harrison had a scan at 20 weeks which could not detect the foetus's arms and legs. But the technician who conducted a second scan a week later reassured the parents everything was there, even fingers and toes.

So when Georgina was born without feet and with arms and hands badly deformed, the couple were astounded. "We couldn't believe it. It was like a bolt of lightning," said Mr Harrison.

Georgina's deformities mirrored his own. Mr Harrison, 36, was a thalidomide baby. His mother had taken the drug to counter morning sickness in the first three months of her pregnancy, before it was known that it could cause deformities.

Like other such children born in the early 1960s in Britain, Mr Harrison won an out-of-court settlement arranged on behalf of the victims with Distillers, the umbrella company of the manufacturers of thalidomide.

Because the case for compensation never reached court, the company which manufactured thalidomide has never admitted public liability for the drug's effects. Nor has it been admitted publicly by Guinness, the company which bought out Distillers in 1986 and now handles compensation claims.

This week the Harrisons, of Lincolnshire in Britain, lodged the first ever claim with Guinness for compensation for a second-generation thalidomide victim. They are convinced Georgina's deformities are the result of Mr Harrison's mother taking thalidomide while pregnant with him. That their two sons, Thalidomide was extensively tested in animals and "apparently" safe for human consumption until pregnant women who had taken the drug to counter morning sickness gave birth to severly deformed children. After thalidomides disaster, animal tests multiplied as a consequence so to did the number of trajic human malformations. Thalidomide has now been passed down to a second generation and amazingly the drug is about to be re-introduced back on to the market to combat leprosy. Go figure, I guess we humins NEVER learn.

Reviled drug goes into rehab

NEW SCUENTIST 13/9/1997 P.5.

THALIDOMIDE may be about to make a comeback. An expert panel advising the US Food and Drug Administration (FDA) has proposed that the notorious drug should be approved as a treatment for leprosy.

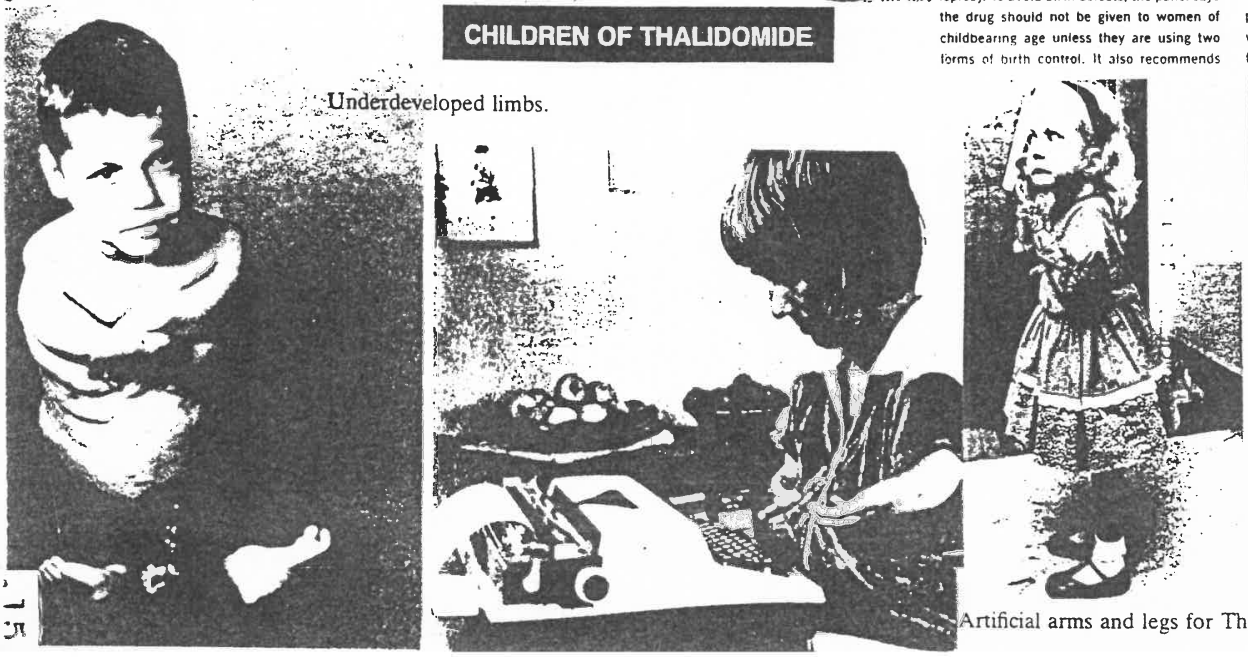

The drug caused terrible birth defects when pregnant women took it to combat morning sickness. But now it is being tested in the US against leprosy, tuberculosis, AIDS-related wasting and mouth ulcers—which are serious in patients with damaged immune systems.

The FDA's Dermatologic and Opthalmic Drugs Advisory Committee has ruled that results from trials justify its use to treat leprosy. To avoid birth defects, the panel says the drug should not be given to women of childbearing age unless they are using two forms of birth control. It also recommends that, before the drug is used, doctors and patients should study educational material, including pictures of babies with birth defects. Finally, it wants to outlaw the use of thalidomide to treat anything other than leprosy, except as part of a clinical trial. If the FDA follows these suggestions, says Murray Lumpkin, deputy director of the FDA's Center for Drug Evaluation and Research, thalidomide "would be the most restricted drug ever".

But the panel's last suggestion could prove to be a problem. Usually, once a drug is approved for one use, doctors can prescribe it for anything they like. Lumpkin says he is not sure if the FDA has the authority to prevent "off label" uses. He says that agency will investigate this issue before making a final decision, in several months' time.

NO PROFIT IN THE CURE

As in the case of Thalidomide, a morning sickness drug that was deemed safe through extensive Animal testing and then later prescribed to pregnant women only for them to give birth to severly deformed children, Drugs tested on Animals will tell us absolutely 'nothing' about the effects it'll have on human beings. If Animals are NOT medically/biologically same as humans then it is pointless to torture them in 'the name of science'. For what may lower blood pressure in a Rat may raise it in a human. The result will conclusively 'never' be accurate enogh to hold any validity to it, only through human trial will we know for sure what effect and worth a drug or substance will have on us (obviously). But if we are then biologically the same as Animal species then how can we bring ourselves to have Animals suffer for the things we humans do, for the diseases humans get. Where is the moral? What ethic allows us to making other living creatures live in such pain without reason eh? "Who am I kidding?""What,think humans care","think our race has feeling?"," Yeah right! We only have to see ourselves and our own behaviour for example. We go to War and kill people over borderlines, we let people starve to death, we turn a blind eye to 3rd World poverty starvation, to the homeless kids. We kill each other for greed, for power, by accident. We rape, we punish, we incarcarate, we isolate, we rule over,,,,,,, How possibly can we treat Animals with any humility when we don't know what it means, when we can't treat each other this way? It is so blatently clear why vivisection is FRAUD, is INSANE and is unnescessarily accepted. You only have to see a picture of an experimented monkey screaming in terror. Each time I look at these pictures and read the underlines, I am physically sick to the stomach, I feel so useless and lost in how to stop this fucken madness. I think human beings have a responsibility to look after each other but to also protect the rights of Animals and protect the enviroment in which we sit ourselves in. There is NO human advancement through Animal research. Like these bastards have 'never' produced a single concrete advance either in the prevention or treatment in human cancer. Most chemotherapeutic agents that are valuable in treating human cancer were found in a clinical manner rather than in Animal studies. Many substances which cause cancer in humans are marketed as 'safe' on the basis of Animal tests and these products of the pharmaceutical-petro-chemical industry are legalised on the basis of mis leading Animal experiments. Diseases such as cancer are mostly caused by lifestyle and enviromental factors anyway like pollution, chemicals, diet, smoking,stress. Animals continue to be sacrificed in the search for wondercures for our own ego, greed and stupidity. More human lives could be saved and more suffering spared by educating people on the importance of avoiding fat and cholesteral (meat and dairy), quitting smoking, reducing alcohol and other drug consumption, exercising regularily, riding bycicles instead of driving cars and cleaning up the enviroment than by all Animal testing in the World. Throughout the 19th century the decline of death rates through infectious diseases were NOT via the results of new drug drugs, surgical techniques or vaccines but were in fact a result in better hygiene, improvements in water supplies, sewage facilities, food supplies, housing conditions,

Generally prevention is the key. There is even simple evidence now to suggest that the development of the AIDS virus was originally a result of Animal experiments performed by research scientists messing around with viruses and lab Animals.I've heard theories that ther is actually a cure for cancer but there is NO profit in it as there is in Animal research which is a billion dallar industry funded by tax dollars and charity donation paying for thousands of phycopathical, arrogent, slimey, perverted conmen ie. Animal research teams all around the World. The sicker we are the more someone will be making money off us. In our quest for longevity we consume and pay for drugs and miracles with our lives. As with chemo. to cure you they gotta kill a little bit of you also. Society is killing itself faster through man made disaster and disease through Animal tested phoney cures that will in turn become new diseases, a crazy cycle of repetition experimentation for the sake of passing an exam, achieving a certificate when Animals are treated with no more feeling than a piece of cardboard.
We support these sickos everytime we buy an Animal tested product be it cans of spray paint, cosmetics, polishes, hairsprays, drugs, weed killers, oven cleaners, detergents, panadols. Each time we hop into our cars, puff on our ciggies, eat that Mcmurder dead cow burger or abuse our bodies in any way. There is NO NEED TO HURT ANIMALS SO BADLY and later say it's for the sake of us and our children (we ain't that dumd)," We don't need this bullshit guilt trip propoganda, so you may say but fuck it if I'm going to be sensitive to your needs when others are suffering so much.
Vivisectors are fucking cunts who deserve to die. If you think you can talk logic with them then good luck as they are illogical as you can get. They've no sense, they've no feeling and no fucken brains. Ithink that it is humans that are the final experiment.

CAN YOU TELL THE DIFFERENCE?

RODENTS (MICE/RATS)

(the most commonly used laboratory animals)

. Plaque (fatty deposits) are deposited in the liver.
. 3-year life span requires massive doses for drug/product testing - more than human will ever use.
. Imuran (immunosuppressive) causes birth defects in mice.
. Manufacture Vitamin C in their bodies.
. Lysodren (cancer Chemotherapy) does not cause kidney damage in rodents.
. Continual pregnancy healthier for rodents.
. Hypersensitive to chlorine in minute doses.
. Manufacture Vitamin B in the appendix.
. Myambutol (TB antibiotic) cause birth defects in mice.
0. Eliminate drugs from the body in 3 hours (faster elimination reduces drug danger)
1. Thymidine shrinks tumors in mice
2. Catapress (anti-hypertensive) causes retinal degeneration in rats.
3. Can't tolerate more than 15 minutes of direct sunlight.
4. Chloroform toxic to mice in minute doses.
5. Obtain Vitamin D by licking their own fur.
6. Moban (tranquilizer) causes breast tumors in mice.
7. Specially bred for laboratory studies. Live in a controlled, sterile environment. Majority of diseases induced through genetic breeding (tumors and genetic defects), or from parasitic infections.
3. Rats have no gall bladder. Digest fats differently.
9. Require 3½ times more protein than humans.
0. Thalidomide (tranquilizer) does not cause similar birth defects in rats to those in humans.
1. Meclazine (for travel sickness) causes birth defects in rats.
2. Coumarin (blood thinner) causes liver damage in rodents.

DOGS

. Oral contraceptives prolong blood-clotting times.
. Chloramphenicol does not cause the fatal blood disease aplastic anaemia in dogs.
. Dogs do not need to have Vitamin C added to their diet as they produce it themselves.
. Anticancer drug Azuridine causes lethal bone marrow depression in dogs after only 7-10 days.
. Aspirin causes birth defects in dogs.
. Arthritis drug Ibufenac does not cause liver damage in dogs.
. Anticancer drug Mitoxantrone does not affect the heart.
. The body chemical acetylcholine dilates the coronary arteries.
. Muscle relaxant drug d-tubocurarine causes severe fall in blood pressure.
0. Relatively high doses of isoprenaline are safe for dogs.
1. The arthritis drug Fenclozic acid has no effect on dog's liver.
2. Dogs take 30 minutes to metabolise the toxic drug oxyphenbutazone (faster elimination from the body reduces the danger).
3. Digitalis for treating cardiopathies raises the blood pressure of dogs.
4. Chloroform is poisonous to dogs.

HUMANS

1. Plaque (fatty deposits) are deposited in the blood vessels (leading to stroke and heart disease)
2. 72+ life span and consume drugs and chemicals in minute doses over a lifetime.
3. Imuran does not cause birth defects in humans.
4. Can only obtain Vitamin C through the diet.
5. Lysodren causes kidney damage in humans.
6. Continual pregnancy in humans leads to nutritional depletion and disease.
7. Can stand chlorine in much larger doses
8. Manufacture Vitamin B in the liver.
9. Myambutol does not cause birth defects in humans.

"In spite of their scientific value, animal tests of medications have remained totally fruitless in the treatment of diseases, and the practicing physician hasn't learned anything useful for his patients that he didn't know fifty years ago." (Prof. Dr. Felix von Niemeyer. Germany's most respected medical authority at the turn of the century, in his manual, Handbuch der praktischen Medizin.)

(3) Dazed chimp is studied for effects of isolation after Dr. Harry F. Harlow of the University of Wisconsin's Primate Center had hit on a novel idea: he took 56 newborn chimps away from their mothers and kept each one in complete isolation for periods of up to 8 years, some in total darkness, for a study on "love" (sic). "The animal may chew and tear at its body until it bleeds," Dr. Harlow reported, after observing his charges through a one-way screen.

(1) "Scientific" achievement: This chimp sadly waits for his release by death, after laboratory artists managed to cause him to contract syphilis, which normally doesn't occur in the animal world.

MYSTERY CASE No. 13

One more monument to human greed, idiocy and sadism.

(1) The Comparative Pathology Bulletin (May 1982) ran this photo as "Mystery Case No. 13" and asked readers to guess what brought the monkey, who was so deformed as to be unidentifiable, to such a sorry state. One clue was given: "environmental pollutant." Readers were invited to turn to page 5 for the answer.

It turned out that the monkey had been exposed to Dioxin by James Allen and fellow researchers at the Wisconsin Primate Center, Madison, Wisconsin, USA. Dioxin was an ingredient of Agent Orange, the notorious pollutant used by the U.S. Air Force in the chemical defoliation programs in Vietnam, Laos and Cambodia. Its "side effects" entailed widespread massacres of men and beasts that died hideous deaths, spitting out tatters of their lungs. Survivors suffered gruesome burns, like the boy Bao (1966) here shown "before and after" in photos 2 & 3. Photo 4 shows a child damaged by Dioxin vapors that leaked out of the Givaudan (Hoffmann-La Roche) plant at Seveso, Northern Italy, in the '70s.

Despite all these well-known effects, the pseudo-scientists at the Wisconsin Primate Center decided to duplicate them many years later on, mainly on rhesus monkeys – at the expense of the taxpayers and primarily for their own amusement and benefit. James Allen managed to receive over $300,000 annually for these experiments, but payments to him were suspended in 1979 after it was revealed that he was using Federal grant funds to take his girl-friends on skiing trips to Utah and Colorado, while the monkeys rotted away in Wisconsin. (After his dismissal from the Federal pork barrel, Allen immediately found a private laboratory eager to employ such a smart young man.)

THE GAMES SCIENTISTS PLAY

Japanese biologists have developed genetically engineered mice that glow in the dark, according to a researcher who worked on creating the world's first light-emitting mammals. The researcher, from the Osaka University microbiology disease laboratory, said a team led by Assistant Professor Masaru Okabe injected fertilised mice eggs with DNA from a protein found in a light-emitting jellyfish. Mice born with the protein in their cells emit a green fluoroscent light. The technology can be used in medical research to make cancer cells glow in the dark. ■ (Source:The Age 16/6/97)

DOCTOR CHARGED OVER PIG HEART

A doctor charged with culpable homicide following claims he transplanted a pig's heart into a man's body said no one could stop him continuing with his medical work. Dhaniram Baruah, released on bail with fellow doctors C.J. James and Jonathan Ho, from Hong Kong, after 41 days in prison, said: "I shall continue with whatever I was doing before nobody can stop me from carrying out what I was doing before." The three were charged last month after it was claimed they performed the pig-heart transplant on December 15. The patient later died. ■ (Source: The Herald Sun 21/2/97)

Hepatitis B 'miracle drug' kills five people

An experimental drug believed to be a miracle cure for hepatitis B has killed five volunteers, months after they stopped taking the drug.

The drug Fialuridine, developed at the National Institutes of Health (NIH) in Washington, had shown promise in fighting the hepatitis virus.

When laboratory dogs passed toxicity tests, the US Food and Drug Administration approved the drug for humans.

Scientists discovered recently that in humans, Fialuridine attacks kidney, liver and nerve cells.

The dogs survived because they have a natural enzyme that renders the drug inactive.

The NIH's Dr Jay Hoofnagle said five people had died of liver and kidney failure after ingesting the drug, despite liver transplants for three of the patients.

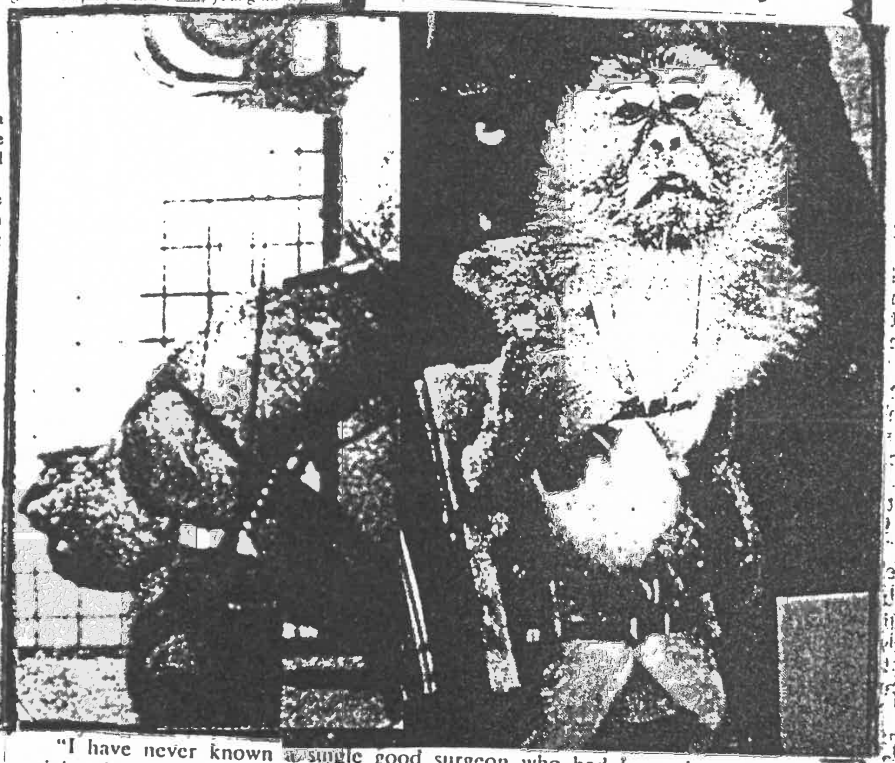

A 37-year-old woman died after two months in critical condition following two liver transplants at the University of Virginia Medical Centre. One volunteer is in a serious condition.

Dr Hoofnagle said he feared that other anti-viral drugs, such as AZT which is used to treat AIDS and is known to be toxic, may attack patients in the same way as Fialuridine.

(Source: Daily Telegraph Mirror, Sept. 3)

In 1978, a Tokyo court found 3 drug manufacturers – Takeda, Ciba-Geigy Japan, and Tanabe Seijaku – guilty of selling drugs containing Clioquinol which caused roughly 30,000 cases of blindness and/or paralysis and thousands of deaths. As is customary, the manufacturers were permitted to stay out of jail, provided they pay adequate indemnities to the victims or their survivors.

He has witnessed the "whiplash experiments" of his companions. It's his turn now.

"I have never known a single good surgeon who had learned anything from vivisection." (Dr. Abel Desjardins, president of the Society of Surgeons of Paris, foremost surgeon of his time in France and professor of surgery.)

"My own conviction is that the study of human physiology by way of experiments on animals is the most grotesque and fantastic error ever committed in the whole range of human intellectual activity." (Dr. G.F. Walker, Medical World, Dec. 8, 1933.)

Lab ban push on pounds

THE RSPCA will call on the State Government for a total ban on pound animals being used for medical or scientific research.

Last night RSPCA president Dr Hugh Wirth said he would be approaching Agriculture Minister Pat MacNamara 'soon' about the proposed ban.

Department of Agriculture figures show that in 1992-93 there were 1397 experiments carried out on dogs and 370 on cats.

Dr Wirth said new guidelines for pound animals being used for research had cut back the numbers.

"It's much tougher now than it was," he said.

"But we want total bans on all animals from pounds."

– DAVID WILSON

Public health and safety are jeopardised because researchers, encouraged by the billion dollar animal supply industry, are reluctant to break away from old-fashioned, unreliable and costly animal testing methods.

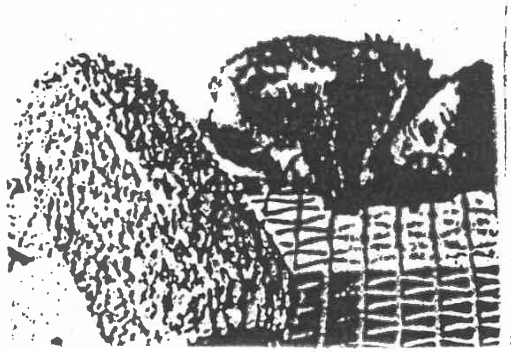

For example, because researchers waited for results of animal tests, 20 million children's sleeping garments, treated with TRIS, a fire retardant, remained on the market 18 months after modern non-animal methods identified TRIS as a cancer causing agent.

WHAT YOU CAN DO...

Get involved no matter how painful it is. Join up with organisations who are Anti this sadistic practice of cruelty. Learn what products to boycott, spread the word around, duplicate this information and leave copies in places like Doctors waiting rooms, in libraries, schools, cafes fuck it, everywhere.
Get on top of buildings in peak hour and drop bundles to the ground.
Educate yourself on the issues and become confident and articulate about what you are defending. Start your own campaigning by writing to institutes and charities which fund animal based medical research with letters of protests, letters of petition. Write to newspapers, organise demonstrations why not even lobby the government for a Ban on Animal testing.
Do your own investigating, phone and make enquiries to hospitals and universities etc. hang out on campus and let students even teachers know what is happening under the same roof and they may also try to assist you with inside information (where elæ do you think we learn about vivisector activities). Sympathetic biology students who are unaware of substitute methods to dissection.
Break into these fucking torcher chambers, Be careful, not only are most animals quarintined to the outside World because of deadly viruses they are forced to recieve but security is tight as after all these butchers are in a race to find the cure to cancer and are very finicky about espionage, its a billion dollar industry after all. They also don't want leaking to the public 'just where their tax dollars are really going because even animal testers know how repulsive and sick their experiments are. Find out vivisectors names, addresses, phone numbers. Take their photos and plaster them around the streets along with details of their 'honourable proffession. Follow them home and steal their valuable dcuments, fucking [redacted] up their cars, paint bombing billboards and graffitti are affordable and effective ways of getting the message across and many other creative ways. TAKE NOTE: I don't incite you to do criminal damage, you are your own keeper and are responsible for your own actions..... 'I don't know', just do something. Vivisection is not illegal but it's unethical and immoral and it's happening all the time. For the sake of the Animals who have and still are suffering, screaming, crying and dying or in most cases 'wishing for death to end the indefinate pain, We are the only voice they have and I reckon we can do something to stop this slaughter.

(1) This image of Madeline L. Cooper was distributed in 1977 to her neighbors along with her address, telephone number and description of the experiments on the sex-life of cats which she was performing at the N.Y. Museum of Natural History with taxpayers' money.

(3) Devising ingenious variations of the experiments on "love" that Prof. Harry F. Harlow inaugurated in 1954 at the Wisconsin Primate Center, Dr. S.I. Suomi and associates presented newborn rhesuses with surrogate "monster mothers" of cloth whose temperature would change from near-freezing to near-burning, sometimes causing the death of those infants known for their high sensitivity. As the survivors would just cling tighter to their "mother," even when it ejected high-pressure compressed air that almost blew the infants' skin off their body, they were presented with "porcupine monster mothers" that would eject sharp brass spikes. Finally the babies would withdraw to a corner and remain motionless until they died of what the laboratory veterinarian diagnosed as "a broken heart." So much for the "studies on love," which are continuing to this day, with sadistic "refinements" constantly added by the life-hating pseudo-scientists of the government-supported Primate Center.

Anatomy Monash University
POSITION IN DEPARTMENT:
Associate Professor

Assoc. Prof. Horne is a clinical neurologist with over 12 years experience and has worked extensively with Parkinsonian patients. He also completed a PhD in 1979 on the motor thalamus in primates and has been working experimentally with primates for over 20 years. He has extensive experience in all aspects of primate experiments including surgery, recording, training and care. He will assist in the MPTP administration and chamber surgery and will be present during most recording sessions together with Mr Bo

Dr. Horne is also Vice President of the Australian Brain Foundation and Executive of the Parkinson's Disease Association. Horne has a clinical practice and at the same time receives huge research grants. Dr Horne is President of the Australian Brain Foundation, this Foundation gave money to Dr Horne's experiments. The Australian Brain Foundation is a charity asking for donations.

NAME:
Dr Ernie Butler
DEPARTMENT:
Anatomy Monash University
POSITION IN DEPARTMENT:
NH&MRC Senior Research Officer

Dr. Butler is a clinical neurologist with over 7 years experience. He also completed a PhD with Assoc. Prof. Horne on the primate motor thalamus in 1991 and has extensive experience with chamber surgery and recording from monkeys. He will be assisting with the administration of the MPTP and will assist in the chamber operations. He will assist in the recording experiments when required.

PRIMATE RESEARCH

$$ THE GRANTS $$

Dr Malcolm Horne (centre) and Dr Rob Iansek

Hundreds of thousands of taxpayer's dollars (by way of government grants and public donations) are provided for experiments such as this. Drs Horne and Butler have recently sought and been awarded a grant from the NH&MRC to test surgical procedures in animals with induced Parkinson's disease. Ironically Dr. Horne says "this surgery has already been performed experimentally on several human volunteers in the US - and seems to work" [7]. If the results on humans are working, valuable resources should not be wasted duplicating these experiments in non-human animals. People already suffering the debilitating condition of Parkinson's disease need help not hindrance.

Each member of the research team that will be conducting the Parkinson's experiments has extensive experience working with monkeys. Dr Horne has over 20 years experience in this area! It is baffling that scientists who ascertain that their research is carried out to benefit humans spend most of their careers working with, and specialising in, a non-human species. It is evident that monkeys have provided Dr Horne and his associates with lucrative grants, but what have they done for human health?

We suggest that they have done nothing. Any gains made in Parkinson's research have come about through clinical studies and autopsies.

We also claim that the type of research about to be conducted by this research team does not have the wellbeing of people at its core. This research is in fact potentially very dangerous to humans. Firstly, any form of animal research cannot be accurately extrapolated to humans - inaccuracies are dangerous. Secondly, this particular experiment involves a drug that has the potential to induce Parkinson like side-effects in humans just by breathing in its gases. The staff involved in the research will be required to take drastic measures to ensure this does not happen. One of the measures includes the taking of a precautionary drug which itself is hazardous.

There are always unknown risks that cannot be safeguarded against. For example, no guarantee can be given that the shipment of monkeys about to arrive in Australia will be free of contamination by way of viruses etc. (The Ebola virus is a case in point). The potential danger of this is something the unwitting public should not be subject to.

If vivisectors cared so much about humans (this is always the reason given by animal researchers for their work) would they be exposing people to the dangers inherent in their work?

SOME ALTERNATIVES TO ANIMAL TESTING

Many cruelty-free alternatives are available to researches and are more reliable less expensive and more humane such as the use of cell cultures; (corneas from eye banks) corneal and skin tissue cultures, gas chromotography, mass spectrometry and sophisticated computer and mathematical models. Irritancy levels can be tested on egg membranes, the human tissue can provide for vaccines. Companies have the options making products using many ingredients or combinations of ingredients already determined safe by the cosmetics toiletry and fragrence association. The National Cancer institute has injected over 400,000 chemicals into mice over the last 35 years and come up with only 36 drugs. Money spent on Animal research is better spent on education and towards care and comfort for ill patients. Animal tests cannot measure headache, nausea, tinnitus, dizziness, blurred vision, amnesia or depression all potentially dangerous to humans. Artificially inducing a condition, keeping animals in an unatural and stressed condition further questions the accountability of the exneriment. Many drugs– phenacitin, E-Perol, Oraflex, Zomax, Sunrol and Selacryn (just to name a few) were taken off the market after causing hundreds of deaths and/or thousands of cases of kidney and liver disease, allergic reactions and other life threatening problems. Onren a drug prescribed in Britain for the treatment of arthritis, had also been h through an extensive program of animal testing; subsequently it led to serious illness and even death in many who took it.

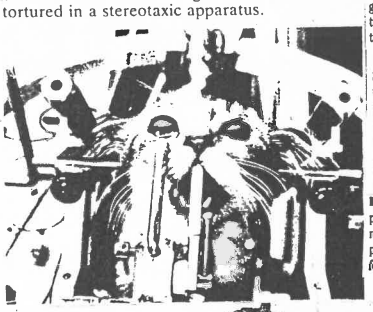

A new breed of Animal friendly companies such as pharmagene who develop and also do tests for other laboratories but will NOT use animals instead exclusively, human tissues, reducing the number of animal experiments in most if not all areas of drug research. This provides a rational alternative to animals in the discovery/ development proccess also a higher accuracy rate as majority exnerimental drugs fail via animal testing during this proccess because of lack of effectiveness in patients or because of side effects. There are grouns who use ill children and people to promote Animal research as a life saving science, they manipulate the general public into believing their only hope for cures lie in the use of animals. As many Animal liberators use compassion and commonsense to win the hearts of the public, groups promoting vivisection exploit the sick people/and their family and friends) to play on the emotions of others. We Animal freedom fighters NEVER do any harm to other humans (although many deserve it), our agenda is for the goodwill and progress of Animals and HUMINS. There is just no substance to the debate that animal research is neccessayy, especially in this day and age.

There continues to be psuedo intellectuals seemingly against the rights of Animals like chris Darnard (nroff. of Animal behaviour at Britains UNI of Nottingham) and Jane Hurst (behavioural ecologist) who argue that "Animals cannot be assumed to suffer, No matter how nasty things seem to us". And that us animal welfare campaigners mistake "subtle distinctions" when it comes to whether an animal does feel pain or is oblivious to it because of some adaption, survival mechanism or something and that our lack of evolution theory is to blame for our lack of comprehg this. Well their stoic arrogence is exactly what keeps us regressive. Sure the of Science is intricate and fascinating, far more valid then I ever give it or those studying or practicing it, any credit but when it comes to the expense of Humins and Animals, when egocentric ideologies cause such suffering then its a World I'm ashamed to acknowledge.

■ Imaging technologies like CAT (computerized axial tomography), PET (positron emissions tomography), and ultrasound scanners and magnetic resonance imagers (MRIs), which give highly accurate pictures of internal tissues and processes, have become virtually indispensable to diagnosis.

■ Eytex (made from Jack beans) and Skintex (from pumpkin skins) can test the toxicity of 5,000 substances in vitro. In addition to sparing rabbits immeasurable agony, their cost is a quarter of that of Draize eye and skin irritancy tests and their results are not based on the subjective reading of a rabbit's inflamed eye or skin.

■ Virtual reality computers mimic the processes of the human body and allow medical and nursing students to learn physiology and perfect techniques before moving on to actual human beings.

Scientific tale of mice and men

By LEIGH DAYTON Age 30.1.98

A leading reproductive biologist plans to use mice as surrogate testicles, able to crank out human sperm.

"There is the shock factor where people say, what the hell would anyone want to do that for," acknowledged Professor Roger Short of the Department of Perinatal Medicine at Melbourne's Royal Women's Hospital.

But he said yesterday that there were solid reasons for turning laboratory mice into "incubators" for human sperm. The animals could help researchers investigate the poorly understood process of human sperm production, and track the causes of testicular cancer.

Using mice to mature human sperm might also lead to treatments for some infertile men. Theoretically, they could nurture genetically altered sperm cells, taken from men who produce underdeveloped sperm.

"That's a long way down the track," cautioned Professor Short. "Now it's totally unethical, premature and scientifically dangerous to attempt to fertilise human eggs with sperm produced in another animal."

A University of Sydney reproductive expert, Dr Rob Loblay, agreed with the need for caution. Before applying such techniques to people, he said, scientists must show that they do not lead to birth defects, and must guarantee that mouse viruses cannot jump to humans.

But Dr Loblay said the concept, detailed today in New Scientist magazine, was "very promising".

"It's not like Dolly the cloned sheep," said Dr Loblay, chairman of the ethics committee overseeing in vitro fertilisation in Sydney and a former member of the Australian Health Ethics Committee.

Professor Short has applied for funding from the United States National Institutes of Health, and has received approval from the appropriate animal ethics committee.

Later this year, he hopes to begin experiments. He wants to confirm earlier animal experiments, conducted in his laboratory and at the University of Pennsylvania, which showed it was possible to transplant stem spermatogonia cells between rats and mice. Those cells produce mature sperm.

Before moving on to human sperm, he planned to determine if rat sperm, produced in mice, was able to fertilise a rat egg.

Boycotting products from animal testing companies may not nesse ily do much but it can make you feel slightly guilt free knowing you are not co. ibuting directly to the cruelty of animal research and if you find any of their products in your cupboards then send it back to the manufacturers with a protest letter.

BEYOND THE MYTHS ABOUT OSTEOPOROSIS

Several scientific studies have shown that, for adult women, there is essentially no relationship between milk consumption and osteoporosis.

Osteoporosis is a disease of bone loss. It occurs mainly in post-menopausal women. At menopause, there is a sharp drop in oestrogen, a hormone which helps to keep calcium in bones. Women who are small-boned, are physically inactive, have poor nutrition, or eat diets high in protein are most susceptible to this disease. Osteoporosis is also promoted by smoking and alcohol consumption.

Some have suggested that osteoporosis is caused by lack of calcium. But studies show that increasing calcium intake after bones are formed does not prevent or reverse osteoporosis. It now appears that the amount of calcium women consume has nothing to do with the rate at which they lose bone mass with age.

Studies now show that high levels of protein — particularly animal protein — in the American diet drain calcium from the body. Observations of various populations worldwide show that societies with high protein consumption have a high incidence of osteoporosis. Eskimos, for instance, eat large amounts of protein due to their heavy consumption of fish. Their diet is also extremely high in calcium, yet they suffer from high rates of osteoporosis.

Vegetarians have a lower incidence of osteoporosis than those on a meat-based diet.

Exercise is an important feature of an osteoporosis prevention program.

Meat Team

If one chooses to increase one's calcium intake, milk is probably the poorest choice for a calcium supplement. Dairy products do contain calcium, but they also contain saturated fats, cholesterol and concentrated proteins.

Fortified orange juices are rich in calcium with a high bioavailability.

Most importantly, many plant foods are excellent sources of calcium. Broccoli contains more calcium per calorie than any other food. Kale, spinach and other dark green vegetables, fruits, almonds, sunflower seeds and tofu are good sources.

[Research has also] indicated that boron may be important in preventing osteoporosis. [Boron is available from] fruits, vegetables, nuts and legumes. Milk is very low in the element and meat and eggs have no detectable boron.

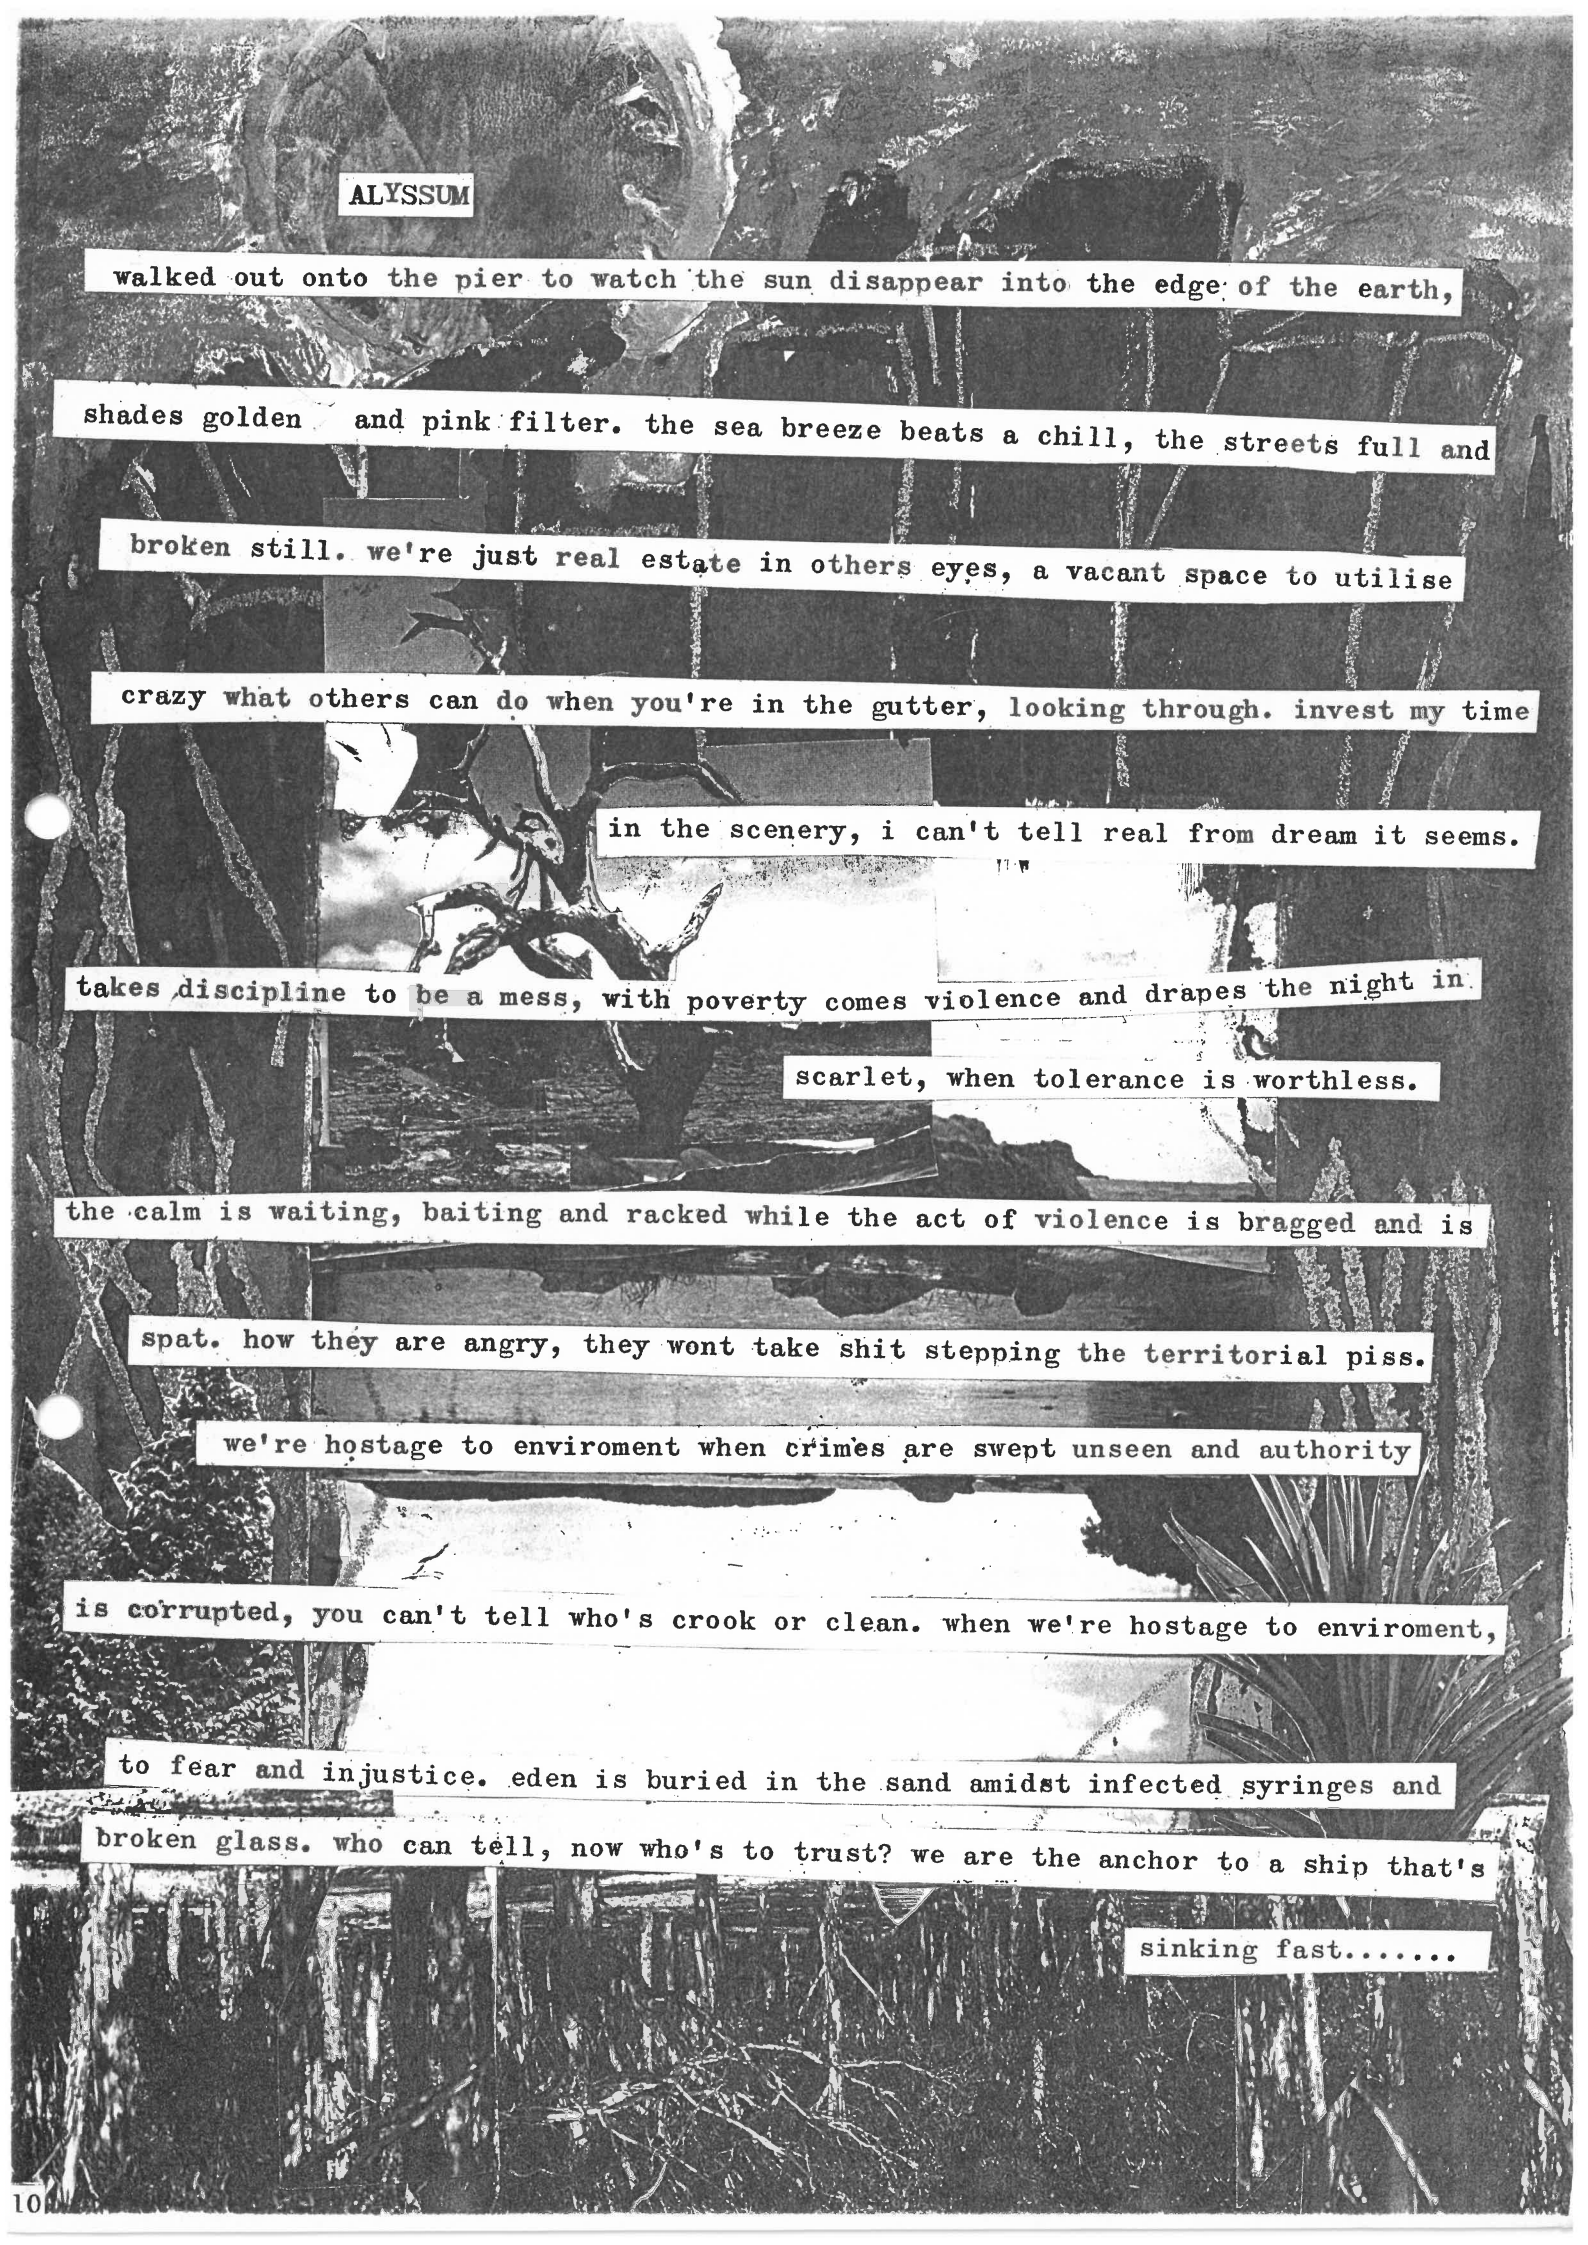

Many doctors prescribe hormones to prevent osteoporosis, which has recently raised concerns about increased cancer risk. This is something every woman should discuss with her doctor.

Hanson's high praise for Howard

Oh What a Fuckin gentleman, Get Fucked

By GREG ROBERTS

Mrs Pauline Hanson has praised the Prime Minister, Mr John Howard, for refusing to urge the coalition to direct preferences to the ALP before her One Nation party. He was "a gentleman", she declared.

Speaking after a function to announce One Nation's new Queensland leadership, Ms Hanson rejected claims by a dumped One Nation candidate for the state election, Mr Michael Ettridge, who said the party had been taken over by members of the Freedom Scouts and other right-wing extremists.

"It is not run by the Freedom Scouts by any means whatsoever. That is his perspective but it is not the case," Ms Hanson said. But a letter to Mr Ettridge from his brother, Mr David Ettridge, One Nation's national director, reveals the party's Mackay branch was disbanded in January because of alleged infiltration by extremists.

"In view of the obvious attempts of certain Freedom Scout members of the Mackay branch to assert themselves and their views I have decided to close the Mackay branch in its present form," Mr David Ettridge wrote in the letter.

Ms Hanson made it clear she appreciated Mr Howard's refusal to follow Labor's Hanson-last preferences strategy: "John Howard has been in a lot of ways a gentleman and I respect him for the fact he is not out attacking me personally.

"Some of the other members of the parliament who are ministers, what they have come out with is inciting violence against me personally. It has been indicated I should be put in front of a firing squad and shot, or I should be burned at the stake."

Indicating One Nation's preferences strategy, Ms Hanson revealed on Wednesday that the party would put Labor last on its how-to-vote ticket in the state seat of Bundamba.

She predicted One Nation would poll well in the 13 June election: "In Queensland we have got very strong support and it is going to go through to the federal election with the number of seats we are going to win."

In Bed with Hanson and Howard, Fucking Racist Mouldy SNOT. When the cat's away the mice will play. DON'T turn your back on this trash, they're a dangerous SCUM.

Ties between Pauline Hanson's party and right-wing extremist groups are surfacing.

Why is organic and Vegan food So Bloody expensive. Veganism and vegetarianism and organic produce is so much better for you and so much more humane and also so fucking popular you'd think they'd out the prices down by now wouldn't you but these new age Yippies, Capatalist are making it that only the wealthy can "afford" to be Healthy. They're no better than butchers. And Why do they discriminate against our service, us Punkers and weirdos. BASTARDS.

ONE TOKEN VEGAN RECIPE.

- YOU NEED:
  - Tofu (Beancurd) cut into thick fillets (so they look like Big fish fingers or submarines)
  - oil (Canola)
  - ginger (1inch finely julietted)
  - Garlic, 1 whole (finely chopped)
  - Sugar, 1 teaspoon
  - Salt, 1 pinch
  - Soy Sauce (2 Big Table Spoons)
  - Cornflour, 1 grain in about 1 cup of Water. (to thicken)
  - Spring Onion, Bunch Chopped
  - lemon, 1 > juice
  - lime, 1 >

(in a Wok) Heat up about an inch oil when it's very hot, place the chunky pieces of tofu in. Cook for about 5 minutes, slightly moving them around so they don't stick. When Underneath is brown (no Burnt, crispy) add the ginger and garlic-spread on top then turn tofu over. Add the sugar + salt. Add the soy sauce. Add the cornflour. Add the spring onions then finally the lemon and the lime juice. This should only take 10 minutes to cook and it's easy. I thought it was very yummy indeed and I ripped it off some tele cooking show.

FASCISM EXISTS

There are those who think that to focus on fighting and smashing the state is prior to ridding racism/ facsism and don't see racism/fascism all too important and deny it possesses any real threat. This type of "thinking" mostly comes from middle class white people If nazi shits are ignored now, they quietly build and are dangerous enough to becoming the State, thus leading to a totalitarian dictatorship like in other countries, like in nazi Germany. Some clippings here are examples of ethnic cleansing occurring "now" in too many countries of all nations. Multicuturalism is being blamed for high unemplqment, drug war problems, violence etc. when really it is the class structure that holds the blame and needs to be changed. For fuck sake, technological progress, power and greed, supremacy and wealth all bullshit macho, wank and the reality to why we humins are fucked and why we can't get along and idiot us keep looking at skin shades. We are pathetic.

I don't want to sound patronising to the indegenous people of Australia so I won't talk on their behalf. It's just so obvious that because Aboriginal peple were here first, this is their land. I am very sorry for the invasion of their country, it was not a fair battle, it was genocide. All I can do is respect their land and respect their lore.

Racism sucks the dignity out of ordinary people. It is a vampire vacuums life. Racism means a belief that someones race is better than anothers. It is discrimination based on that belief. Its like a fucking disease that clings onto the weak and pathetic, slowly chomping away at the brain, turning it into a sack of shit. At the end of the day people are not footy teams so why is there a need to take a side or start a war that no-one can ever win. No matter what reasons or discruntlements a person may have, there is no excuse to allow a persons colour be the aim of attack, to do so is ignorance. I learn't this when I was a kid.Even with all the crap on tele and people on the street talk and other forms of 'brainwashing'influence or my parents own forms of ethnic nationalism, I still managed to keep my own perspectives, my own views and opinions and I always have and will NEVER judge a person by their skin colour no matter what. If you have a problem or grievance with an individual stick to the problem at hand and don't bring in any prejudices. You can't judge a race by one person again are ya stupid? Racism is not genetic it is learnt, it is taught, it can be stopped. Don't laugh at racist jokes, Don't walk by others being bullied by racist nazis instead get involved and confront whether you get hurt or not, racism is worth fighting against. Racism is always happening, when there is a percentage of population who have to live in fear of their security and lives or put up with intolerance we fail as a human race, we cooperativly live in apathy. There is never ever a time when things are good. In the quiet time something sinister brews. Racism hides behind chosen blindness. Only fucking zombie morons say there's no real racial problems in Australia and those people who say there's other things more important to fight for other than involve in racial politics etc. are most likely white Anglo saxons or silent nazi synthesisers who won't and can't possibly see it important as they are full of crap and never will know to experiance hatred for no reason. We as fucked up civilised human beings can't achieve freedom if there is someone being knocked down. True bloody freedom only exists when everyone can function side by side equally without fear, intimidation or prejudice.

Since Pauline Hansons maiden speech in Parliment in sept 96 a public reassurgence and acceptance of racism came via ONE NATION. At the moment according to the 'papers', she and the one notion crew are sliding deeper and deeper into a pit of goo and their popularity had peaked many months back. But as we all know by now the Howard govie has been using her as a scapegoat, diversion so that they can do the dirty on everybody. Whilst we'd be shouting at Pauline the biggot parade government have had their freedom for desruction. We could get rid of the weasle howard but it makes no difference 'cos some other nazi shit will take its place. Look how nice he's being come close to election time. Don't be fooled, don't bother voting at all.

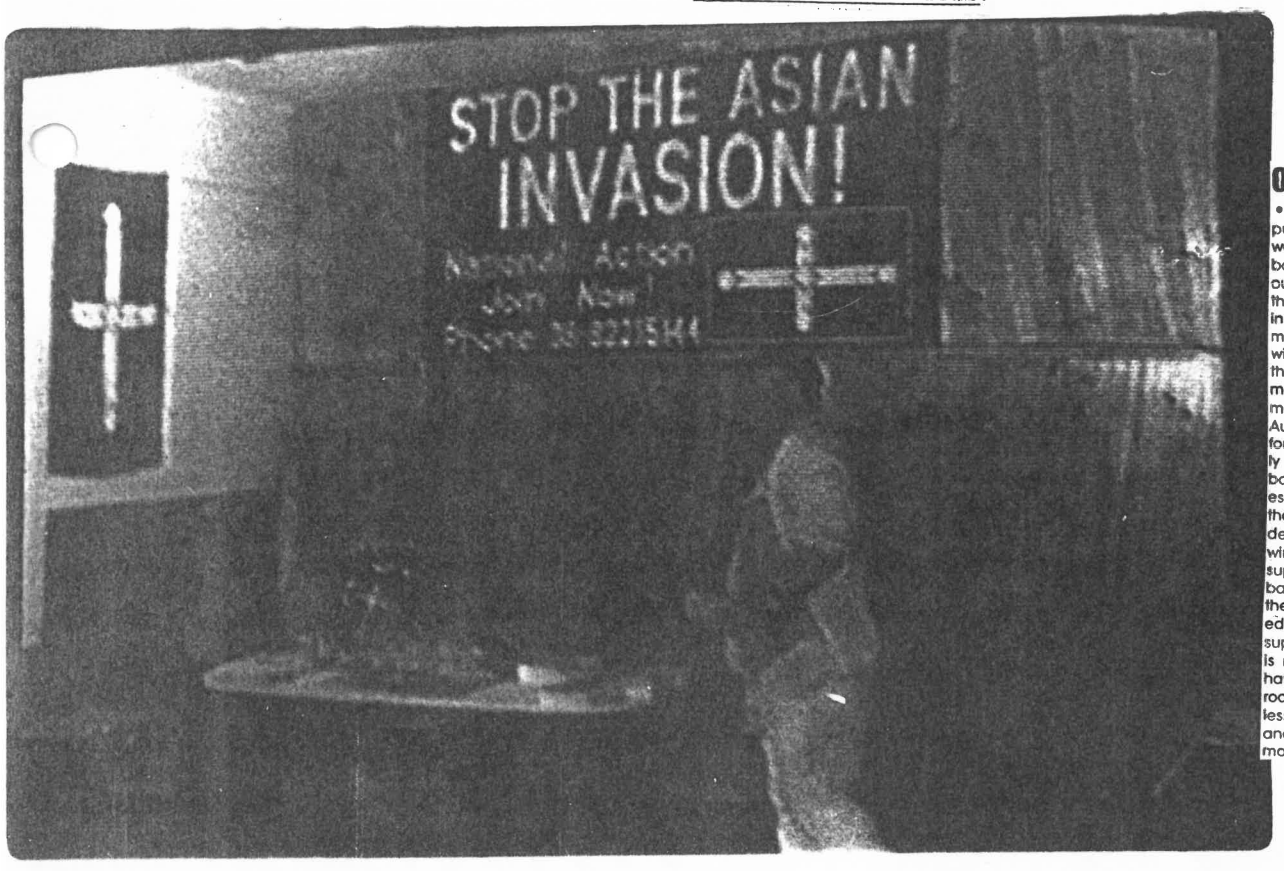

Racism

The hideous thing is they allow Hanson to exist with thier assistance. One Nations slump no way means WE're in the clear, in some sense the uproar around her has given the World insight into Australias racist policy(not that the rest of the World is any better).Not just her but the whole One Nation propoganda machine has been a disgusting display of intolerant existance that actually did bring about and still does, amazing racial conflict. The stupid fucks make it o.k for kids at school to be openly racist and proud of it, 'just make sure you call it patriotism son'.

One Nation the real facts behind it are they want to stop ALL immigration until unemployment has been solved and our 'current people' have had time to assimilate. Pauly is anti Asianisation, she does not believe we are part of Asia and she is Anti Aboriginal industry such as Atsic. O.N are anti multiculturalism. They want to eal the native titles act and the Wik Decision. They want to remove political correctness and give authorities the resources to effectively combat drugs and crime (ie give coppers more power to beat us down) The O.N wheel of devisiveness is still operating, still moving and still as fucking dumb and dangerous as when it first began purely because its alive. Its a matter of howd we get rid of it, how do we kill it? In my mind I can think of a million painful ways to eradicate it so long as I'm not like them in the proccess. Education is probably a more long term then a bullet, my choice of quick fix solution. I've been watching these docos called Blue Eyes and A Class Divided of Jane Elliot whose anti racist prgram is excellant. Her method places a reversal role where she makes the average white citizen catch just a glimpse of what its like being a black person in America by treating them the way they treat black peaple.I think for mainstrem socity its at least worth a try but for the extremist and I mean the wanker violent Nazi whose concussed mind is very hard to untangle.

Melbourne band's songs promote Nazis, say German authorities

By GEOFF KITNEY and PATRICK DONOVAN

German intelligence is monitoring an underground music movement in Europe that promotes extreme right-wing politics to young listeners.

They say that it is one of about 100 bands producing music with extreme lyrics and performing at concerts throughout Europe, including in Germany. Although such music cannot be played on radio, activity which has banned only a few groups glorifies Nazism, much of the music is legal in neighbouring countries.

The Federal Agency for the Protection of the Constitution (the German equivalent of the Australian Security and Intelligence Organisation (ASIO), said it was aware of three compact discs recorded by Fortress, called Fortress, Seize the Day and Into Legends.

They said the music contained extreme right-wing messages, including meeting Hitler and his Nazi associates as martyrs and heroes. One tune, "45 years of solitude", is a song of praise for Rudolph Hess, Hitler's deputy, who was convicted of war crimes and lived out his life at Spandau Prison in Berlin.

The covers of the CDs contain only the given names of the members of the band. But the Seize the Day album indicates that the record was produced by a record company in Melbourne. The owner of Toybox Studios in Northcote, Mr Doug Saunders, said yesterday that he recorded the group's music but that he believed they were not aggressive or angry. He said he remembered hearing some pro-Nazi lyrics like "Hess was right".

"At the time I thought it was just a way of being controversial to get publicity, but then I got the impression they were saying."

Mr Saunders, who produces all types of music, from heavy metal to Christian children's bands, said the group's members were dressed as punks, but they believed they may have moved to Germany recently.

No Fortress CDs could be found at Melbourne's independent record stores yesterday. It is believed that the albums are available only by mail or-

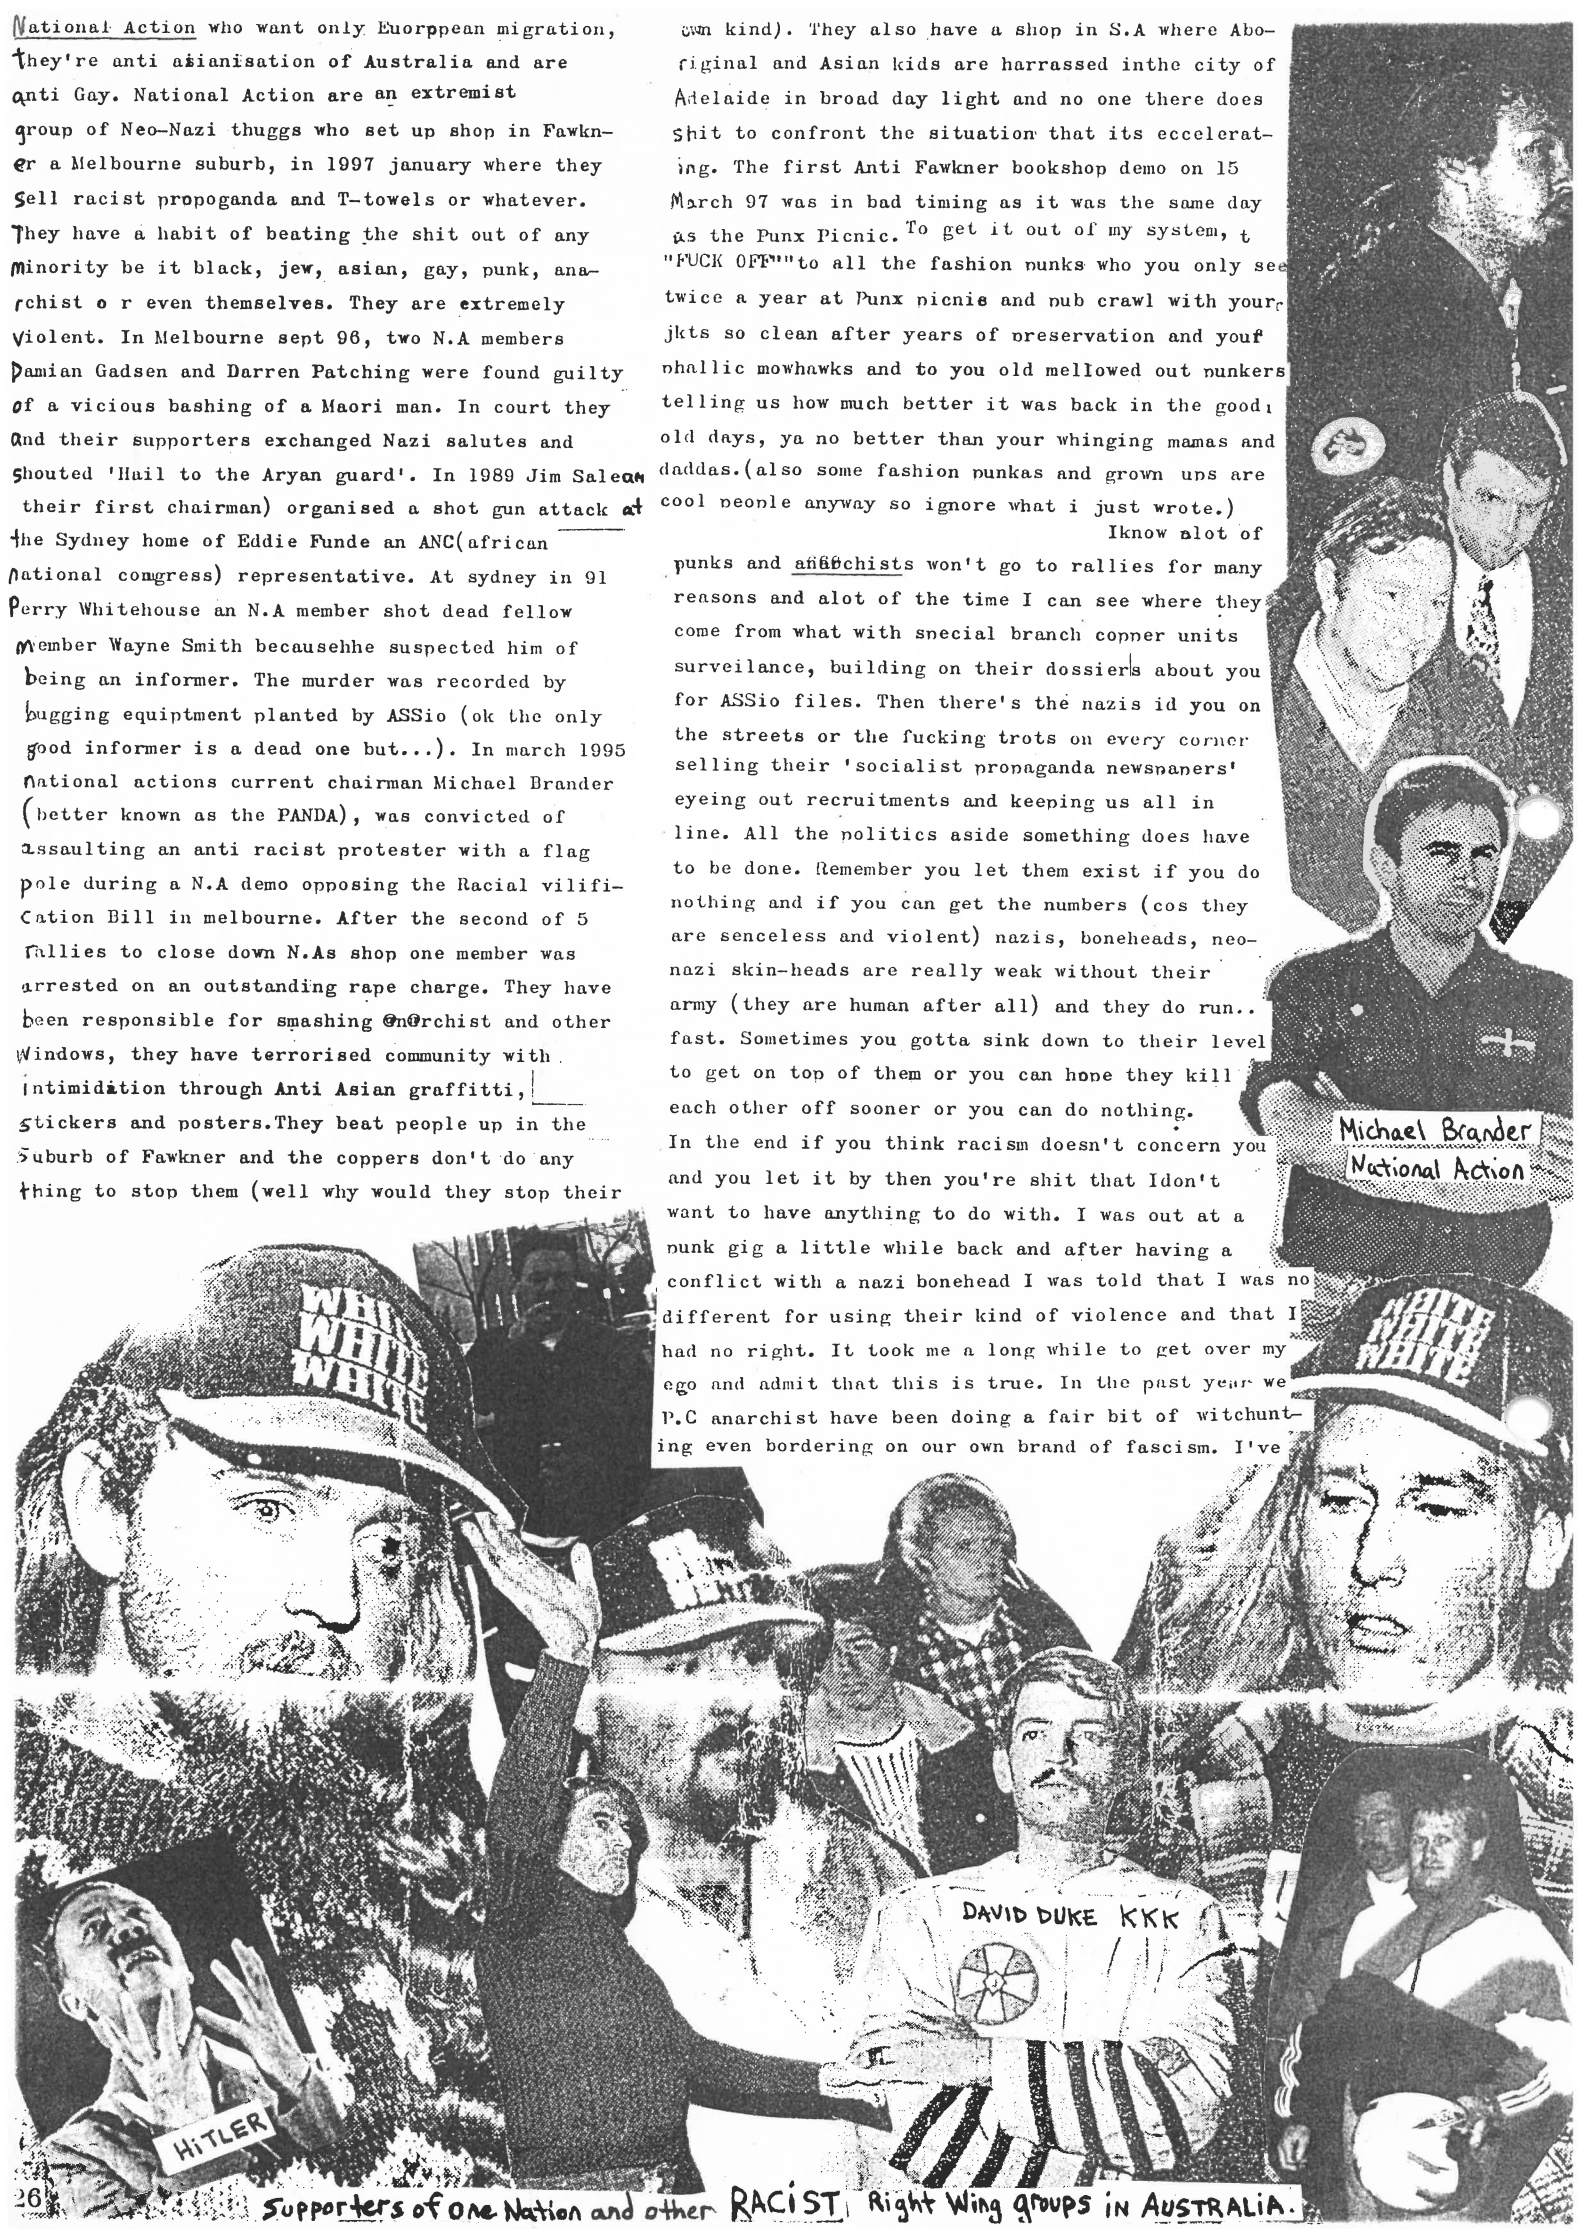

OZ NEO-NAZI ROCK WATCH

• BACK in 1979, in the afterglow of the punk revolution, the "torch" of "purist pu was taken up in Britain by the so-called bands, many of whom had link, later stre ously denied, with neo-Nazi extremists the National Front. The Oi phase soon fac in the UK but in Germany, there seemed much fertile ground for that, and rock ban with neo-Nazi sympathies have been giv the German government headaches more than a decade. You wouldn't imag much of a problem with this sort of thing Australia, despite the independent Mémi for Oxley, but German intelligence is curre ly monitoring the creative output of the M bourne-based band Fortress, which ope espouses Nazi ideology and Hitler as hero their music. The band has found a strong u derground following in Europe's young rig wing extremist community, which alrea supports a scene there with around 1 bands with similar sympathies. Described the owner of a studio where Fortress reco ed a couple of their albums, as "wh supremacists", the impression the band gi is more that they're out for attention tha having any real political agenda - the usu rock'n'roll shock tactics approach. Noneth less, the Germans aren't taking any chanc and will continue to monitor the banc movements.

National Action who want only Euorppean migration, they're anti asianisation of Australia and are anti Gay. National Action are an extremist group of Neo-Nazi thuggs who set up shop in Fawkner a Melbourne suburb, in 1997 january where they sell racist propoganda and T-towels or whatever. They have a habit of beating the shit out of any minority be it black, jew, asian, gay, punk, anarchist o r even themselves. They are extremely violent. In Melbourne sept 96, two N.A members Damian Gadsen and Darren Patching were found guilty of a vicious bashing of a Maori man. In court they and their supporters exchanged Nazi salutes and shouted 'Hail to the Aryan guard'. In 1989 Jim Saleam their first chairman) organised a shot gun attack at the Sydney home of Eddie Funde an ANC(african national congress) representative. At sydney in 91 Perry Whitehouse an N.A member shot dead fellow member Wayne Smith becausehhe suspected him of being an informer. The murder was recorded by bugging equiptment planted by ASSio (ok the only good informer is a dead one but...). In march 1995 national actions current chairman Michael Brander (better known as the PANDA), was convicted of assaulting an anti racist protester with a flag pole during a N.A demo opposing the Racial vilification Bill in melbourne. After the second of 5 rallies to close down N.As shop one member was arrested on an outstanding rape charge. They have been responsible for smashing @n@rchist and other Windows, they have terrorised community with intimidation through Anti Asian graffitti, stickers and posters.They beat people up in the Suburb of Fawkner and the coppers don't do any thing to stop them (well why would they stop their own kind). They also have a shop in S.A where Aboriginal and Asian kids are harrassed inthe city of Adelaide in broad day light and no one there does shit to confront the situation that its eccelerating. The first Anti Fawkner bookshop demo on 15 March 97 was in bad timing as it was the same day as the Punx Picnic. To get it out of my system, t "FUCK OFF""to all the fashion punks who you only see twice a year at Punx picnis and pub crawl with your jkts so clean after years of preservation and your phallic mowhawks and to you old mellowed out punkers telling us how much better it was back in the good old days, ya no better than your whinging mamas and daddas.(also some fashion punkas and grown ups are cool people anyway so ignore what i just wrote.)

Iknow alot of punks and anarchists won't go to rallies for many reasons and alot of the time I can see where they come from what with special branch copper units surveilance, building on their dossiers about you for ASSio files. Then there's the nazis id you on the streets or the fucking trots on every corner selling their 'socialist propaganda newspapers' eyeing out recruitments and keeping us all in line. All the politics aside something does have to be done. Remember you let them exist if you do nothing and if you can get the numbers (cos they are senceless and violent) nazis, boneheads, neo-nazi skin-heads are really weak without their army (they are human after all) and they do run.. fast. Sometimes you gotta sink down to their level to get on top of them or you can hope they kill each other off sooner or you can do nothing.

In the end if you think racism doesn't concern you and you let it by then you're shit that Idon't want to have anything to do with. I was out at a punk gig a little while back and after having a conflict with a nazi bonehead I was told that I was no different for using their kind of violence and that I had no right. It took me a long while to get over my ego and admit that this is true. In the past year we P.C anarchist have been doing a fair bit of witchunting even bordering on our own brand of fascism. I've come to the conclusion that no matter how twisted, wrong and fucked peoples ideals are, I have no reason or right to judge them or their frinds for it. As I have been hassled, 'you can't change anyone but yourself". It's this racism that allows ordinary people to take thier frustrations and problems out on others because its all they know, its all they've been shown and because we let them do it so easily. It's very fucken hard but you got to have "the courage of your convictions", you got to be strong enough to defend your beliefs not ram them down each others throats. At the gig I was also told I had no reason to care 'cos I was white, well that was pretty fucking dumb, everyone has reason to care for millions of different reasons. Also a reminder to all you anarchists and others bagging out punks, I think tha that while you slag and put their scene down the real nazis come along and work on them and bring them back un what do you exnect will happen?? ? You go judging us for a couple of wankers who have caused you grief once in your life you assume everyone is the same. How can we get over it when we keep repeating the same mistakes we are trying to erase.All this aside if I catch anyone out as a true Nazi, racist(ie. Neo-Nazi threat grows in eastern Germany

IAN TRAYNOR, 22/1/9
rlin, Wednesday

ge parts of formerly commu- t East Germany are becom- virtual no-go areas for for- ners as support for racist o-Nazi ideology grows rapidly oss the region.

The reunification of Germany 1990 is at the root of the cri-

Mr Berndt Wagner, an East lin criminologist and social ker, said: "To say that one d of East German youth is now prone to the extreme right is an understatement. The point of no return has already been reached for many ... It's growing. It's getting worse."

Mr Wagner has been monitoring the far right for 10 years. He said that politicians are failing either to identify the belated fallout from unification, or to tackle the colossal social problems afflicting the region.

The neo-Nazi spectre is being enhanced by extensive use of the Internet to campaign for foreigner-free zones.

The authorities in the worst-affected state, Brandenburg, which forms the hinterland to Berlin, last week listed nine regional towns as neo-Nazi centres. They also warned that foreign construction workers, including thousands of Britons, were targets for the militants.

Nationally there was a 14 per cent increase in extreme right-wing offences last year, with the proportion considerably higher in the east. The German police put the number of active neo-Nazis at 47,000, a 4.5 per cent increase on the previous year.

"It's not just foreigners. Punks and left-wingers get attacked, not because they're punks but because they're 'un-German'," said Annette Kahane of East Berlin's Centre for Democratic Culture.

Brandenburg police last week unveiled a 35-strong helicopter-borne mobile police unit to combat racist violence. Last year there was one violent racist attack a week in the small state, and 148 xenophobic assaults throughout the year.

"Foreigners can no longer move freely in eastern Germany," said Ms Kahane. "Normality in East Germany means a curfew for foreigners."

Recorded attacks on foreigners in East Berlin are about five times higher than in the west of the formerly partitioned city.

But the official statistics underplay the scale of the crisis and the ways in which the social climate allows for the tacit toleration of racist thuggery.

When neo-Nazis stabbed and kicked a 17-year-old youth to death last year in Magdeburg, the capital of neighboring Saxony-Anhalt, the murder was not categorised as an extreme right crime.

According to the experts, the pervasive racist climate is neither political nor politicised but rather unfocused.

"If all these people are prone to the far right, that doesn't mean they're real neo-Nazis or violent. Rather they're anti-foreigner, anti-Semitic, believe in German historical romanticism and social Darwinism," said Mr Wagner. "It's a diffuse sub-culture that is forming into a counter-culture and could spawn a political party of protest the way the Greens did in the '80s."

CHRISTCHURCH — The Race Relations Office yesterday said it was appalled 300 people near a Christchurch beach failed to defend a man and his family being abused and tormented by a group of skinheads.

The man, a Christchurch bank officer of Nigerian origins, was also allegedly punched and hit with a bottle.

The family's walk along a beach in the suburb of Sumner was called a "nigger" by the group of about 10 skinheads.

He was then surrounded as they taunted him with Nazi salutes.

The man's five-year-old daughter screamed and shook while his two-year-old son witnessed the attack from a pushchair.

"What really upsets me is that the people of Christchurch stood by and allowed this to happen," said Race Relations Office manager Sergeant Tuck Wanka.

Greatorex said it was the worst incident of racism he had seen in 22 years in the police force.

"It was a family outing in a respectable area, in broad daylight with an estimated 300 people watching," he said.

Fellow officer Senior Sergeant Derek Erasmus said police were appalled at the lack of response from the crowd.

"The only people who helped were a Polynesian man and an elderly Polish housewoman."

Six men, aged in their late teens and early 20s, have been charged with disorderly assembly.

Neo-Nazis lose appeal

25/10/97

TWO Australian neo-Nazi leaders yesterday lost their bid to appeal in the High Court against their convictions and sentences for firebombing Perth Chinese restaurants in the 1980s.

Australian Nationalist Movement leader Jack van Tongeren and his second-in-command, John van Blitterswyk, applied in the High Court for leave to appeal, but the court rejected their application.

Van Tongeren and van Blitterswyk are serving sentences of 18 years and 14 years respectively for offences including conspiracy to drive Asians from Western Australia.

"CHARITY BIN RAIDS"

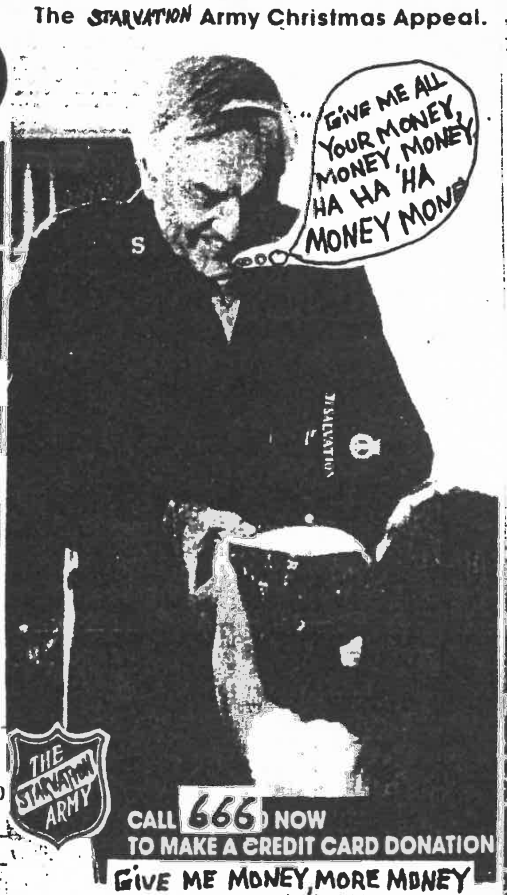

AND THE.....

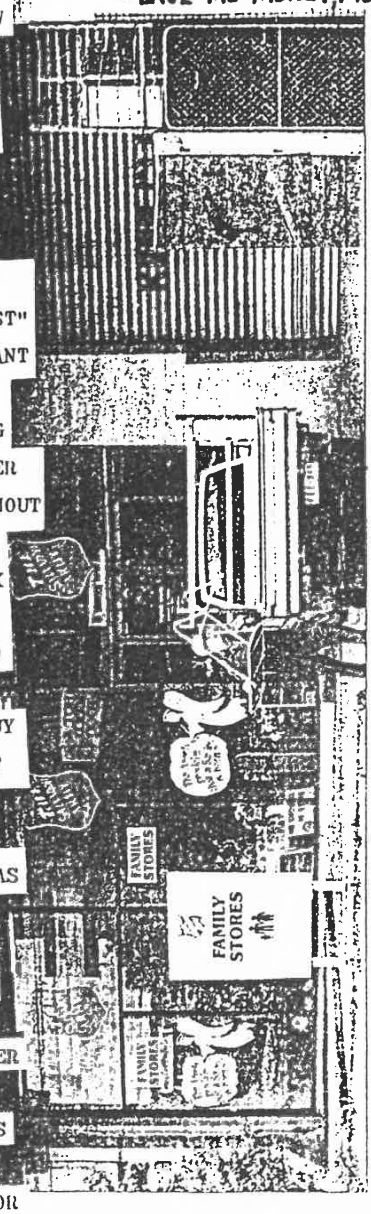

"MAJOR POLICE OPERATION".

A TOTAL LOAD OF BULLSHIT MAN, ITS JUST A SUBTLE WAY OF UNDERPLAYING THE INTRODUCTION OF "PEOPLE PROOF BINS". THE AGENDA IS STOPPING PEOPLE HELPING THEMSELVES. THE FACT THAT PEOPLE HAVE BEEN DOING JUST THAT CONCERNS THOSE "CORPORATE DO GOODERS" ESPECIALLY THEIR GREEDY HUNGRY WALLETS. LIKE EVERYTHING IT SEEMS, BAD THESE DAYS, THERE IS ALOT OF MONEY TO BE MADE AND CHARITY LIKE THE SALVATION ARMY IS A BUSINESS LIKE ALL OTHERS. SOLDIERS HIGH IN THE SALVOS RANKS RECEIVING FAT BULKY WAGE PCKTS WHILE USING MOSTLY FREE, VOLUNTEER LABOUR MUCH VIA THE COMMUNITY SERVICES OR THROUGH CORRECTIONAL, DRUG REHABILITATIONAL PROGRAMS OR BY THE EXPLOITATION OF DISABLED WORKERS. MONEY MAKING ENTEPRISE NOT A BLOODY CHARITY. WHERE POOR PEOPLE USE TO BE ABLE TO SHOP AND AFFORD THE SIMPLE NECCESSETIES AS CHEAP CLOTHING AND FURNISHINGS, NOW THE MARKET IS TOWARD YUPPIES WHO FOUND IT WAS TRENDY TO LOOK LIKE TRASH HENCE THE SKY ROCKETED PRICES OF 2nd HAND, DONATED GOODS, IN WHICH THE NEW INNER CITY CLIENTELLE CAN WALK AWAY WITH (WHAT USE TO BE OURS) A BARGAIN. IT'S BECOME SO THAT THE NEEDY NOW HAVE TO SHOPLIFT FROM THESE BENEVOLENT ORGANISATIONS AS THE PRICES ARE WAY TOO EXPENSIVE. ALWAYS WHEN YOU'RE DOWN SOMEONE WANTS TO KEEP THAT DUMMY IN YOUR MOUTH AND THAT BIB TIGHT 'ROUND YOUR KNECK. THESE PEOPLE KEEP THEMSELVES A JOB BY KEEPING US DEPENDANT, POOR AND NEEDY. WHEN WE ARE DESPERATE ENOUGH, WE CRAWL ON OUR KNEES, FORCED TO BEG FOR THEIR ASSISTANCE BECAUSE WE CAN'T AFFORD THEIR PRICES. MOST OF THE TIME TO GET HELP WHICH SOONER OR LATER EVERYONE THROUGHOUT THEIR LIFETIME MAY NEED, FROM CHARITIES OR WELFARE GROUPS ETC. YOU GO THROUGH DEGRADING METHODS AS THEY HAVE TO ASSESS YOU OR "MEANS TEST" YOUR CURRENT SITUATION, CRACK DOWN ON ALL THOSE CHEATS, YOU KNOW AND ALL YOU WANT IS SOME SHOES WITHOUT HOLES OR A LOAF OF BREAD AND SOME BICKIES 'COS ALL YOUR MONEY WENT ON OUTSTANDING FINAL NOTICE BILLS THAT YOU DIDN'T GET AROUND PAYING BECAUSE YOU WENT OUT ON A FRIDAY NIGHT, THE FIRST TIME IN MONTHS AND SPENT OVER YOUR BUDGET 'COS ALL YOU WANTED TO BUY YOURSELF A COUPLE OF THOSE BEERS AND SHOUT A COUPLE OF OTHERS AND PRETEND YOU'RE JUST LIKE EVERYONE ELSE LIKE THEY HAVE MONEY TO SPEND, JUST TO FORGET WHERE YOU COME FROM AND WHERE YOU'RE GOING BACK TO IN THE EARLY DRUNK HAZED MORNING. AND FOR YOUR ONE INDULGENCE YOU ARE NOW BROKE, HUNGRY AND THEN MADE TO FEEL GUILTY AND INADEQUATE FOR BEING UNABLE TO HANDLING YOUR FINANCES. WHAT THESE CHARITY STORES COULD BE DOING INSTEAD TO EMPOWER US, GIVE US BACK SOME SELF RESPECT BY LOWERING THE PRICES SO WE CAN BUY WHAT WE WANT OR SCAVENGE THROUGH BINS FOR WHAT WE NEED WITHOUT THE HARRASSMENT FROM COPPERS PAID TO PROTECT CHARITIES PRIVATE PROPERTY. FUCKING WANKERS, FUCK THEM ALL WHO MAKE US FEEL SMALL.

I KNOW THAT WITHOUT THE AID OF CERTAIN CHARITIES AND WELFARE AGENCIES WHEN I WAS LITTLE, MY PARENTS WOULDN'T HAVE FINANCIALLY COPED BUT ITS THAT FUCKEN GREED MENTALITY TOTALLY SHITS ME AND MAKES ANYTHING GOOD THAT THEY DID , TURN SOUR. TO STOP SOME OF THIS IRONY (YEAH CHARITIES HELPING THE FORTUNATE AS THE WEALTHY FOREVER KEEP US IN POVERTY) A BETTER IDEA OF DISTRIBUTING CLOTHING ,HELP ETC. TO THE NEEDY IS DOING JUST THAT. AVOID DONATING TO THE SALVOS BINS AS THEY OVER SELL THEIR GOODS TO PROFIT THEIR OWN POCKETS AND OTHER CHARITIES MOSTLY FUND FRAUDULENT ANIMAL BASED MEDICAL RESEARCH. IF YOU HAVE UNWANTED STUFF AS CLOTHES OR FURNITURE OR BOOKS YOU ARE THROWING AWAY, WHY NOT LEAVE IT NEAR (NOT IN) RUBBISH DUMPSTERS AT PUBLIC HOUSING DWELLINGS, COMMISSION/ESTATE HOUSING OR POOR NEIGHBOURHOODS OR DIRECT TO UNERFUNDED COMMUNITY GROUPS. ANYWHERE THAT THE ACTUAL NEEDY PEOPLE CAN 1st HAND BENEFIT FROM THE YOUR KINDNESS WITHOUT ALL THE BUREAUCRACY.

KILLED BY A PUNK

Dead Di ban

LONDON — A punk band named the Dead Dianas has been banned from performing at a town hall and attacked by a Labour MP as "disgusting".

The band came under fire after putting up promotional posters in Lancaster, Lancashire, featuring pictures of the horrific car crash in which the Princess of Wales died.

The band ran into controversy when it tried to set up a gig at Lancaster council's Ashton Hall.

A council spokesman said: "Under no circumstances whatsoever would we accept the booking."

Lancaster Labour MP Hilton Dawson said yesterday: "I think the depths to which some people will sink for cheap publicity stunts is disgusting.

"They are obviously a bunch of talentless creeps who just want publicity."

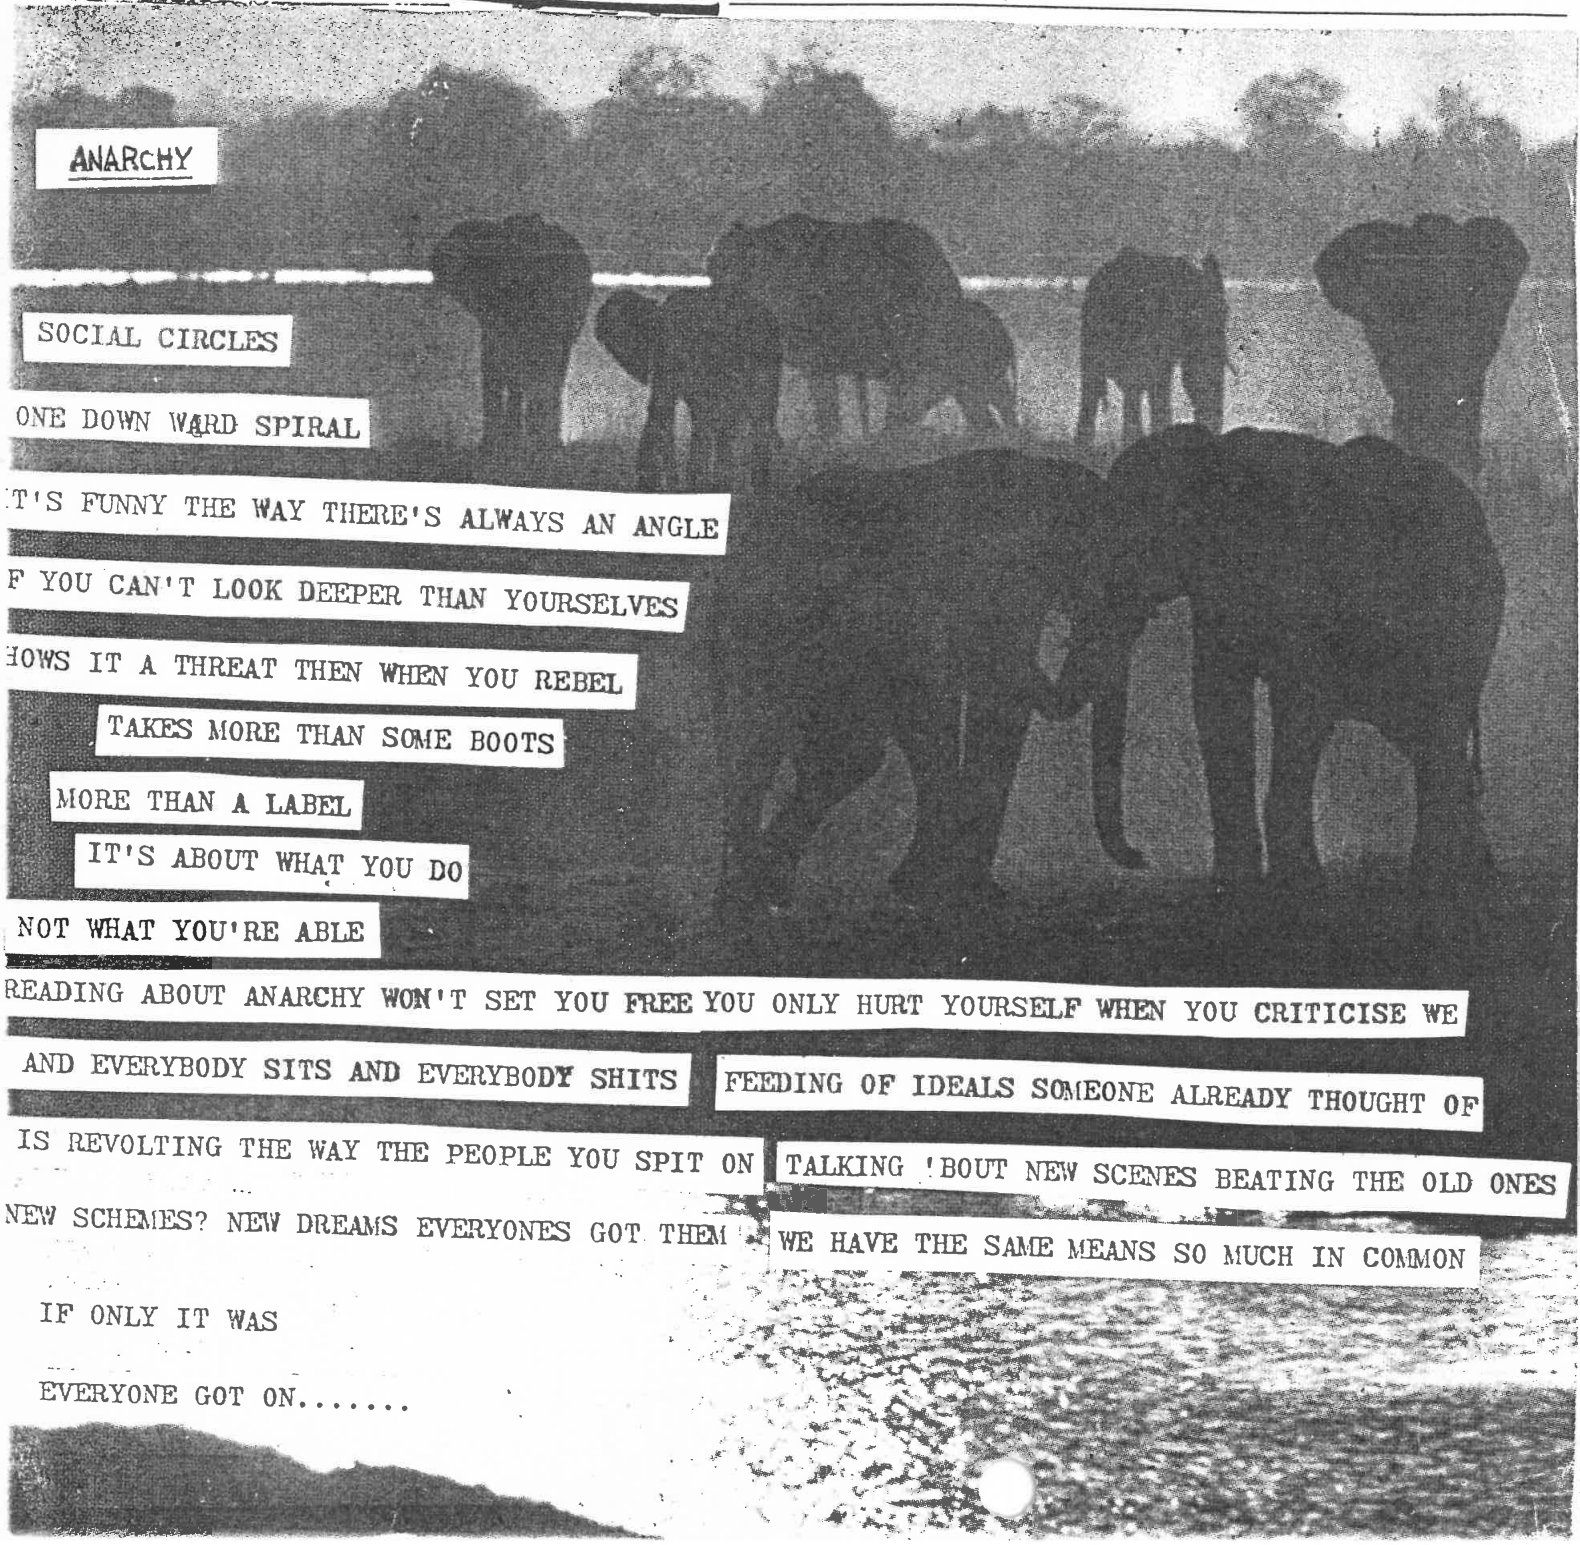

But drummer John Constantine denied the band was doing anything offensive.

"Not everyone is heartbroken over someone they never met," he said.

oi all ov ya, i'm gonna have a quick whinge about anarchy, well more like those that tag ourselves anarchists (i'm guilty of some of this shit too i admit)if i don't i'm gonna likely take it out on someone who doesn't deserve it.

GET THAT STUPID DUMB FUCKING DISEASE called "CONTRADICTION" OUT OF THERE... WHAT IS THIS WITH ALL YOU FUCKING RICH KIDS PRETENDING TO BE WORKING CLASS.%%%%%% JESUS FUCKEN CHRIST YOU DRIVE ME UP THE FUCKING WALL. my only real prejudice inthe whole entire WORLD is with the middle class, rich, wealthy, comfortable whatever its called.---I stumbled across Anarchy accidently and walked into it blindly in the beginning of"97 while i was in desperate neee of meeting like minded people hopefully through my(doesnt fit no damn category) DIY home recorded music tape. Iwas in isolation for years dwelling on my phycosis, that to totally despise the surrounding system of consumer, brainwashed, conformer society. I finally moved to melburn from the shitehole we call canberra and at 24 i re-descover punk and even anarchy. what i mean by redescover , well you know the way of thinking you got when your 14 and not quite screwed by the state.. yet, so you buy your first sex pistols record and start listening and identifing wwith poor johnny rotten and punk well commercial punk rok changes your life and its still vague rebellion cause all your friends are listening to bogun bands or in todays case techno anyway this all began again for me inthe beginning of 97 when i for the first time heard Conflict, citizen fish crass and all these melburn punk grind bands and stuff. id been into things like fugazi and minor threat and the edgew of straight edge and hardcore but to find a place like barricade a collectively run (a) shop was what i8d been looking for for ages.
(just to mention i hate fucken scenes, i know in this diy lifestyle scene is mega important but it takes me in then spits me out destroys my friggen soul. no matter how hard youtry try to stay out of trouble you still manage to get dragged into the backstabbing bitchines nerve of it akk.) I must admit all i new about anarchy was of what i already was, i just thought i was weird,..after getting use to the jargon or language that is anardhy (and all that horrible political kind of talk of shit) my comprehension of it was already there an anarchist society is what i dream of but down here i dont have much faith in it so i've I'm not saying it'S unacheivable anything is possible but i do think there's got to be understanding that certain people make it bloody difficult for others. I got involved thinking man all my life ive been made to feel like shit of my working class,poor backround but then i learn to take pride in where i come from, that i can unite with others like my self to fight against the system that oppresses us.. well thats what i thought and wasn't i surprised. It's just really dissapointing being treated as an outcast in an already dislocated movement. ya all can sit in your eliteness, choose who you make welcome and choo choose who you won't. I think all I'm asking for is every now and again step outside that precious circle and view it from a new perspective whether it be anarchy or the punk scene or the straight8 / hardcore scene etc... cos things change and overtime you dont want to dumbblind, you may find something totally different to what you first saw (i8ve had to do this so many times myself, its like whenever I get involved in actions and stuff i get all shitty if i don't see people I expect to bee there which really i have to say fuck it everyone does things in their own way, privacy or time, and as much as my judgement is good (can judgement be? yeah) I shouldn'T always judge.) Not all of you are activist in fact many of you like talk, talk, talk about direct action but seldom leave your comfy armchairs, so stop criticising others be it punk or whether they work or dont work. dont be so stuck up. When you talk down to us it is insulting- look you fromgood family backrounds how can you understand my and other ways of living or the way you are choosing to live. You see, you got a choice in what you're doing, mummy or daddy will always be there to bail you out when it gets too tough. in the real world some of us live in, well when we fuck up its a short way down but a very, very long way back up. As punk itself isnt anarchy straight edge is not anarchy. I do actually agree the anti consumer, pro vegan, anti drug abuseetect...beliefs of str8 but i also believe in alot of chaos and nihilism of punk.. i truthly dont understand why straight edge is so wealthy, clean and white and proper and while some of you are defending your rich , privileged friends we are fighting for the liberation of the poor people, us scum in da gutter.

WHY DO PEOPLE NEVER SAY WHAT THEY MEAN? WHY DO PEOPLE JUST REPEAT WHAT THEY READ? M JOHNSON

I actually enjoy reading about anarchy when i have the time just like i enjoy reading poetry or lyrics but when people insist on reading straight from the book and over intellectualising class struggle feminist struggle its just annoying. Sometimes we wanna he hear what you have to say not what the book says.and because someone doesnt know what youre wanking on about mabe its cos your boring. ive had many arguments with anarchists so i'm not going to detail any specific because in the end there was probably no right or w wrong just ego...some of ya heirachy others for what they may be doing or for the fact that they are educated, am i wrong in thinking there is no part in anarchy for middle class yet there are so many middle class anarchist, At the same time why should we be paupers, its like my views on class war, its not that the rich shoudnt have what they got (well they shouldnt, they should rot) but we should al have what they have, [redacted].if someone says youre being sexist or sarcastic or an arshole it most probably means you are, accept it and deal with it (people tell me im always doing somethin wrong and if i can aknowledge it then i fix it and if i cant see i was in no wrong then i tell 'em to fuck off...;;;; Be proud of your upbringing, be it disfunctional who cares, be aggressive and dont ever let anyone try to tame you or break you like thier own(mate) DONT TAKE SHIT FROM NOBODY BE IT COPPER? NAZI RICH LITTLE ANARCHIST SHIT OR ME RAMBLING ABOUT ALL THIS SHIT? .. JUST DONT GIVE UP IF YOU NEED A BREAK THEN TAKE IT.....

DON'T BE So PARANOID

All Australian police forces have units which engage in spying on political activists. To some extent they duplicate the efforts of, and work closely together with, the Australian Security Intelligence Organisation (ASIO). These units have in the past been called "special branches", but now go under other names. While their members are ordinary "plain clothes" police officers, their activities are fundamentally different to normal police activities in that in reality they have little to do with the prevention or detection of crime.

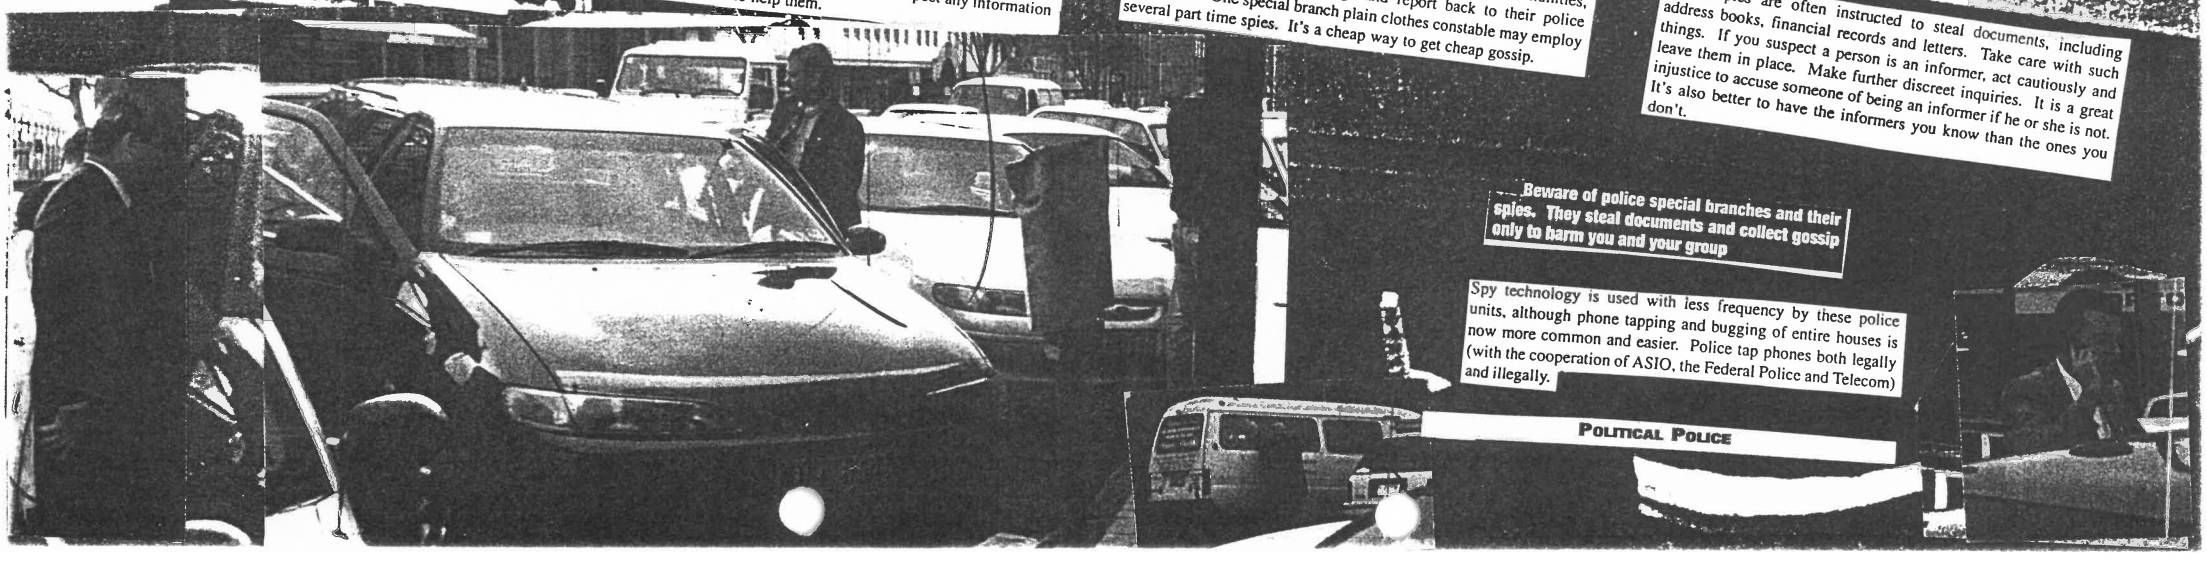

Police special branches (or similar units) collect information on individuals and groups, mostly from the left, trade unions and ethnic communities. Their rationale is the need to prevent possible future conflict or violence. In practice they collect gossip and half-truths which are only ever used to the detriment of the subjects. People or groups targeted by political police can never expect any information collected to be used to help them.

These units are not big compared to ASIO. They employ spies from among students, unionists, the unemployed and ethnic communities, paying them to attend meetings and report back to their police "handlers". One special branch plain clothes constable may employ several part time spies. It's a cheap way to get cheap gossip.

Police spies are often instructed to steal documents, including address books, financial records and letters. Take care with such things. If you suspect a person is an informer, act cautiously and leave them in place. Make further discreet inquiries. It is a great injustice to accuse someone of being an informer if he or she is not. It's also better to have the informers you know than the ones you don't.

Beware of police special branches and their spies. They steal documents and collect gossip only to harm you and your group

Spy technology is used with less frequency by these police units, although phone tapping and bugging of entire houses is now more common and easier. Police tap phones both legally (with the cooperation of ASIO, the Federal Police and Telecom) and illegally.

POLITICAL POLICE

Leaders, activists, sporting groups plead:

DON'T Stop this man

He cited the ill-treatment of women and low-caste Indians, the Government's failure to provide adequately for the health, education, and water needs of the population, and the rise of "corruption, communalism, casteism, and criminalisation of politics".

"Corruption is corroding the vitals of our politics and society," he said.

Starpower wanted breakfast — even anarchists need to eat, especially after a long night's work.

He was wearing a superhero costume from an act the night before. Lycra leotard, spiky hair, skirt — and a fake pistol tucked into his silver boots.

About 8.20am on 1 August last year, Starpower was at Flinders Street station, walking past the police booth, when an officer arrested him.

Ironically, the performer from Collingwood then ... about a police ... pistol — but that's ...

He still wonders: was it his toy pistol ... were police just unhappy to see ... him?

In a police interview he gave his profession as freak and explained the fake pistol had been a prop.

Police accused him of possessing an "unregistered handgun" without a licence.

Yesterday Starpower fronted the Melbourne Magistrates Court to fight the charges.

There, police conceded it was legal for him to perform using the fake gun and that he intended no malice.

Then Starpower (he changed it by deed poll apparently) headed outside court to wait for his anarchist friends to turn up for a demo in his support — scheduled for noon — and do interviews.

Starpower, of Collingwood, alleged the law had been used to harass him because he looked different: "It's ridiculous ... I'm harmless."

A crowd gathered as more than 50 demonstrators danced on the court steps and William Street.

The crowd got flyers: "Freaks demand freedom of self-expression ... Fighting for anarchy is fighting for this right. We are beautiful people. We are not here to be violent."

It was also legal for a Victoria Market stall to sell him the fake for $5. But the prosecution maintained it was a crime for him to carry it down the street.

The crux of the legal argument, the court was told, would be about the definition of handgun in the new 1997 Firearms Act. This could include a fake.

The case was adjourned to 26 March for a contested hearing.

That most of these groups are well-intentioned is beyond doubt. But some groups regularly demonstrate their willingness to resort to criminal conduct. Terrorist-like raids on poultry farms, metal spikes in trees, incendiary devices in letter boxes; the list goes on.

protest

It's also ironic that the very people savaging the MUA for allowing children on the picket lines because "it is bound to get violent" are the same ones criticising the police for not being violent enough with pickets.

For example, the Animal Liberation Front is an anarchist-based organisation that had its beginnings in 1976 in the United Kingdom. In 1982 and 1983, the group was involved with a series of letter bombs sent to politicians there.

Between 1982 and 1996, the group was active in Melbourne, with 96 reported cases of criminal damage to furriers, butcher shops and clothing outlets. Information-gathering work by Victoria Police eventually led to a number of overseas and local members of the front being charged and bomb-making equipment seized.

In 1995, a protest at a city McDonald's store by animal rights groups was hijacked by a breakaway group of anarchists and the International Socialists. It ended with rubbish being strewn around and patrons including women and children being terrorised.

Arrested: police lead away a protester outside Dandenong Town Hall.

What to do about political police, tactical response groups and all those who get in the way of free protest. I think fun is the best way to tackle your protest and often the more successful (propoganda) approach to getting your message or grievance broadcast to a "listening" public. But serious and No bullshit confrontation is the way I prefer to fight whatever is in my way though this is often dangerous and threatening to your health especially when conners and the response groups are sent in and like stormtroopers, use you as punching bags. If you're serious about activism- and about fighting for your rights and others then you probably know all this shit & and more but if you're just starting out or contemplating the life of rebellion as a revolutionary (this sounds like such wank talk) Agent provocateur or as a terrorist then you are obviously not gonna be interested in this crud. I shall continue,.....
Political police always attend demos and actions either to infiltrate your group they could be your best friend) or as heavies to intimidate. Watch out for them because if they hang around you it doesn't mean that you are important or special or that they love you, it just means they want to fuck you up any which way they can, be it by physical violence or defamation of your character or by setting you up (its why if you're serious about this shit its better for you to be sober and clean for more than obvious reasons. It helps build on your good character I know its fucked but, so then they try to break it they may be in for more trouble, although # really all they have to do is shoot you in the head and say you had a mental disorder, they like to do this and seem to get away withit.) Be careful who you trust, I have at least a Counle of rules firstly to never 'drunk talk' too loudly anyway and if people I talk to mention other names boastfully in our conversation to build their macho image then how do I know they won't mention mine when comes the time. Rumours catch up eventualy, your cool reputation may get you locked up oneday. Another thing of course is to avoid heavy shit that you're hesitant about doing, any slight doubt will only risk your ot operations. Avoid talking about anything that can be used against you over the phone. Practice anti-surveillance methods wherever possible, use code, Dõn't hand over enything that may incriminate yourself or others. Many people fuck around with disinformation but do it only if you're very good at it. Make plans instead in a park, anywhere secure. Undercovers, infiltrators hang around the local pub you drink at, turn up to your private parties, probably even shop at your local supermarket. If you're really up to something big then you'll most likely get caught sooner later unless you're really organised and got your stuff together. Big brother has eyes and ears everywhere. They can go through your garbage (good idea to burn any special documents or use it for cat litter, get their dirty hands really grotty), they follow you home, read your mail that they don't even have to open, if they do leave your mail 'obviously' opened its purposely to make you crazed, suspicious, more paranoid and remember 'NO ONE EVER BELIEVES YOU' and this is exactly what they play on. They tag your library books, and you know those little bank cards we all carry around, well that little black strip lets the government know exactly where you are, tracing your movements each time you swipe that card in whatever city, whichever gas station or department store etc. One conspiracy theory) apparently there are installed, not just in shops but everywhere you are so is some magnet reading off that strip, gathering information from your cards without you having to swipe it. Its probably the closest thing to a bar code on our skin that we have so far.
Squatting and living of well hidden saved cash is safest, I know this all sounds like some plot in a movie, so it may be. If you really want to know your shit then go and join the Army where the government pays you to play with real guns and will teach you exactly how to break a persons neck. But fuck all that shit un, some demos will be confrontational so be aware and be prepared. If you bring along a plackard or a banner make sure the poles are comfy in your hands and practice your fencing. Wear solid, protective shoes for when they're stomped on. Wear pants that won't be pulled and ripped off for the whole world to see your bum when they show the footage of the violent conner dragging you along the ashfelt road, on tele. If you think there may truly be an aggressive/violent confrontation then extra padding could be a good idea. Starting of with knee pads and chin pads for when they pull out their batons and try to cripple you. Wear a comfy jkt with pads for your elbows and forearms when you go to defend those punches and strikes. Thick layers of newspaper could be also used for this at short notice. Even around your waist and lower back. Try to make every pressure point unaccessable. You could even wear a bicycle helmet to protect your head. If they get to arresting you after all you can say you came with your cicycle or skateboard billy-cart and that you always wear protective clothing when you ride the roads, to allude susnicion of provocation. Conners like to pull your fingers back and especially pull your hand into your wrist that hurts quite alot i've heard, so wear gloves or try to keep them out of reach. Always make sure you keep track of everyone. If you don't want to be recognised by either the police and their political cop cameras, or by the people or system you are fighting or the media who work with the cops then balaclavas, skarves conceal (take note in your state this may be an offence as it is in Victoria). This can also though bring you more attention that you might or might not want. The police cameras may however have difficulty pinning anything concrete on you because it is difficult to prove it was you if they cant tell for sure which can only benefit 'you' if you end up in court. The actual job of these task forces is to gather enough info. so that they can identify and counter your tactics in future protests. I myself like dressing up in wigs and non-prescribed glasses, clothing I normally don't wear (or at least don't let any one else know that ilke wearing) Its fun unless you want to look cool for the cameras. Lastly do NOT forget the words/ the ever precious words "NO COMMENT" You do not have to give any info. beside your name, birthdate and current address. Police are bully boys and girls so cooperation is always best. Becareful of good cop, bad cop routines and never ever dob your friends in to save your own arse. There is nothing more sacred then loyalty, also don't let anyone put you in stupid situations. One more thing, try to remember any (i know they all are) any pastard conners name, this is most helpful to any case and for when you get them back.
I'm not a pacifist, I believe in pacifism totally and if you can be strong enough or stupid enough? to "will" for your cause and be prepared to take shit for it and be penared to live by example of it then thats all cool and comendable but I do believe in physicaly rising for my beliefs. I think there is only one war worth fighting for and that is for freedom, kind of "by all means nessessary" point of view.
I think everyones freedom will bring everyone peace. The only shit here though is that the system or cycle I'm using is the same that I'm fighting. It's all so confussing and complicated and difficult. Anarchy is an ideal that would be the ideal reality.

Anarchy at Dandenong

THE groups that violently hijacked the protest outside a One Nation Party rally at Dandenong on Monday night were following a familiar agenda.

They are adept at doing the rounds of protest, creating havoc, blaming the police, and discrediting everyone.

One police officer said of Monday's mayhem: "There were those militant minority groups among the demonstrators.

"I would say a large number of those demonstrators there were genuine people wanting to voice their concerns against aspects of the One Nation Party.

"And there were those groups who infiltrated. They are the ones who caused the problems."

Pauline Hanson was not at the meeting which was to found the Dandenong branch of her party. But even had she been there, it would be hard to find her directly responsible for the disgraceful behavior of some protesters.

Amid the flying bottles, eggs and urine-filled condoms the police showed commendable restraint.

After the melee, one spectator was recovering in hospital and four police were nursing superficial injuries.

Australia prides itself on a degree of tolerance unequalled in the world. Peaceful protest within the law is a part of that culture of freedom.

Though many people find Pauline Hanson's views both offensive and un-Australian, she has an absolute right to express them.

But the violent part of Monday's protest was not about Ms Hanson. It had to do with a broader agenda of mindless anarchy.

Unhappily, the depth of feeling raised by One Nation's illogical, bigoted gospel is fertile ground for exploitation for the professional troublemakers.

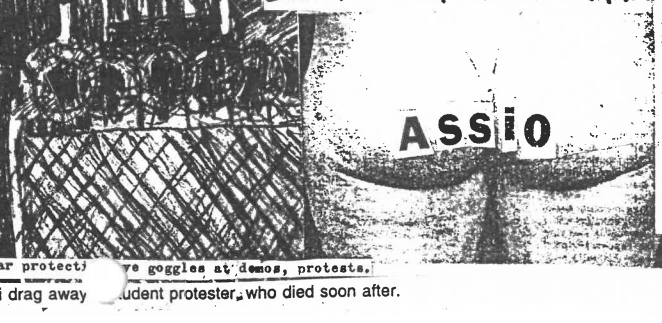

Increasingly it is an explosive mix.

Protest over secret police

24-10-97

ABOUT 30 demonstrators, some of whom had been spied on by police and others representing groups spied on by police in the late 1980s, gathered yesterday on the steps of Parliament House to demand the abolition of the Victoria Police protective security intelligence group.

In the 1997 State Budget, Carr allocated $11 million to equipping NSW Police with new service revolvers - the Glock automatic. The NSW police model 22 Glock, introduced in February 1998, has a 15 shot magazine, 6 shots more than the previous Smith and Wesson.

When introduced in New York, police shootings of civilians increased five fold. Police have shot themselves and other officers when cleaning their guns, shot themselves in the leg or foot when reholstering their Glocks, shot police and civilians accidentally on the street.

- The more bullets in the magazine, the more rounds police fire.
- The bullets hit harder, and are designed to cause more extensive trauma.

Like about a week ago just behind this little car park here, two male cops they took my boyfriend and they made him strip down. When he got to his underwear he said "You've got no right to make me do this. If you're gonne search me then search me in the copshop". And one cop held up the baton and said "Fuckin' drop your pants" and he was about to him so my boyfriend dropped them. And then he goes "Turn around" because my boyfriend had his back to the street. My boyfriend goes, "I don't have to turn around, you can't make me turn around" and the cop goes, "Turn around now or I'll fuckin charge you." But really he had nothing to charge my boyfriend with but he turned around anyway and um he goes "Now lift your ball bags" and he held the baton up as if he was going to hit him ... He's a juvenile ... He's a juvenile. He's not over 18. They have no right to make him do that and they made him turn around so everyone whoever was there could see him, you know. There's a whole rank of taxis sitting down there and everyone was looking at him (#009, 17 year-old Vietnamese-Australian female)

What is the effect of Capsicum Spray?

When sprayed in a person's face, it "causes blood vessels to dilate rapidly, bronchial passages to constrict, mucous membranes to secrete freely and eyes to burn and close tightly."

The pain associated with being sprayed is likely to be extreme. A Victorian Police Officer sprayed in the eyes described the pain as like "two cigarette butts being jammed into your eyes". He said "it was a very frightening experience because you just don't know what's happening, you can't see a thing." The sprayed constable said he had spent several hours dunking his head in a bucket of water to ease the pain and it took more than two hours to regain his sight and overcome severe eye pain.

Generally, capsicum spray leaves no visible injuries - giving it the potential to become the chemical equivalent of the phone book.

In November 1992, a detective sergeant and detective senior constable at Marrickville Police Station. Having spent 'the earlier part of their shift drinking at various establishments', the two 'interviewed two young persons who had been arrested by uniformed police. Both young personswere assaulted. One had a metal wastepaper bin placed over his head which was repeatedly struck.'

- Woods Royal Commission into Police Corruption

They just take us behind a shop. Tell you drop your undies, turn around and bend over. Everybody can see you and they don't care. (#062, 19 year-old Vietnamese-Australian male)

In NSW 82% of Aboriginal youth have been assaulted by police - from being punched, kicked, hit with objects, commonly police batons, telephone books and torches, to incidences of police suggesting committing suicide. (National Inquiry into Racist Violence)

P are fully armed and dangerous even more so now that capsicum spray is on its way. Y ow I have a billion criticisms of police, its the kind of occupation that only a certain breed of person can take up and that is an authoritorian sadist. My big problem though is why do they actually exist, why do we gotta have them and if we don't have them then how do we stop and apprehend the rapists, the murderers, the pheodophiles, the drug pushers- All the seedy elements of crime that are certainly NOT cool. I mean its ok to scream "class war", "rob the rich not the poor" and "bash a cop" etc. but- does that really get us anywhere? I think not. There is no quick fix solution or substitute for copners yet who will uphold the rights of average people/all people. This is the beginning of the problem we have with a policed society is that they DON'T stand for all the people, they stand and represent a minority that is the rich white, middle class male and exist only to serve them as foot soldiers to protect their money and property. Ideally NO copper is the best copper but in this society there are some truly insane, fucked up people. what do we do with them and as Anarchists, what kind of justice system will wehave and how will/can we uphold it? WE Expect in our perfect Anarchist World, all to be passive Utopia. Everyone is free, No heirachy, We share, We collectivise and are all equal black/womyn/child/animal/gay/poor/man. We are classless, godless, masterless, sexless we have no need for borders ,we have no room for hatred blah blah. This is all nice and sounds an awful lot like chrystal heaven but its not reality and I'm not dead. In the communities that I've known where we call ourselves Anarchists , We treat each other with such disrespect, we treat each other like shit and mostly I fear its cos our egos are so monsterous that our humanity gets chucked out the window. Well I'm sick of stoicism and I want to live life and and be happy, I know there is so much crap and suffering and stupidity and apathy all around the planet and I try to do my best/whatever I can but the most positive way of helping the world and all its problems is by showing there's a better way, show by example How else can we unify and really tell the system to fuck off if we are to busy fighting and competeing. How can we show the old world what it could be like, how do we tempt them to dare to take a look at a world without authority, Nirvana without religion. We do have to do something in the meanwhile about those who take our dreams and flush 'em down the toilet.....the police. This mob is armed not only with batons and guns and an attitude problem and prejudice to intimidate and harrass, now they have a new toy, capsicum spray that has been connected with the deaths of up to sixty people in the usa. Issued to those in blue to defend themselves when confronted by vicious dogs, self mutilators, suicide attempts and domestics. We know its 'cos they are so trigger hanny and they want to avoid the bad publicity a shooting gathers so instead work on torturing people that doesn't offend as much. When capsicum gas is sprayed at a persons face from a distance of three meters it causes:-

Involuntary closure of eyes, acute burning sensation to the skin, gasping for breath, and reduced muscle coordination. Effects last between ten and forty five minutes!

and the police say there are no permanent side effects according to their research, then if its so safe why are they holding back secret documents concerning medical information that based their decision to adopt the spray and their review of about 48 cases from a recent trial run. Police say that apparently the documents contain highly sensative material regarding operational tactics and have confidential info. from foreign police forces. ie. they know its deadly but can't resist the introduction of chemical warfare on the streets of melbourne, another means of oppressing the people with violence. For instance you can bet they can't wait to try it out at demos and protests. Contain us...Never. The spray has already failed wher coppers shot dead a man back in july when the spray didn't stop him advancing with a knife. Capsicum gas is fatal particularly if used against asthmatics and people with heart condition. If a copper pulls it out on you, try to cover yourface with your shirt or something or just don't breath. Or better still, get creative inthe kitchen and make your own. Its police corruption thats scary, its why other countries are so fucked with their mili military police and power hungry regimes. Corruption there leads to killings, torture, rapes, dissappearances and we watch the news don't even realise it happens in Australia. People are tortured here all the time but no-one cares because they are only street kids, homeless, prostitutes, drug addicts, unemployed, unaccounted for, students, protesters, black, asian. Maybe it doesn't happen on as large a scale but it does happen. If you are from a lower denominator or if you havent got the education or your skin colour is wrong, and if you don't or can't conform to societies set rules of behaviour or thought then you are not acknowledged as a worthwhile human 'civilised' being so you must be stopped. The police or the system can have its way with you and noone can hear you screaming out in space. We could all start making small steps to fighting back the cops We have to start standing up for ourselves and behing others and have the courage to do this not just say it. I'm sick of the smartarses, mucho shit people saying how fucked cops, nazis or sexist homies are but when in front of them you either wither or don't look other than anglo conformed aussie anyway so they won't hassle you. Sometimes in order to save your own life you gotta keep your mouth shut or fight. We should be our own police, our own minders of peace.

At demos and rallies we can listen in to their conversations, hang around their fucken drinking holes, listen into their gossip, follow them home and read their mail. Each time you have a dealing with a copper be it good? or bad look at his/her badge and remember their name and ranking if you can then whenyou get home, start up a list with this information and others so on and note the date and where you saw/ran into them. When you hear a rumour 'bout a cop spread it and if you know a bad copper to avoid then let everyone know about what it does and where it patrols. Teach yourself the law or at least familiarise with your rights. Look at how the Black Panthers delt with the cops in the U.S, take a stand just make sure you're not alone obviously. Start up a fanzine or an anonymous newsletter expressing how you feel, no matter how well you write or proper it is communicate, let people know about shit that nisses you off. Women shoul not tolerate any sexual assault from copners, don't let them get away with it. Police bash women and men, if they think they can get away with it they'll do it. Koories and asians should not tolerate racial hatred from copners, don't let them get away with it. If you see cops laying into someone remember that if you get involved you could yourself be charged for hinderence or something but if they got an audience they may cool it down a bit. Try and remember bad copners licence plate no's so you know which cars you can hunt down later and put out of service. If a cop police occifer ever gives you grief try remember their name, look him/her up, track them, take a photograph (or get someone else to) then plaster it all round where they work and live. Be careful with any info you have against the police because they do kill people. If you are abused by them definately report it or you let them do it to someone else, there are agencies that can and will help you with free, legal advice. Its a fucked system we have but we're not really gonna get any better, not in the imediate future anyway so we may as well keep a careful eye over this one and be there for each other when it fucks up and it always does. I hate to be governed.

If only we could all use commensense and attain a mutual respect towards humin life and animal life then we wouldn't need to be 'controled' and 'dictated' to by loony coppers and I wouldn't have to be so negative and dissillusioned. What can we do, What can we do.

Showdown: armed NSW police surround knife-wielding Frenchman Roni Levi on Bondi Beach last month. He was shot dead after he continued to menace them.

THE RECENT shooting of a French national, Roni Levi, by police on Bondi Beach in Sydney has raised yet again the vexed question of the appropriate exercise of lawful force. It comes after three shootings in NSW in eight weeks and an extraordinary spate of shootings by Victoria Police over the last decade.

The shooting of Mr Levi was unusual. It occurred in broad daylight on Bondi Beach before witnesses and some graphic photographs of the confrontation were widely published in the media. These photographs provide a sense of how events unfolded and have sparked widespread community concern about the killing.

Police are given just two days' training each year to handle high-risk situations involving armed persons such as Roni Levi, shot dead by police on Bondi Beach.

A PICTURE TELLS A THOUSAND STORIES

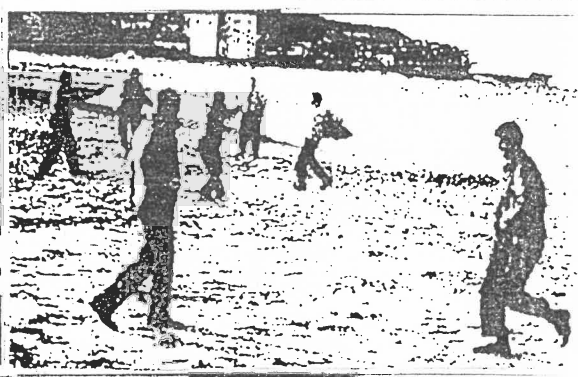

Police are NOT Gods, then why do they have the power to get away with murder? This picture still freaks me out since the time I first stumbled across it. Apparrently he was what, 'menacing the coppers' with a knife. Funny, what knife, where? He doesn't look to threatening to me, looks like he's stepping back, trying to surrender himself (unless he's a thunderbird and regulary walks forward backwards.) Possibly trying to rid his jkt to show he has nothing to hide. If there's a knife and the below article has any validation to it, then it's probably his only self defence from a group of corrupt coppers who figure to silence him any way possible.FUCK the privilege of authority. Why didn't they shoot to disable? Sounds like a cover up don't ya reckon!!

STORY BY HORSE ACKERMAN

POLICE involved in the shooting of Frenchman Roni Levi at Bondi Beach last year might have tainted key evidence by colluding before making their statements, an inquest heard yesterday.

Four of the six police involved were never questioned about the incident and were allowed to type their own statements instead of being interviewed by independent police, the officer in charge of the investigation told the Glebe Coroners Court yesterday.

Acting Inspector Robert McDougall also named the two officers who shot Mr Levi: they were Constable Rodney Podesta and Senior Constable Anthony Dilorenzo.

Constable Podesta had two years' experience in the force when the shooting occurred on June 28 last year, and Senior Constable Dilorenzo had been an officer for nine years.

The two men were the only police questioned about the shooting.

The other four officers who surrounded Mr Levi before he was shot were told to go into a room and type a statement about the shooting, Insp McDougall said.

They were never formally questioned about the shooting.

"I believe that the officers ... I selected were professional enough to know what their duties were in relation to the police shooting," he told the court.

Insp McDougall revealed the flaws in the investigation under heated questioning by a lawyer representing Mr Levi's estranged wife.

"Did it enter your mind at all when you took over this investigation that the police officers involved in the incident could have colluded ... improperly or unintentionally?' the lawyer, Robert Cavanagh, asked.

"I took precautions against that, but I can't guarantee that wouldn't have happened," Insp McDougall replied.

The investigation also flouted police guidelines, it was revealed, because Bondi police — workmates of constables Podesta and Dilorenzo — had interviewed witnesses to the shooting.

This was the sort of police "brotherhood" criticised by the Wood royal commission, Mr Cavanagh said.

The Police Commissioner's instructions say that police shootings be investigated by independent officers — not by police working in the same station as those who pulled the triggers, the inquest heard.

But at least eight witnesses to the shooting were questioned by Bondi police.

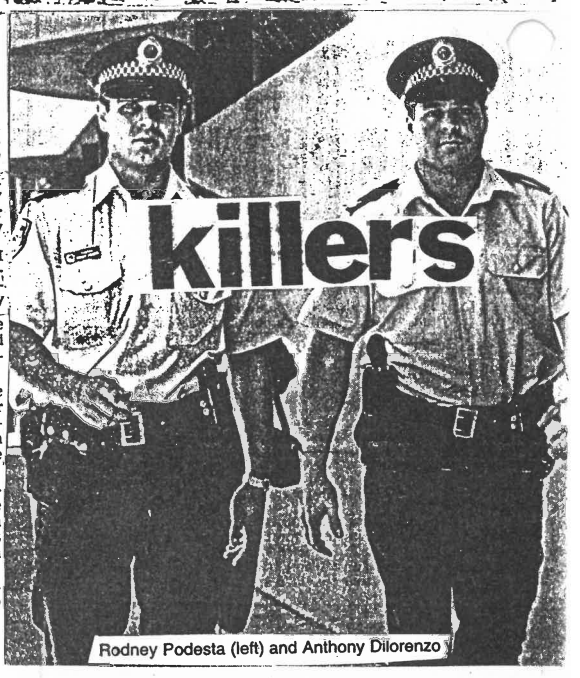

Insp McDougall said he used four Bondi police in the investigation because of staff shortages.

And he admitted his superiors had been unhappy about the involvement of Bondi police in the investigation.

Mr Cavanagh suggested the inspector should never have allowed the four officers — the nearest witnesses to the shooting — to type their own statements.

Constables Dilorenzo and Podesta did not undergo the mandatory tests for drugs or alcohol after the shooting, Insp McDougall also confirmed.

The hearing continues.

THE police shooting of a French photographer on a beach last year was an execution of an innocent person, an inquest heard yesterday.

Business consultant David Michael was jogging on Sydney's Bondi beach at 7am on June 28 when six police officers tried to coax Roni Levi into dropping his carving knife.

Mr Michael made the accusation in a letter to NSW Police Commissioner Peter Ryan seven days after he saw Mr Levi gunned down.

Mr Michael told Mr Ryan: "I am writing to express my serious concern and absolute indignation with what can only be described as the massacre of an innocent person on Bondi Beach on the morning of Saturday, May 28 (sic), 1997."

Mr Michael said the "police officers in question are either incompetent, lacking in judgment or of such disposition that they should never ever be entrusted with a firearm".

"By legal and social definition, this shooting is the most offensive action that can happen in a civilised society. It involved the execution of an innocent person," he said.

The inquest continues today.

ONE of the police officers involved in the shooting of freelance photographer Roni Levi on Bondi Beach attended an exhibition of his work yesterday just 200m from the scene of the incident.

The brief and private visit — on the eve of the opening today of the full inquest — went unnoticed by Mr Levi's parents attending the display at Bondi Pavilion.

Brendan James Abbott, 32, dubbed the Post Card Bandit after series of Gold Coast bank robberies. Sent police post cards of himself outside police stations after escaping from a Perth jail in 1980s.

BRENDAN Abbott has made a lucrative career of breaking into banks and out of prisons.

Throughout his career, Abbott has done what people least expect.

An avid cricket fan, he is believed to have followed the Australian Test team around the country during the five years he spent on the run.

Police suspect he may even try to attend the Brisbane Test match starting tomorrow.

He is a master of disguises, can speak fluent Japanese, and has learnt to fly. He has stolen $5 million during a decade as an innovative and cunning bank robber.

At least $3 million has not been found. The money has kept the 35-year-old Abbott in comfort on the run and paid to provide police with false information about his whereabouts.

It has also kept him well-stocked with electronic devices useful to his criminal pursuits.

Abbott is suspected or convicted of up to 40 bank robberies in five states.

He has escaped from two maximum security prisons — Fremantle and now Sir David Longland in Brisbane.

ALL IN THE NAME OF LIBERTY

Not everyone bothers themselves when it comes to dealing with prisons or jails, or if you like "Correctional Services". We are aware that if someone breaks the law and are found guilty and are then ordered to prison and serve time so that the victims of their crime can have some sence of justice and relief. What I'm thinking is. what kind of justice is it to allow fellow humin beings incarcerated, isolated and degraded like circus animals? Are we no better then them for treating them this way? An eye for an eye, a tooth for a tooth. There is no sense and no progressive solution by caging a humin being for their sadism, for their mistake, for their indifference to the law. Now I'm not talking about rheadonhiles or murderers or nazists allthough I will say that if I was a victim or close to one of these types of crimes I would be compelled to kill the fucker and that is exactly the problem. Is humin life this expendable, in the animal kingdom it's survival of the fittest so are the natural feelings like revenge, hatred, spite. O.K to excuse our own vile actions and that need for punishment. We all assume Anarchy society attracts only sensable, intellegent, humane, passive people and that because we are so perfect and wonderful, we have no reason to bring harm to others. Well I know myself that I am far from perfect and I know that Anarchy attracts a fair share of loonies. None better than the average Billy Bloggs. Beside those criticisms, the worry is that even in our ideal Anarchist society, if everyone was indeed happy and if we all did contribute to the good of the community well just 'cos you're anarchist doesn't mean you ain't selfish. Of course crime would still exist, Much crime comes from Well to do, executives who have everything but want more. When their is greed or inequality or poverty then there will be crime. Most criminals nut behind bars are from a low class, poor, migrant, black, uneducated backround. THe bottom of society can't afford a good lawer and face many prejudices. Poor people are more likely to commit crimes in quest of a better standard of living. When you come from the bottom, you have not much to lose. Class structure caters for the wealthy who can afford to send their bratty kids to exnensive private schools, can afford a car to get to work that won't break down, can afford housing without mouldy walls, can afford the best medical treatment for their children, computers, school books, bread on the table, heating, warm clothing in winter, blankets. You'd be surprised at how many people can't even afford new socks. Pressures amount when these factors collide with the soapies on tele. where everyone has everything for granted. What do you expect, that we are going to let the middle class or the bourgeous## live comfy while we struggle for our supper. (It's another reason I get mad at some of you rich anarch ist 'cos you don't realise the desperation and the frustration of truly being needy. fucking l[illegible]partry shit.) Naturally crime seems logical, it's a way to help yourself. Things like t[illegible] pronerty damage etc.. are liberating things not bad provided you don't take for greed but for need and you only take from the rich (NOT the working class, [illegible]) Violent crime, unfortunatly alot of innocent good people are victims.. If we find out what is giving people the shits to take out their violence on people then we can find a far better alternative to prison. I know myself that I have a very short fuse and when I get out my violence its to regain some self respect, its not a macho thing its just I feel better for that moment to hit someone or something. The worst thing you could ever do for me would be to incarcarate me. Oppressing my behaviour will only make me madder. You create the 'monster' by incarcaration, by isolation. Prison may solace the victim, feed their venom but it does nothing to the rehabilitation of the criminal and does noway guarantee that the problems and the likely reoccurence, to simply vanish. Majority of criminals are reoffenders, for many its their only way of life and means of survival. I think Apathy on the behalf of the mainstream is to blame for the ignorant, naive, sometimes cruel perceptions of criminals. You just gotta realise that some are in prison simply for nicking a couple of teles– who cares. Inmates could be your mothers, your fathers, your sister, your brother, your children, your friends. Some have been separated from their families, some are your screwuns, yeah 'cos the way maybe you once fucked them around, some are victims of racism or sexism. Some are victims themselves of crime. Some are child abused, some are drug abused, society abused. We are exactly how we treat our own people. I'm not saying "go give the ranist a lolly pop or nothing". All I'm saying is that prisons don't work. Educate yourselves, think about issues regarding more. Talk about it, listen. We treat these criminals like ratshit, We send these people to prison they come back out more likely better hardened criminals. There asteem is down, loss of self worth/self respect. I can only fear to imagine the kind of mental pain and anguish a place like prison can be.

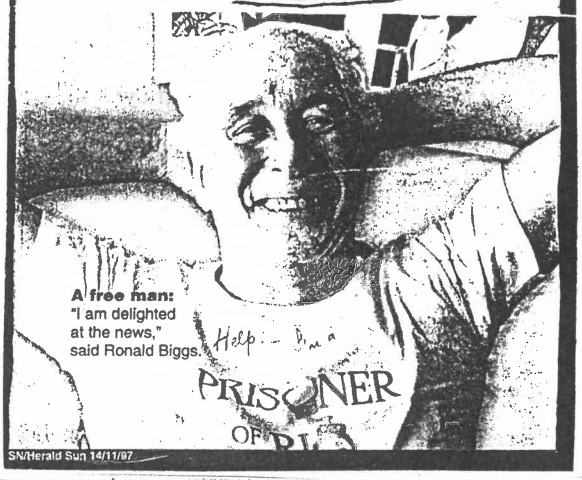

Personally I grew up watching "Prisoner" And at school "Bea Smith" was my role model, we all wanted to be top dog. The show is fucken embarrassing I know but the prisoners characters were humanised. I learn't through the show to stay away from drugs etc.. 'cos I'd end up at Wentworth if I didn't. It probably stopped my mumma from killing my dad 'cos she didn't want to deal with Vera's and feared the seperation and degredation of prison. Prisoners are people. Its a joke really that we can judge so easily and find people so guilty yet the real crims are the multinational companies, the religious fundamentalist, the greedy politician, the white corporate business man and womin. The wankers with the money who can buy their way through the justice system. Take a good long look at who is really filling up these these cages and at the real cost of running these cages. And now we have privatisation of these prisons, Rich shits capitalising on crime and at the exnense of humin beings. You tell me who the real villains are. Again I can't talk on behalf of the senseless violent and evil people in the world because I'm yet and probably never can empathise with these people and I wan't pretend I could. When some one goes to prison they should come out "corrected"? Too much Clockwork Orange, conditioning starts as a child. The only way we can be good, robotic, law abiding vegemites is if we kill every old ideal and law and rule . This would be Anarchy. We would find though that we are predictable, No order. Even caveman had heirachy. Smash the Prison system and demolish the concrete humin cages. We are not savages . instead behave like savages occassionally. One thing we have is remorse, we have guilt we can change but not when there's a loaded gun Point Blank in our face. We are NOT all born equal.....

REHABILITATE NOT INCARCARATE

'Silence of the Lambs' jail suicide investigation called

BY COLLEEN EGAN

AMNESTY International will be asked to investigate Western Australia's prisons after the hanging of a young remand prisoner who was allegedly bashed and held in chains and a face mask weeks before his death.

The parents of 18-year-old Neil Holt, in jail awaiting trial on traffic and stealing offences, claimed they saw bruising on their son's body after he was found hanging in his cell at Canning Vale prison last Sunday. Two "prison sources" told the Deaths in Custody Watch Committee that Holt was held in a solitary punishment cell with his hands and feet shackled. He was allegedly forced to wear a full face mask when staff entered his cell because he had abused and spat at guards.

Witnesses said the young man's "spirit was broken" and he had become quiet and obedient in the weeks before his death.

Perth West 2/2/98

Ivan Holt said at the weekend that his son had recently "run off the rails" but that he was not a hardened criminal and had never appeared suicidal.

"He was chained up and bashed, treated like an animal," Mr Holt said.

Investigating police have found no evidence that Holt was bashed by a senior officer, as alleged by one of the sources.

However, watch committee chairman Glenn Shaw said yesterday the shackling of prisoners in solitary cells was commonplace and that the practice would be referred to Amnesty International.

"Other States use shackles to transport dangerous prisoners but, as far as we know, Western Australia is the only place where they shackle in the cells," he said.

"But this is the first time we've come across the use of a mask. It's over the top and it smacks of (Hollywood film) Silence of the Lambs."

For every contact visit a woman must ... take off her clothes ... stand naked, raise her arms, lift her breasts, open her mouth, spread her legs, bend over, part her cheeks and remove her tampon if she has one. This sexual assault is the price a woman must pay every time she sees the people important to her.

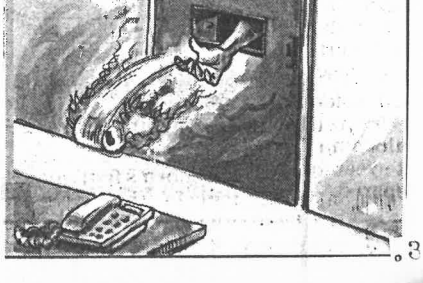

Ms George said that since the opening of Deer Park private prison tear gas had been used against women prisoners for the first time in Victoria. They had also been hog-tied at the prison with handcuffs on their legs and arms.

Alan Edwards

A HOMELESS man featured in the Herald Sun in November has died.

Alan Edwards, 57, died of kidney and heart failure after being in hospital for six weeks.

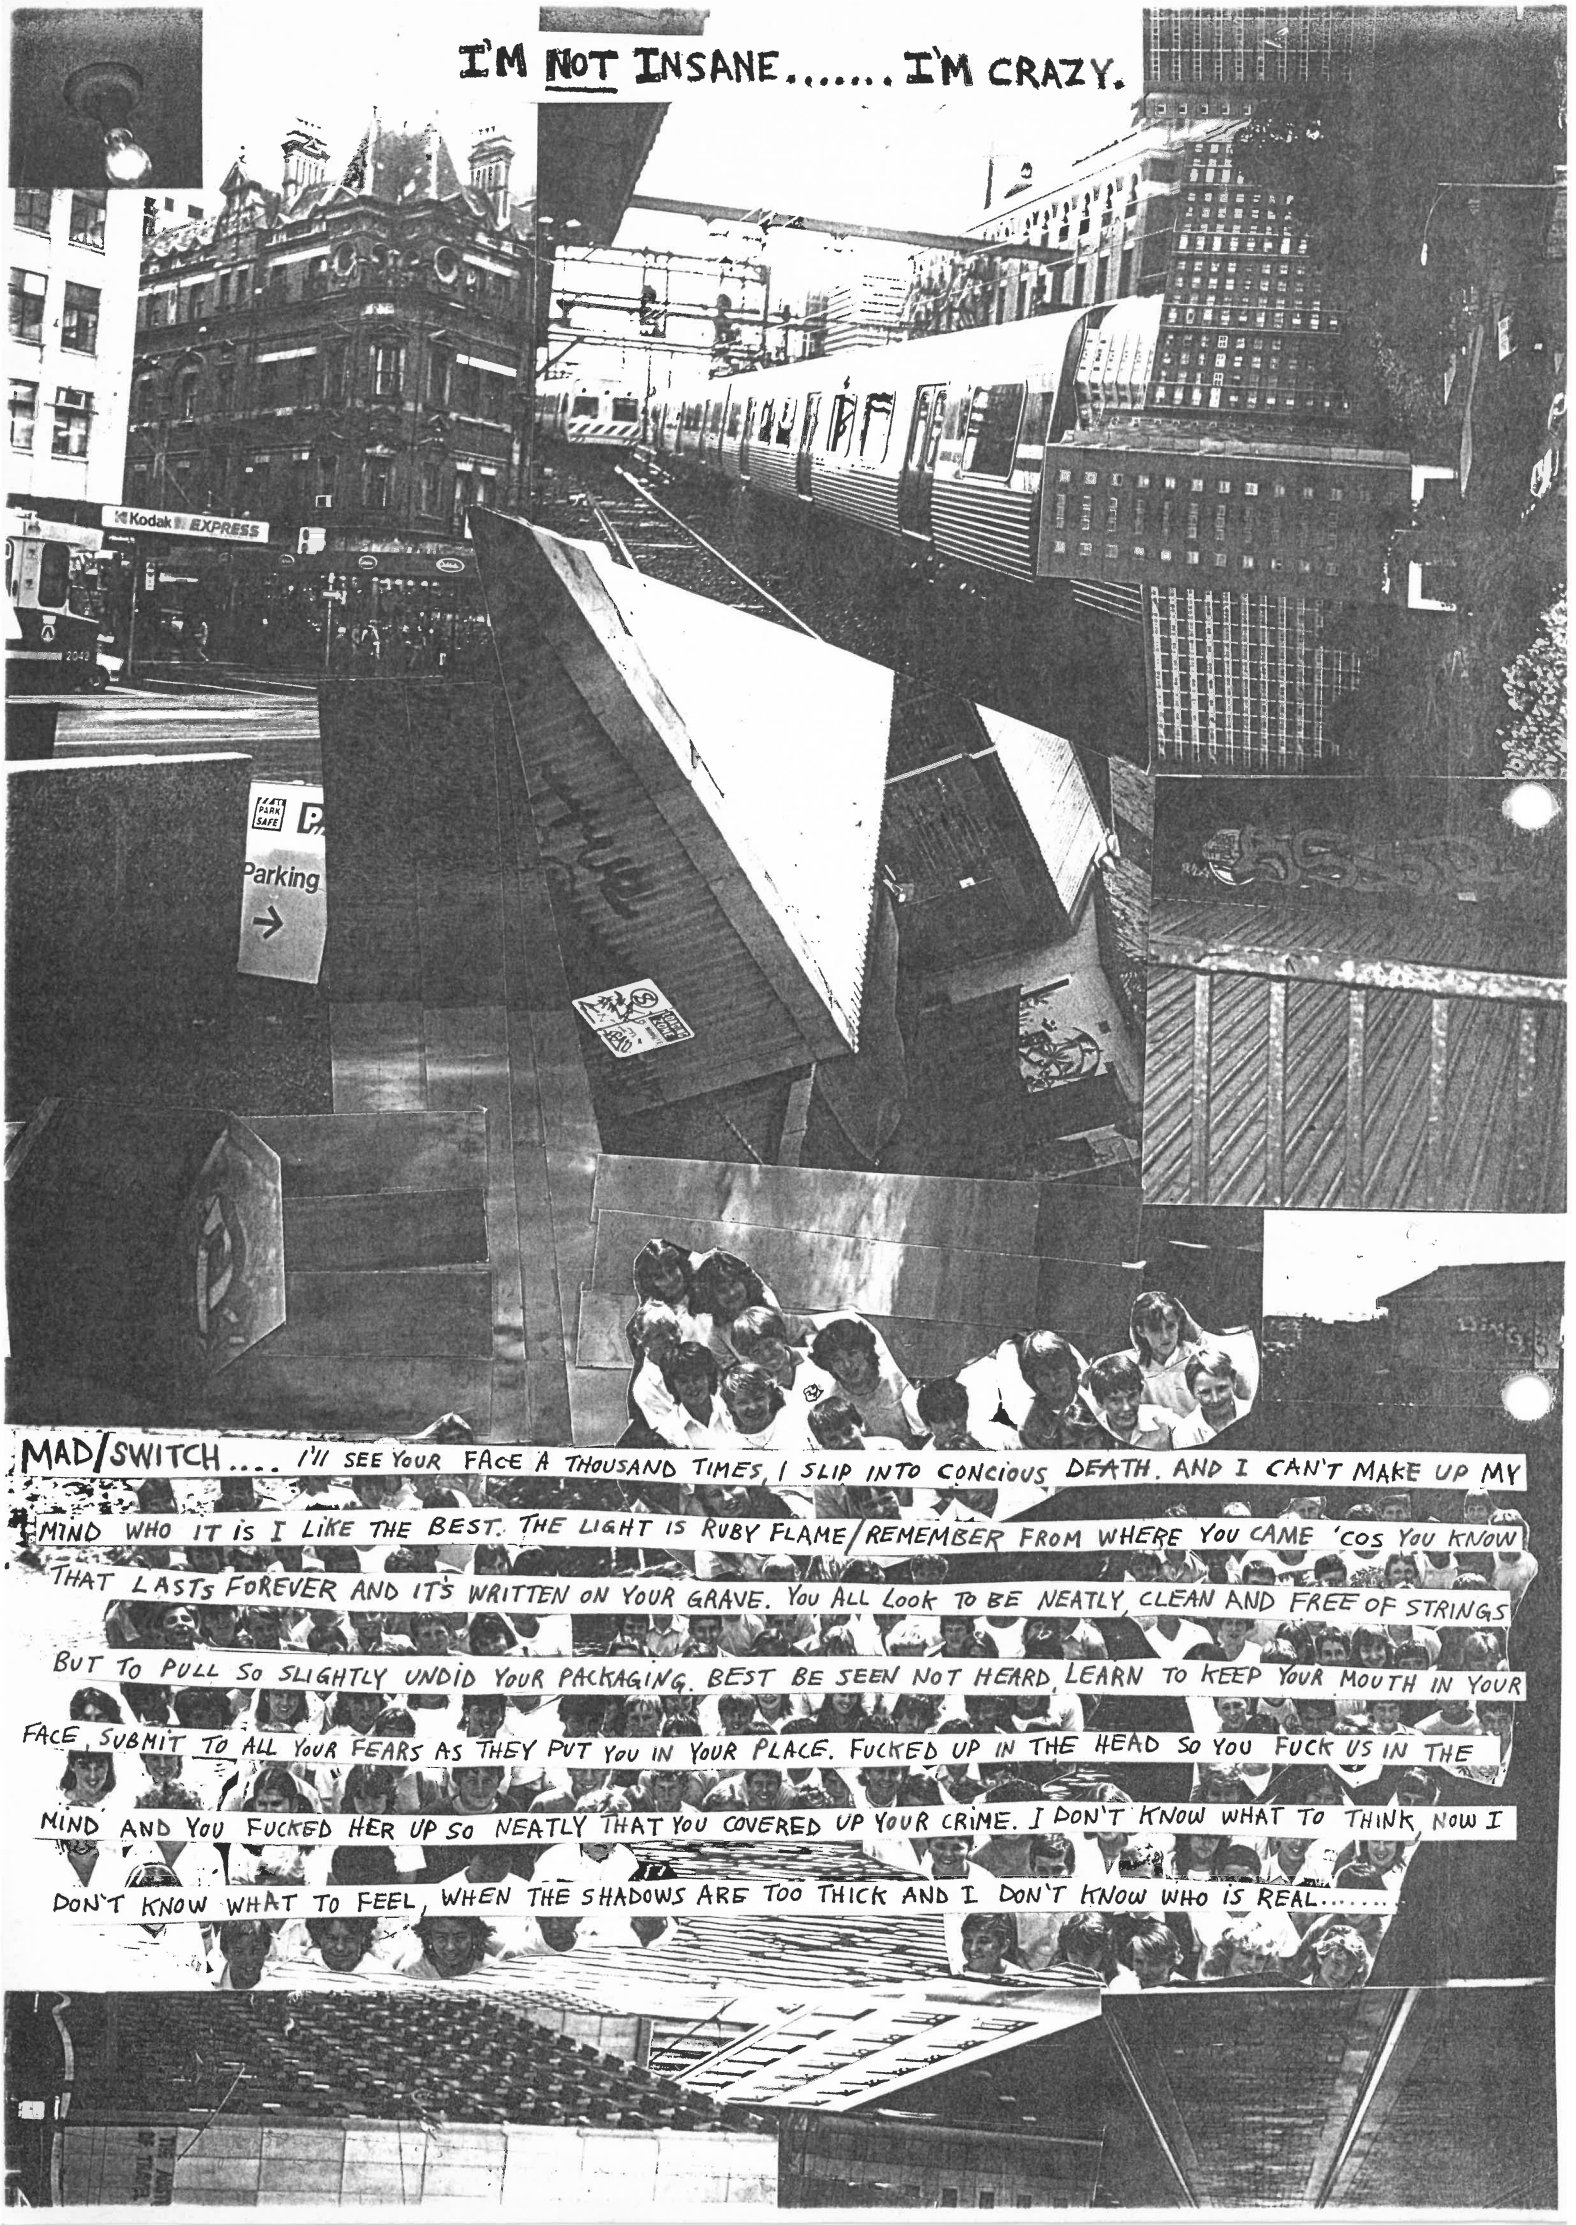

He had been on the streets for many years.

His son, Tim Groves, said yesterday his father found it harder to get help in recent years because of increased demand on homeless services.

"There's nothing really for life to offer them," he said of older homeless men. "His body eventually just gave up."

Mr Edwards' funeral was held at the Necropolis in Springvale yesterday.

Mr Groves said his grandmother had paid for the service so his father at least had a dignified farewell.

So what exactly has my point been ??? You figure it out.....

One last thing before I go, after watching Varukers 3 times in a row (and my ears are still ringing) this past weekend, where the fuck are the punk rock chics? I counted many boy bands and only one girl bass player (cheers to you). Yeah I'm whinging again, You girls get your friggen shit together and you boys let them come in. In my book, Anarchy is carefully planned chaos. Not order, No authority. It's not just throwing a brick through the window, that'll be nihilism. It's the reason for throwing a brick through a window. Punk to me is about rebellion, DIY, getting pissed or staying straight, causing trouble and staying up late. Confrontation and doing whatever the fuck you want and letting go. It's much more fun swearing abuse to yuppies (or are you too scared?) then at fellow punks or anarchist. We gotta stop these stupid divisions, FUCKEN BORDERS cos they're embarrassing.
